Three Wood Dale Men Win

IN VIOLATION OF the DuPage County zoning ordinance, this car has been abandoned on Church Road just north of Grand Avenue for several months. On March 20, the county placed a sticker on the bumper of the car citing it for the violation. The sticker reads that the car would be towed away within five days of the posted notice. Twenty-one days later, the car still remains on the side of the road.

Classrooms Called 'Unsafe'

by KEN HARDWICKE

Is Highland School in Wood Dale unsafe for children? Reading, writing and arithmetic may be top caliber but some parents are concerned about the potential fire hazard that looms in the school's basement classrooms.

The parents are upset because there appears to be only one passable exit in the classroom — the entrance door. They admit that there is a window available but question whether a child can escape through the small screen opening if a fire started.

School officials were out of town on conference business but Highland personnel indicated the building, presently under mass construction, was termed satisfactory by Merrill Gates, county superintendent of schools, earlier in the year.

GATES SENT A LETTER to Warren Carson, Dist. 7 superintendent of schools, commending the school for providing adequate exits for children.

The approach we have taken is one of assuring the life safety of children, Gates said. "We recommend close cooperation with the local people responsible for fire safety in the village. To function well in emergency, they need to know the buildings."

Apparently that close association that Gates stressed hasn't come about with Wood Dale's Fire Dept. because Chief Jack Haynes didn't even know classes were being conducted in the school basement. Chief Haynes indicated that other towns allow their fire departments to investigate schools for fire safety but Wood Dale does not.

"THE WOOD DALE Fire Dept. has no jurisdiction to inspect public schools," Chief Haynes revealed. "Dr. Carson is solely responsible."

Although the village volunteer firemen are only authorized to conduct fire drills, Haynes inferred that other departments are given the privilege of inspecting school fire safety. The state and county are responsible for fire inspection of all public schools.

Despite the assurance of a county inspection and the many exits outside the classrooms, some parents are still afraid of a potential fire with no proper exits.

"I asked the school principal if he would like his child in that classroom and he ignored my question," declared one irate mother.

PARENTS APPARENTLY weren't the only ones concerned with a potential fire hazard. It was reported that some teachers in the Highland School were also leary of "suitable" exits if fire broke out.

Highland School officials appear to be freed of all fire hazard charges because the building has been properly inspected and improved by the county.

Nevertheless there seems to be concern about how a fourth or fifth-grade student could muster the strength or height to break a glass-block window inside the classroom once a fire started. Reportedly, the only person who has the physical capabilities to shatter the block-window is the room teacher.

A fire may never ignite to justify claims by either side. But school officials will take further precautions next year when construction is completed and basement classrooms will become vacant.

Kite-Flying Contest Can't Get Off Ground

Roselle's kite-flying contest, co-sponsored by the Jaycees and the Park District was grounded temporarily April 5 because of mud.

The festivities are rescheduled for April 19 at Parkside School, 233 E. Maple St. Registration begins at noon and the contest will start at 1 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded. Entries will be organized into four age groups, and winning kite owners will receive prizes on originality of design and performance in flight.

Tom Conroy, Jaycee member, is the chairman of the kite-flying contest.

Three Wood Dale residents won election to the Bensenville Dist. 100 high school board election Saturday.

Morton L. Wright, of 233 Dalewood, Wilfred C. Prather, of 178 S. Montclare and Arthur W. Richter, of 244 Dalewood netted 569, 550 and 509 votes respectively.

The other candidates vying for the three full term board positions were Richard E. Perry, 419 votes; Hartl R. Jones, 299 votes; Oscar J. Sahagan, 216 votes; John P. Meyer, 211 votes, and Lawrence P. Kaspari Jr., 192 votes.

Zuckerman indicated at "first glance" he thought there might have been a greater voter turnout in this election than in the last. About 980 voters cast ballots in Saturday's election.

THE APPROXIMATE number of ballots cast at each precinct was Mohawk, 88; Green Street, 152; Tioga, 212; Blackhawk, 141; Wood Dale Junior High, 121;

Oakbrook, 109 and Westview, 82.

Prather did best of all candidates in the Tioga precinct, with 106 votes. Jones and Perry also placed high in the Tioga precinct, with 100 and 98 votes respectively, but did not maintain enough votes in the other precincts to carry the election.

The two incumbents, Wright and Richter, proved strong in all the precincts. Wright pulled in 140 votes in the Wood Dale Junior High precinct while Richter took 134 votes.

Prather, who is employed as a station manager for WMAQ-TV in Chicago, is not new to the workings of a school board. He served as president of the Wood Dale Dist. 7 school board for six years. He was also secretary for one year during his 8½ years on the board.

WRIGHT, WHO IS completing his fourth year with Dist. 100 has also served on the Wood Dale Dist. 7 board three years. He is employed as an engineer for the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Wright has been a resident of Wood Dale for 21 years and served on the Fenton Citizens' Advisory Council for two years.

A Wood Dale resident for 36 years, Richter is completing his third year with the Dist. 100 board. He is the owner of Richter Concrete Contractors.

While Wright and Richter sought to maintain their board positions, Prather will take the position vacated by Larry Reimer Reimer, who has served on the Fenton board for six years, did not seek reelection. The newly elected board members will serve three year terms.

The results of Saturday's election will not be official until the school board votes to accept them at their next meeting.

Roy Tison Wins Seat

Roy Tison, of 1006 Green Valley in Bensenville, and Robert Broderick, of 455 S. Center Street in Bensenville, accumulated the most votes Saturday to win the election to the Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 board of education.

Unofficial returns Saturday night showed Broderick with 400 votes, Tison with 388 and John P. Meyer, of 25 Roosevelt Court, in Bensenville, with 316.

Meyer, who was also seeking a position on the Fenton Dist. 100 board, was never too far behind the other candidates, but he could not maintain a lead in any of the precincts. He also lost in the Dist. 100 election.

BRODERICK did best in the Tioga and Green Street precincts, with 160 and 89 votes respectively. Tison proved stronger than the other candidates in the Blackhawk and Mohawk precincts with 103 and 65 votes respectively.

The approximate number of ballots cast in each of the precincts was Mohawk, 82; Green Street, 125; Tioga, 211 and Blackhawk, 133.

Dr. Martin Zuckerman, superintendent of Bensenville schools, told the Register Saturday night that he thought the voter turnout in this election was pretty good. "At first glance it is at least as well, probably a little better than last year's voter turnout," Zuckerman said.

About 551 ballots were cast in the Dist. 2 election.

TISON, WHO IS presently filling out a term vacated by Earl Meyer, has served one year on the Dist. 2 board. Broderick will take over the position of Will Davidson, who did not seek re-election. Davidson was elected last year to fill the term of Dr. Tom Barber and is presently serving a term on the Dist. 100 board.

Tison is teaching social studies to 7th and 8th graders at Itasca Junior High School. He is also working on his master's degree at Northeastern Illinois State College. Tison has been a resident of Bensenville for 20 years.

Thus will be Broderick's first experience on a school board. Broderick, who is a fire protection engineer for the U.S. Gypsum Co., has lived in Bensenville for five years.

DR. ZUCKERMAN said that "it was good to have a contest in both districts." There were eight candidates seeking three positions in the Fenton Dist. 100 board race.

The results of Saturday's election will be validated when they are voted on and accepted by the school board at the next Dist. 2 meeting. Both newly elected board members will begin their terms at that time.

Bensenville Cops Have Busy Year

Last year was a busy one for the Bensenville Police Department, according to the department's annual report.

A total of 5,600 complaints were handled by the department. This was an increase of 1,533 complaints over the previous year, according to the report.

Although traffic fatalities were down (two in 1969 compared to four the year before), there were 109 more accidents reported in 1969. A total of 732 accidents were reported last year.

THE JUVENILE DIVISION of the department received 877 complaints in 1969. Of these, 338 were vandalism complaints. Of the remaining 539, 45 were attributed to larceny (theft), 129 were for disorderly conduct (including truancy), 35 were runaway cases and eight complaints concerning drugs, according to the report.

"The figure of eight for drug offenses indicates how little is being done in that area because it is well known that the figure would probably be many times that amount," Juvenile Officer Donald Jensen said.

"As the village grows and more personnel are added to the juvenile division, we hope that we will be able to stem the number of yearly increases of juvenile complaints through some increased preventative patrol and through the various techniques employed in delinquency prevention and control."

LT. ARTHUR GARCIA of the detective division, reported 2,850 arrests were made by the department in 1969 for various offenses. The greatest amount of citations, 1776, were issued to parking violators. Speeding violators numbered 364. There were 17 arrests for theft and 20 for battery. There was one arrest each for the following: burglary, assault, robbery and rape.

Other arrests made by the department included 47 for disorderly conduct, one narcotic drug arrest, 15 damage to village property, four public intoxication within the village limits, nine curfew violations, 40 Zoning Ordinance violations and three nuisance complaints.

"The police department handled an average of 124 contacts a day which is an average of five for each hour of the day in 1969," according to Police Chief Walter Tett.

"The year 1969 showed increases in many areas of police services," Tett said. "We have tried very hard not only to keep up with expanding the police department, but also to stay abreast of current methods of police functions by attending many colleges, in-service training courses and correspondence courses from both the Chicago Police Academy and the National Police Academy."

6 Incumbents Unopposed

Elementary school Dist. 7 and 10 voters reelected six incumbents to respective school boards Saturday in uncontested elections.

Although all three candidates for Wood Dale Dist. 7 seats were running unopposed, a large turnout for the Fenton Junior High School election raised the voter number well over 300. Three polling precincts were open from noon to 7 p.m.

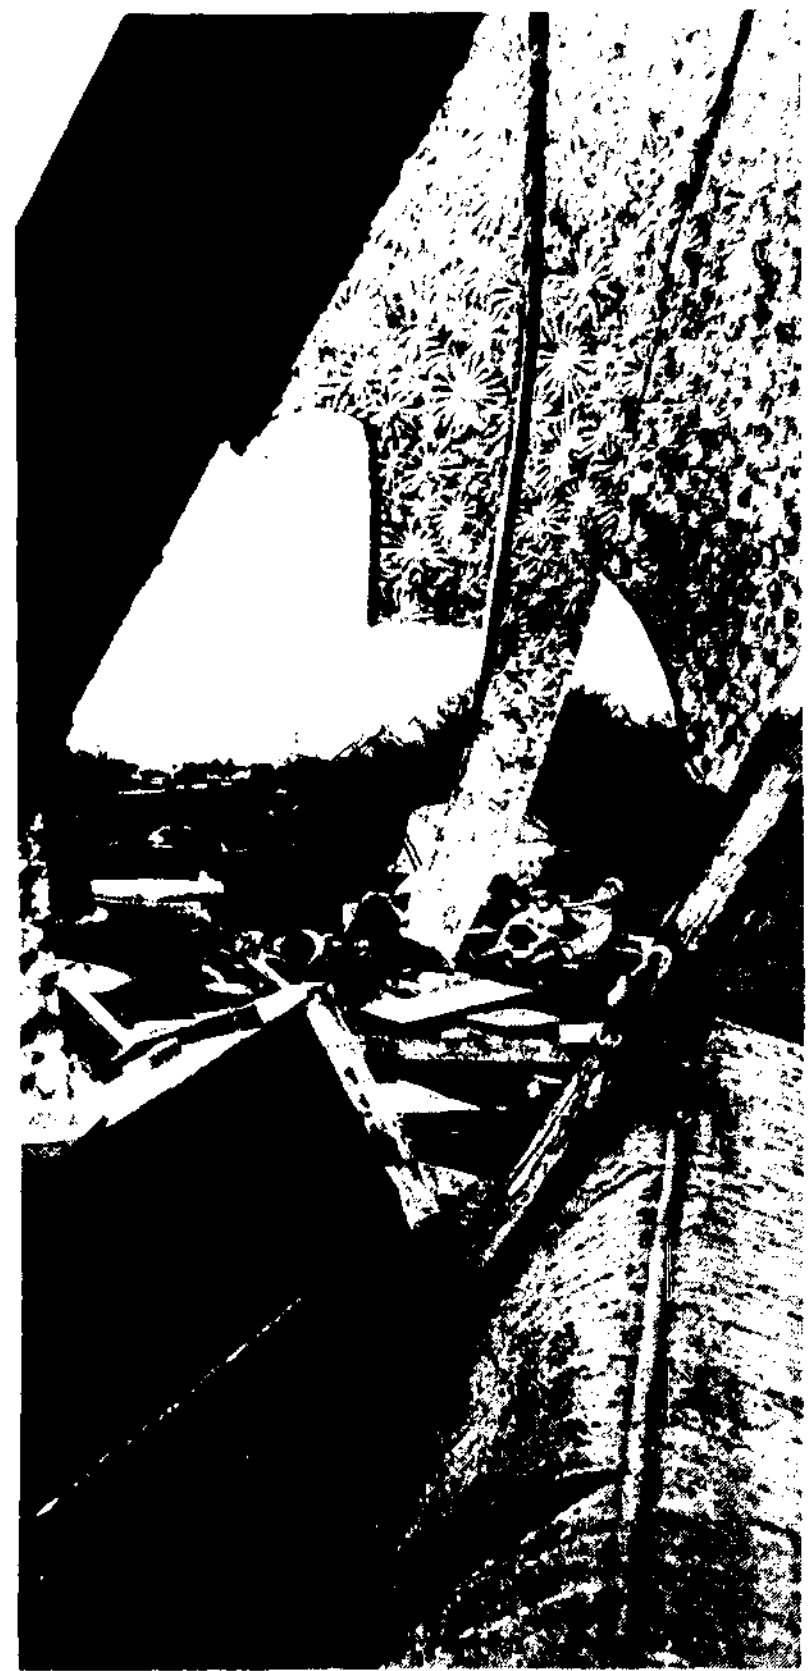

Top Dist. 7 vote getter was Morton L. Wright who received 354 votes. Also reelected for three year terms were Robert Doane (324) and Jerry Gereer (318). All three reelected officials had previously served one term.

IN DIST. 10, there was a light vote because of no contest at the high school or junior high level. Arnold Rusche, superintendent of Dist. 10, indicated it was the lightest voter turnout for the district in 10 years.

Three incumbents were also reelected in the uncontested election. Michael Debowksi topped all three candidates by receiving 64 votes. Debowksi was reelected

Y Camp Signup To Begin

Registrations for YMCA Summer Camps will begin Saturday, for Y Sustaining Members announced Robert Williams, executive director of the Twinbrook YMCA.

"We're giving our Sustaining Members first opportunity to sign up for the program," Williams said, "because they are the ones who pay the overhead cost of the YMCA and allow us to run such programs as the Y-Camping."

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to Noon at the Y-Office, 11 East Schaumburg Road, Schaumburg. Free pennants will be given to the first 50 campers enrolled. Y Camp T-Shirts will also be given to campers.

An "Earn Your Way" program will begin this day. Campers will be able to take cases of "Y-Camp Butter Toffee Pennant" on consignment to sell in their neighborhood. A 40 per cent profit goes toward their camp fee. "We find the youth appreciate the summer vacation a lot more when they have earned part of their way," Williams said.

The Y-Camping Program offers three 2-week (8 day) sessions of Y-Day Camp for boys and girls, two one-week residence camps for boys and girls, a North Woods Caravan for junior high boys, Lake Superior Co-ed Canoe Trip and a weekend family camp.

"It's not too late to become Sustaining Members," Williams commented, "many parents become members just to take advantage of the early sign-up. We're not sure of what to expect, but it's not unusual for YMCA Camps to fill on Sign-up Days."

Y-Camp Registration for Sustaining Members will continue at the Y-Office during regular office hours, 9:30-30. Sign-ups call also be made by mail although advance mail registrations will be considered after the Sign-up Day. The official registration for the general public will open the following Saturday, April 25th, at the Y-Office.

Some Camp Leader positions are still open and applications are being received at the Y-Office. Further information may be obtained by calling the Y-Office, 894-8500.

Slate Church History Class

The Medinah Baptist Church will offer a new course in the "history of Christianity in America" starting at 8:45 a.m. Sunday, Rev. James Weir, minister of Christian Education, announced.

"Come to this class and find out what Christian people did in early America and across the years as the nation developed. Every Christian should know what the Half-Way Covenant is, when it happened and what brought it about," Rev. Weir said.

The course will run for 13 weeks and will be taught by John Rowan, a Hoffman Estates resident and member of the congregation. Rowan is also a free lance writer specializing in researching and writing historical radio dramas for station WMBI, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

Rowan has written such historical series as Land for the Brave, Full Grown Men and is currently researching and writing Old Yankee. He is a graduate of Northern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Rev. Weir said, "This 13 week session will end with a view of the Christian church in America today. This perspective will show that God is still in control of things and the Gospel of Jesus Christ is ageless."

All area residents may attend the free class. To enroll, call the church office at 894-9421. Medinah Baptist Church is located on Foster Avenue at Sycamore Street in unincorporated Medinah.

Patrick R. Riedy, Lisle township Supervisor on the DuPage County Board, missed his day in court recently.

Riedy is taking a trip so his pre-trial hearing on charges of official misconduct scheduled for March 31, was continued until April 14 at 9:30 a.m.

It was another trip made to Las Vegas in January, with fellow supervisor John Stobb Jr., from York township, that led to Riedy's indictment.

The two supervisors went to Las Vegas while supposedly attending a public works seminar in Phoenix, Ariz. They are accused of charging meals and small expenses to the county.

After the trip was disclosed, Riedy resigned from his position as chairman of the county board public works committee and as member of the legislative committee.

Stobb initially resigned from his chairmanship of the sheriff, courthouse and grounds committee and as member of the public works committee.

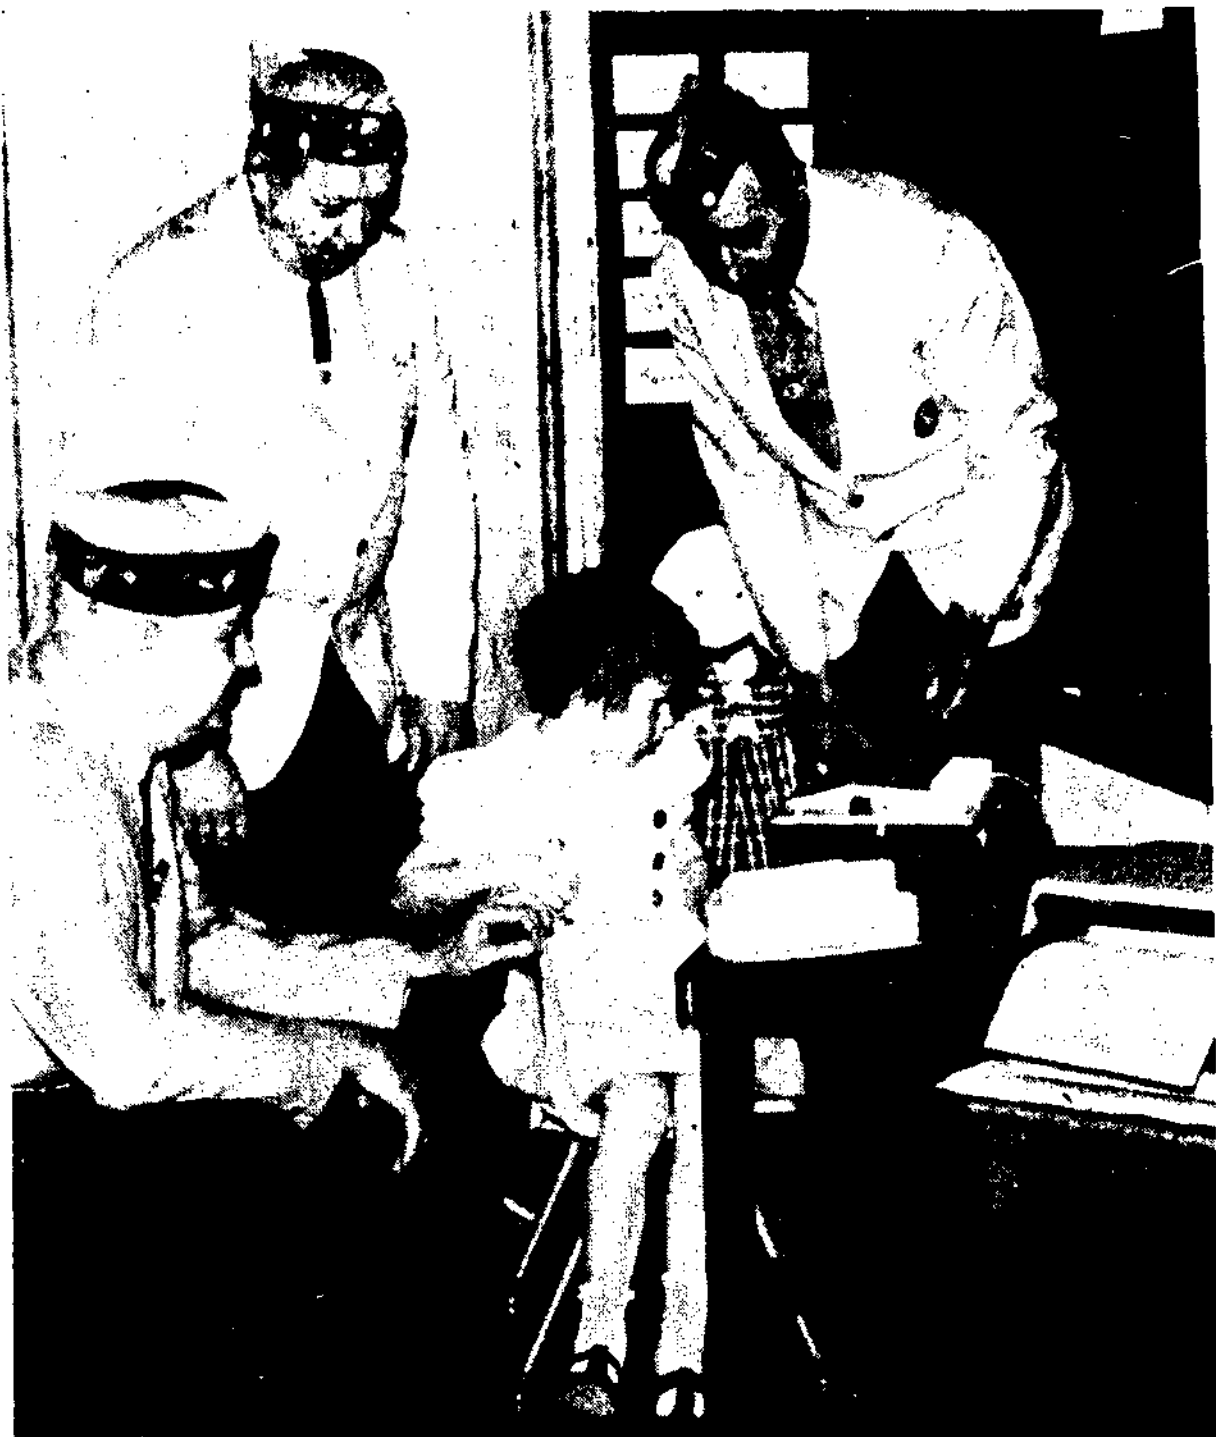

He later resigned from the board of supervisors and was found guilty of official misconduct in a special hearing before Judge Leroy L. Rechenmacher.

Garage Fire; Suspect Arson

A garage fire last Wednesday at the Donald Peska residence, 150 S. Walnut in Bensenville, may have been arson, according to Fire Chief Martin Heinrich.

Heinrich said this is the third fire in that nearby area that could be attributed to arson.

The fire chief said the garage was engulfed in flames when the fire equipment arrived at the scene.

There was no car in the garage at the time and the structure was completely destroyed, according to the fire chief.

THE DAY BEFORE the fire, Mrs. Elaine Peska reported someone had damaged her car. Police said a railroad flare was placed on the car creating a burned spot on the finish.

Mrs. Peska told police that she had reported two youths to school authorities earlier that day. Police are investigating both incidents.

True Kephart of Wood Dale, a junior at Fenton High School in Bensenville, reported to police his car had been damaged by "an explosion" while parked in the Fenton lot Tuesday.

Police reported that another railroad flare was placed on his car and had coated the finish with sulfur drippings. There was no one seen in the area at the time of the incident, police said.

Roselle Police are continuing their investigation of last week's theft of over $500 in auto parts from Dick Wickstrom's Chevrolet, 555 E. Irving Park Rd. They believe the theft is linked to others committed last month at the auto dealership.

Sgt. Richard Ellison, who answered the call Wednesday said the theft of various equipment included wheelcovers, tires and accessories taken from the trunks of nine different cars. Batteries were also stolen.

"There were no signs of forcible entry on any of the cars," Ellison said adding the locks showed evidence of use.

Although there was nothing stolen from three other cars, Ellison said the batteries in them were ready to be taken out.

Here's Chance for Boys To Test Baseball Skills

Thousands of boys, nine through twelve years of age, will join the line-up to sign for a nationwide Official Major League Baseball Pitch, Hit & Throw (PH&T) Competition as professional baseball starts its 101st season.

The PH&T competition is sanctioned by the Office of the Commissioner of Baseball.

Boys of the same age will compete for awards in pitching, hitting and throwing events. The program, emphasizing the importance of training and physical fitness, is co-sponsored by Phillips Petroleum Company, of Bartlesville, Okla.

Phillips expects to enroll more than 500,000 boys at its approximately 23,000 service stations throughout the 50 states before the end of registration, May 16. There is no registration charge but youngsters must be accompanied by a parent.

Boys must win in three PH&T competitions — local, district and division between May and late June — to reach the national finals at the All-Star Game in Cincinnati, July 14.

Eight finalists from division contests (four representing teams from the American League and four representing teams from the National League) will compete for a national Pitch, Hit & Throw championship trophy and emblem shoulder patch in each of the four age groups.

Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn called PH&T an excellent opportunity for youngsters to demonstrate their individual baseball skills.

In addition to the active participation PH&T will also emphasize baseball instruction and physical fitness training. "This program will further strengthen the wonderful relationship that baseball has established with the youth of our country," said the Commissioner.

Commissioner Kuhn said that baseball's future was tied to the youth of America, "And therefore we are delighted to join in this special event which we hope will become an annual competition."

Single Girl in Suburbia

When She Seeks Fun

by GENIE CAMPBELL

(Second of a series)

"I only wish I was as wild as everyone thinks I am. It must be fun."

"It's as hard living up to your image as it is down."

"If neighbors know you're single, husbands love you, wives won't give you the time of day."

Contrary to general belief, the social lives of many single girls in their twenties, particularly those of suburbanites, are not as fast and furious as the roar of a jet engine. At times there is not so much as even a false start.

"It can really get you down if you're not careful," said one depressed 22-year-old who has now been living in the area six months.

Booze, grass, party party, musical beds — it's not a fitting description for the single ladies living in northwest suburbia.

MOST WEEKDAY nights are spent seated in front of the tube or stretched out on the floor with a good book and Laura Vero belting out from the stereo in the background. Many others are attending classes through personal interest or a desire for a higher degree of education. Often the weekends are more of the same.

"The bars?" "I quit the bar scene. It was either someone's husband on the make or general losers."

"Bars?" "I don't like to patronize the places. It's the same crowd, crummy. I can have better conversations with the bartender."

"Bar hopping was great in college, but it has a funny connotation now."

Bars are not glorified havens for single women. They are often frequented because of a lack of anything better to do and a desire to meet the opposite sex at any cost.

WHILE A GRADUAL influx of entertainment is finding its way out to the suburbs, young people agree that downtown Chicago is still the center for girl meets boy. Yet, even scouting down on Rush Street gets old pretty quick . . . and the trips become less frequent as the year wears on.

High on the list of suburban hangouts are Butch McGuire's on Rand Road, the Waterfall and Jake's Pizza Pub. Sculler Park is a popular residential congregating area for available singles, and crowded pubs in that area include the Nickel Bag and the SOP.

Yet they, too, are not frequented as much as is imagined, and most girls will admit, meeting men in the suburbs is often difficult.

"I DON'T WANT to get married. I just want a date," laments one young single fresh out of college who longs for the weekend parties back at school.

Chicago has its single clubs — The First Society, The Young Adults of Foreign Relations and Santa Claus Anonymous.

"I only went to one of those mixers once," said Helen Halstead. "I'll never go again. It was like head hunting; it totally turned me off."

And from another experimenter, "Degrading," said Robin Leach. "The people who were there had desperation written all over their faces."

How to meet men and not be considered a pick-up is the primary problem. A single girl new in the area, unless she wants to take pot luck at the bars, unless she has something to sell or give away, has less than an average chance of meeting guys. A man can go out on his own . . . not so the girl.

SOMETIMES THE answer is single apartment complexes. Club Living in Mount Prospect is one in the immediate area which specifically caters to singles. However, even though 28 marriages were consummated between the dwellers last year, it is not the complete answer either.

While planned bowling teams, picnics, mixers, not to mention the scores of parties occurring every weekend within the complex itself, solve the date problem for most girls living there, it can create other problems of its own, namely lack of privacy.

"Sometimes it's like living in a fish-bowl," said one resident. "We're all one big happy family. If your curtains are open, it's an invitation for anyone to walk right in." It has been keyed the "open curtain" policy.

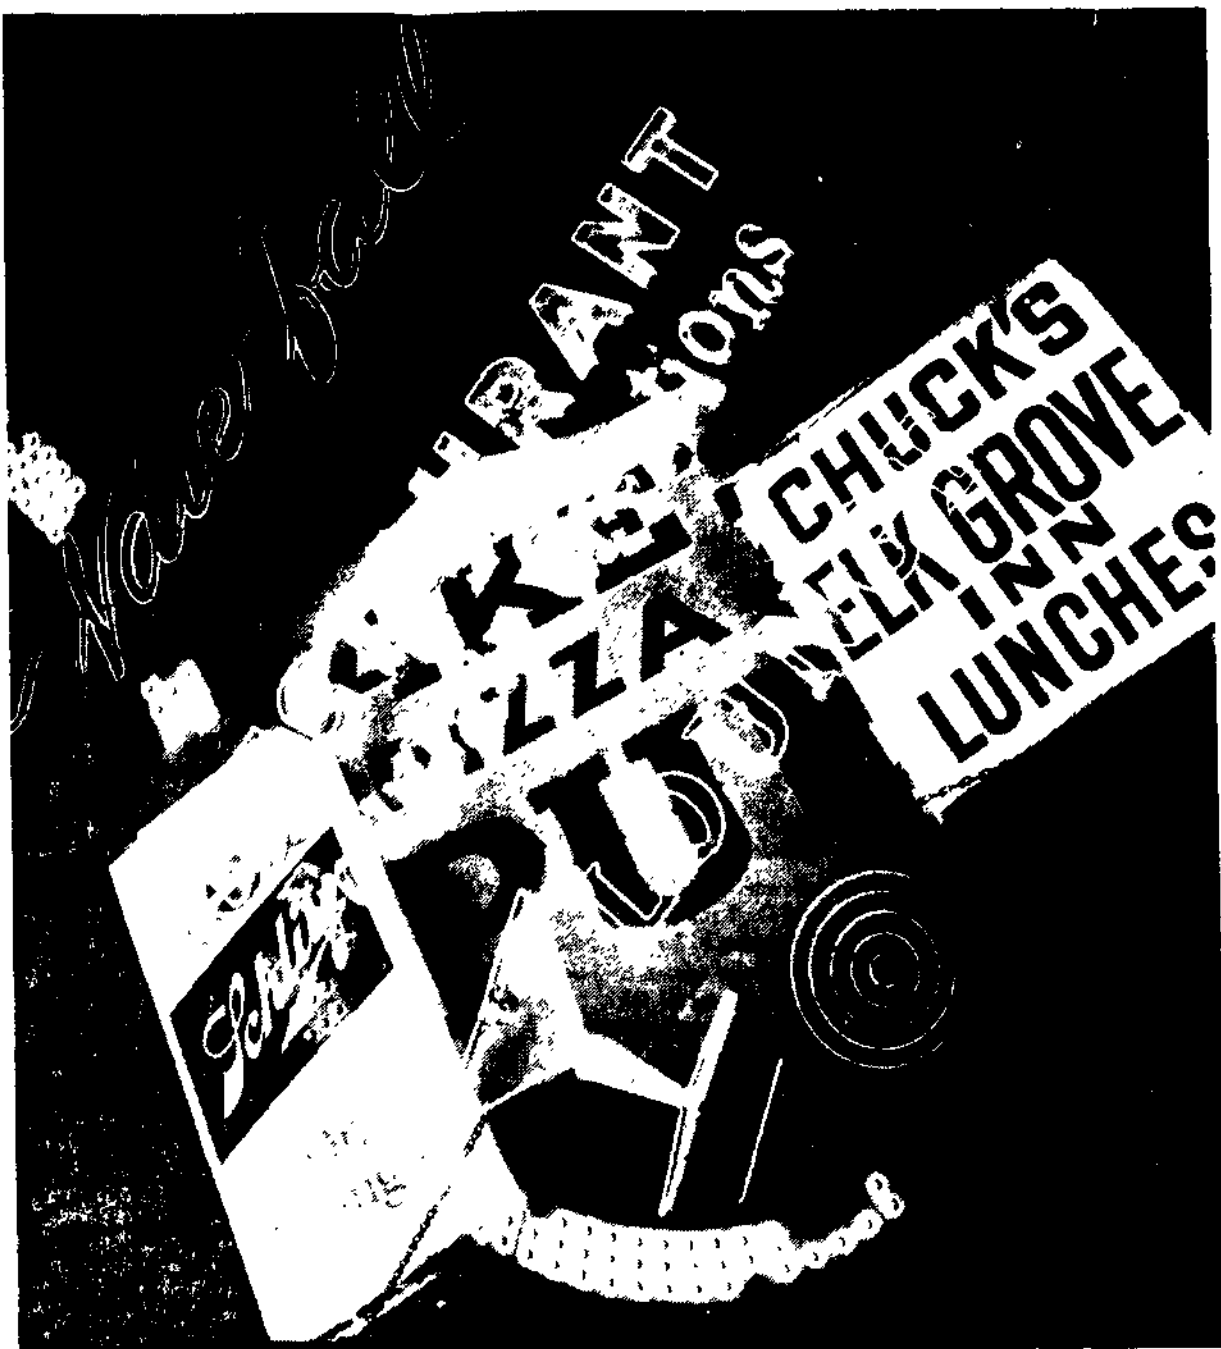

YOUNG ADULT CHURCH groups provide another outlet for bringing singles together. Yet many of the youth today, rebelling against tradition and questioning the makeup of religion altogether, are just not interested.

Ski clubs and night classes are other devices.

"I meet people in coffee houses," said Bonnie Yates whose one and only love is folk singing. "People I meet there generally like what I like."

Pheasant Run tried to capitalize on the "unattached" recently by offering a "swinging weekend for singles." A special hostess was on hand to supervise the

HER ENTIRE WORLD revolves around her voice and guitar. A hospital clinical instructor by day, Bonnie

WITH MORE AND MORE YOUNG people moving out to the suburbs, there is less of a need to return to the loop for nightclubs and entertainment. However, all single independents still agree that the center for meeting people is based in the Old Town-Rush Street area. Weekends are often spent commuting back and forth.

planned activities and see that the guests "mixed and matched."

"Gruesome," remarked one girl about the whole idea. "It's just like being branded and marked for the kill."

EVEN STEWARDESSES, who are supposed to be wild and free every evening after five, have a hard time living up to their frivolous, gay reputation.

"One meets a lot of men on sight, but it doesn't mean a thing," said Beverly Rume. "One meets all kinds . . . that's why I got pickier. I won't go out with a passenger. You don't know them. It's just not safe."

"One often meets men who pride themselves on telling you all about yourself. You must be just like her because you're a stewardess too. I want people to know me as me, not as a stewardess," said Karen Cosbey.

Yet, this is not to say that a single girl's life is completely run of the mill, completely dull and uneventful.

There are private parties where drinking is heavy, marijuana is sometimes smoked, and the guests remain far into the morning. Often they are impromptu BYO parties, usually the best kind. If it is a really good party, guests have paired off before the sun rises.

AND WHAT ABOUT dirty old men and young ones, too, who believe a dinner for two is finished in the bedroom with a nightcap?

"I find men on the make; it's no different than college, except around here you also have to watch out for the unhappily married ones, too," said a 23-year-old. "Some people have the wrong idea; that's okay. I set the pace; they learn what I'm really like."

Most young women look upon promiscuity as an individual matter.

"No I don't sleep around, but I don't hold it against a girl if she does, although I don't think she will ever find what she's looking for," said one teacher.

"I guess I believe in what you might call selective chastity," said another young business woman. "If I like a guy, I won't hesitate to go to bed with him and I don't feel guilty about it. It's a human drive, right? At least we singles are not making the mistake of getting married just for the sake of legalizing sex."

FASHION

by Genie

Mention celery, kale, artichoke and skunk cabbage to most people and they immediately think of a salad or something on that order. But it has other uses . . . like jewelry for instance.

Judith Brown is a Vermont sculptor who uses various vegetables and plants and casts them into gold or silver or uses wax molds in making her jewelry.

"They really make you feel beautiful," she testifies. I guess that's one way of getting close to nature.

Of course, most of Judith's jewelry ranges in price from $250 to $3,000, a trifle too expensive for the majority of us, but then that's fashion. Hm . . . I wonder how a glob of cole slaw would make into a pendant?

Persons attempting to express true individuality in fashion more often find themselves in the main stream if their idea snowballs into a fad. Sometimes they get mad, but most of the time they get rich.

FRINGE COMES UNDER that category. At one time it was relatively obscure. Now it's on everything. I'll admit it has a definite use . . . swirling, knotting or just general swishing and swinging.

On its way "in" this spring is an additional trim, rickrack, supposed to turn all women into pure milk maid images. Who are they kidding?

Rickrack is trimming pockets, hems, necklines, sleeves, zippers and waistlines. It may replace fringe although it won't be as much fun.

From Denmark, clogs are the up and coming thing. They're rapidly replacing many of the summer sandals and believe it or not, they are good for you, for your feet anyway. Walking regularly in them exercises arches and ankles. They have to be good for your feet. Dr. Scholl has been selling them for years.

OF COURSE, tie-dyeing is probably chalked up as the fad of the season. It's still pretty individualized when you do it yourself and not buy items ready made ready-dyed in the clothing stores.

Another up and coming trend is an item milliners are pushing . . . skull-fitting caps. They literally stretch like bandages over the head and usually cover part of the forehead and the tips of the ears. Sometimes the wearers complain of headaches.

Yet if Rudi Gernreich has his way, (he's the one who has shaved all the heads of his models), we may all be sporting body stockings on our heads soon, particularly in winter or when it snows in April.

The tight fit is derived from the Puerto Rican boys who used to wear old nylon stockings pulled tightly over their heads and knotted on top. The young men wore these, not as fashion, but to bring their curly hair under control before a date.

So if you wait six months and put it altogether, clogs, tie-dyed stockings, a skull cap to match a rickracked mid . . . you will undoubtedly look like everyone else. A necklace of celery might still be unique. I really have no idea how popular vegetables will become.

Loneliness Is A Housewife's Lot

by MARY SHERRY

In response to an article of mine on women's liberation, a lady wrote to me: "Liberation is not women's greatest problem. It's loneliness."

Since my toddler was biting my ankle at the time I read the letter, I was feeling at that moment less liberated than lonely.

However, the letter got me thinking and realizing that feminine loneliness is a common problem. I recalled my own experience of moving to a new city and the difficulty of being housebound yet still facing the absolute necessity of making new friends.

For a long time I was very selective — so much so that I didn't give others a chance to reveal whether or not we had anything in common. This, of course, was a personal disaster. I compounded the problem by relying exclusively on my husband to create a social life for both of us.

AS A RESULT I blamed my loneliness and misery on the city where we lived. I faced it realistically when I asked one friend I finally got to know how she managed to be so happy when she and her husband moved every 18 months. She told me that she looked at every new town and every new neighborhood as the place where she would spend the rest of her life. In this way she mastered the art of becoming a member of her community and every community was truly her home.

But not all — probably not most — women are lonely because they move frequently. A friend of mine lives in a new housing development where her neighbors coffee together from one end of the morning to the other end of the afternoon.

"WOULD YOU BELIEVE I'm lonely?" she asked after the neighbors left. "This is a ridiculous situation. Everyone is friendly — but demanding so. It's the whole group or nothing. I wouldn't dare drop out because then I'd really be physically alone. I can't cultivate individual friendships here without cultivating the whole group. Consequently I have lots of friendly neighbors, but no real friends."

After making some casual inquiries, I found that loneliness for some women occurs when they depend exclusively upon their families as the centers of their social lives. When their parents die or their sisters and brothers move away, or if their families feud, these women are poorly equipped to find feminine companionship — only because they have never before had to.

A SIMILAR SITUATION seems to happen when we depend too much upon childhood friends. Only one — or maybe two — of such friends are likely to develop along the same interest routes as we do. Pretending that things will always go on the same for the old gang is simply unrealistic.

The need for friends comes from the need to grow as a person. To have friends merely to ease the pain of loneliness would be a selfish use of other people. We all need close friends, though some lifestyles and circumstances may prevent us from having a lot of friends.

Loneliness seems to be an occupational hazard of most housewives and mothers. But loneliness certainly is a better plight than to be surrounded by "friends" who don't respect one's occasional need to be alone.

Golden Anniversary Pair

"We've been reading Paddock Publications for 70 years!"

Only real old-timers like Phillip and Elsie Engelking can make that statement.

The Engelkings, who celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Sunday, were both born in the area and are still living in the home in which Elsie was born at 201 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights.

Elsie was one of the seven children of August and Caroline Adam, and the Adam home was then the third to the last house on the "edge" of town.

Phillip was born on a small farm on Milwaukee Avenue just east of Arlington Heights, the eldest of six children of John and Mary Engelking. The Engelking children were orphaned when Phillip was only 9, and, with the help of kind neighbors, he and his younger brothers and sisters remained in the farm home and attended the country school.

AS A VERY YOUNG man, Phillip worked on neighboring farms and attended St. John's Lutheran Church on Milwaukee Avenue on the outskirts of Arlington Heights. He was also in service in World War I and recalls that the Paddock paper was sent free of charge to all the town's servicemen. "It was half in German and half in English," Phillip remembers. A past commander of the Arlington Heights American Legion Post, Phillip is also a golden member of the post.

Before the war, Phillip studied mechanics at Greer College in Chicago and it was while riding the North Western Railway home from classes that he was introduced to Elsie. Elsie had studied at St. Peter School in Arlington Heights and worked for the North Western in Chicago.

Phillip and Elsie were married April 10, 1920 in Pastor Noack's home. "There was no such thing as a honeymoon," recalls Phillip, who was then a full-fledged mechanic with Wetterman Ford, located on the former blacksmith property.

The Engelkings are also long-time

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Engelking

ty next door to the original Paddock office on Davis Street in Arlington Heights.

OF COURSE THE newlyweds boasted a Model T from Wetterman's. Phillip was also employed later by Lattof Motors, and after seven years there he became associated with John F. Garlich & Sons. After 28 years with Garlich, he retired.

Phillip now spends his time "puttering" in the home and garden while Elsie includes embroidery among her hobbies. Both enjoy the many flowers that Phillip raises.

All were at the anniversary party at the Arlington Heights VFW Home yesterday when 75 relatives and guests greeted Phillip and Elsie.

A Busy Night for Juniors

Tonight is the time for the changing of the guard for Rolling Meadows Junior Woman's Club. An election of officers heads the agenda for the 8:30 p.m. meeting in Rolling Meadows Firehall.

The nominated slate includes Mrs. Stanley Shearer, presidential candidate; Mrs. Lawrence Kellerman and Mrs. Rudolph Schneider for first vice president. Mrs. Ronald Hodor and Mrs. Howard Wurster, recording secretary. Those elected will serve a two-year term on the executive board.

The installation will be held next month at the official ending of the Juniors' club year.

TONIGHT'S MEETING will involve a review of final preparations for the Juniors' service auction to be held Thursday at 8 p.m. in Trinity Lutheran Church. An evening called "Potpourri" includes a service auction, penny social, cards and refreshments. Admission is free.

The Juniors will also discuss plans for their float entry in the city's annual Memorial Day Parade.

Guest speaker Ron Johnson will discuss a relatively new medical procedure of administering low-level radio-active materials which result in a higher diagnostic reliability in detecting organ functions. He will explain what radiation has done for mankind.

Those interested in learning more about the Juniors may contact Mrs. Lawrence Kellerman, 392-7571.

Suits Slim Men

The long coat, off the lapel, along with a little squaring of the shoulders for a touch of today's smartest clothing models will definitely cut down the bulky look of a heavy coat. There are changes in the fashion trail of spring suits such as deeper center vents, lower side vents, merely wide lapels and wider pocket flaps.

When The Windsor?

A Windsor knot, especially if made with a wide tie, is best worn with a spread collar shirt. It does not look well with a button-down or pinned collar.

Art and Music For St. James

John Mosiman Algonquin artist will present his "Musical Paintings" program for St. James Catholic Women's Club Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the school basement, Arlington Heights.

Mosiman's program combines art and music with appropriate lighting. He developed this form while art director for a radio-TV station in Ecuador. He presented it in seven Latin American countries over a 10-year period before returning to the United States in 1966.

Since his return he has been giving this program for clubs, churches, schools and other groups in the Chicago area.

Paintings to be featured in his program tomorrow night include "Climb Every Mountain," "Clair de Lune" and "Granada." The program was arranged by Mrs. Duane Kroll, program chairman, and her co-chairman, Mrs. Thomas Burke.

Election of officers is also on the agenda.

Newcomers Think Spring and Golf

Ole Man Winter may still be with us, but Palatine Newcomers are thinking spring. Since spring means golf to many of them, the club invites all interested newcomers to join the club members Thursday evening at the Buffalo Grove Country Club to hear Alan Griffith, golf pro, give tips on good golfing. A film of a recent tournament will also be included. Husbands are invited to join the women for the program which will be held at 8 in the Winston Park School, 960 E. Palatine Road.

DISCUSSING TABLE settings for Guild Players' approaching dinner dance are Mrs. Peter Ventura, Mrs. Edmund Ostos, and Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Parent. ## The Way We See It

Teens Tackle Trash

Spring's thaw brings many things besides relief, joy, good will, ice-free streets and flowers.

It brings, among the other things, litter.

When the last of the snow fades away, it lays bare in our towns the residue of winter's neglect. Along streets, in alleys and parking lots, on lawns, on park grounds and sidewalks, the remnants of conscious and unconscious littering lie scattered in offensive array.

It's not much to look at, the panorama of discarded cans, bottles, license plates, paper, wood, mufflers, home appliances, and assorted other scraps and trash.

It's part of the pollution problem that doesn't get much attention or publicity, however unappealing it may be. Residents generally don't seem to get stirred up about it, perhaps because they're so much responsible for it.

The prevailing attitude is that it's a time for public works crews to perform, to get the trucks out and scour the community to pick up our tumble.

But there's another way as well, and a number of communities —

Hoffman Estates included — are trying it.

Local teens are being encouraged to roll up their sleeves and dig into the problem themselves, helping rid their communities of unsightly debris with a little physical labor.

The most impressive example has been in Rockford, where 125 students from Harlem High School organized themselves into a group called SCRAP (Students Constructive Revolt Against Pollution).

They didn't like the look of the area in their neighborhood, so they teamed up on a garbage hunt. In one afternoon alone, they picked up four truckloads of junk in one park area.

The Hoffman Estates project — touched off by the convincing complaint of a resident to village leaders — didn't generate quite the same enthusiasm. But when the superintendent of streets and the park district director did get the program going, they came up with 16 teens — two girls included — who cared enough about their town to spruce it up. They spent their Easter break from Conant and St.

Viator high schools combing the community for litter.

Those 16 are to be commended, and so is the whole idea of getting teen volunteer corps to fan out in their towns to give them a spring facelifting.

It's a most constructive form of community involvement, a way for young people to show that they do care, and that they care enough to get their hands dirty.

The towns are theirs, too, and even in this little way they can do their part to make them better places to live.

We think all our communities are missing a bet if they don't try the same tactic, especially in the spring when litter is such a widespread nuisance. They can get a big and a messy job done quickly and efficiently, and at the same time implant a special feeling of productivity among all the helping hands.

We all have a stake in it, as one Rockford Harlem youngster observed, when he said, "The stuff we were picking up wasn't dumped there by industry. It was dumped there by people."

It Was Haunting Reality

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Are there really haunted houses? I think so. At least, it is something that shouldn't be passed off very lightly. It's certainly not a passing fad, nor anything very new.

I really didn't know what to expect one recent evening when I tagged along with Mrs. Richard Broman. She's a woman who is able to serve as a medium, is able to see auras and give readings under the category of public service and not business, which means she's not in it for money.

Carol is not a figment of our times. Rather the times have finally caught up with Carol.

Anyway, we were on our way to what

by all popular definitions was an honest-to-goodness haunted house, a house in which a young housewife could hear someone climb the basement stairs and the piercing cries of an unhappy frightened child which even a turned up stereo could not drown out. Household articles began to disappear or be wildly misplaced.

AT FIRST IT SCARED the woman. Like all rational creatures, she refused to believe there was something within the house in addition to her husband and child. Today she will gladly tell you, "I will believe anything. Everyone does once they experience it for themselves."

There is a long story involved which Carol was gradually able to piece together... how a crippled retarded man had starved to death years ago on the property, having always been confined to the basement of his home... how a little girl decades ago had inadvertently been beaten to death by her stepmother... how the poor tormented woman herself, feeling a tremendous burden of guilt, had been unable to be released from her present existence and so also haunted the premises.

The characters only serve as backdrops. What is important is what happened, what I think happened, what I believe happened, because naturally nothing can be proven. Those strictly living by science would be sorely disappointed. I'm not and I wasn't.

THE SEVEN OF US gathered in one small room and Carol, acting as medium, contacted the unhappy woman who felt persecuted by those around her. The rest of us prayed.

The room was dark and small and maybe it was only my imagination, a desire to really experience something so I could convince myself yes, this all was actually happening. I don't think so. I felt a general feeling of oppressiveness, and my body was continually racked with waves of chills, even though under normal conditions, the confined room would have been stifling and sent us all out gasping for air.

To use layman's terms, we were successful. The home was "dehaunted." We were able to relieve the woman of her guilt, reunite her with her child and thus release them from their bondage to the property.

And the lonely little man? He followed along like a puppy dog. You see, he had made friends with the little girl, possibly the only friend he had ever had.

I DIDN'T actually see the woman or even hear the voices. I only heard Carol. Even my eerie feeling can be explained away. And the missing articles? Well, that's a little harder to explain, but someone will.

So, I almost expect people to laugh at me when I relate the experience. I don't even bore them with additional details unless they are interested.

But in the same respect, those same unbelievers will never convince me that the whole thing was merely a creation of all our imaginations. We who live strictly within our five senses have no right to knock or judge anything we think we can't try or experience.

Bad Driving Blooms in the Spring

LINDA VACHATA

It's spring again. And with the warmer weather and longer daylight hours, both motorists and non-motorists will be taking to the streets with caution thrown to the wind.

It is about this time every year — when the first faint breaths of spring are revived — that motorists begin to roll down their windows, pull back their convertible tops and zoom around town.

I am one of the prime offenders who takes spring to heart while driving. With my windows rolled down and my radio blaring, I tend to lose my thoughts in happy spring days and forget about cautious driving.

I DON'T CONSIDER myself a reckless driver and neither do the people who ride with me. However, there is something about spring that tends to spread a trance over me and keeps me from serious thinking.

I become bored with the same scenery day after day, so I allow my mind to wander to keep me occupied. You would think that maneuvering a 3,000 pound hunk of steel down the highway would be enough to keep anybody occupied, but with all the added little extras on cars these days (like power steering, power brakes, automatic shift) driving can become tedious and downright boring.

While driving through Bensenville one night last week, I witnessed one man run a stop sign, a woman passing in a no passing zone and another man pull out from a side street without looking. This did not occur over a long period of time. It happened in the time it took me to drive down York Road from Grand Avenue to Irving Park Road.

THESE CARELESS incidents were reminiscent of the old films for simulated driver education where every 10 seconds either a car would pull out in front of you or some person would come tripping out into the street. However, these incidents were no films from simulated driver training. They were the real thing.

Later that week I found myself in the same predicament as the other careless drivers. I ran through a stop light. I did it innocently enough; I just did not see the light.

How innocent would it have been if I had plowed into an oncoming vehicle and killed the driver?

I cannot emphasize enough the need for motorists to drive carefully, attentively and defensively.

There are times when I could swear I must be a prime contender for a gold cup in the Daytona 500 while I was driving down Route 83. Other drivers raced to pass me or cut in front of me like I wasn't really there at all.

EVERY DAY I get out on the road in my little hunk of metal and glass and play a weird game called "gotcha." The idea of the game is to make sure other drivers don't "getcha."

I am not trying to make a joke out of careless, indifferent drivers. I am only attempting to point out how ridiculous and how dangerous this kind of driving can be. It takes just one lost moment in driving, just one slip at the wheel to cause a fatal accident.

While driving I like to think of a commercial by the American Safety Association. The film shows a tragic accident scene. As the camera pans the broken glass and twisted metal, the narrator says "This driver was in the right — dead right."

Roselle Perspective

Library in Dire Need of Friends

by GINNY KUCMIERZ

Friendless and poor at 30 — that doesn't sound like too much of a success story. Unfortunately, it's the fate of the Roselle Public Library.

The library is feeling the pinch, or rather the crush of inflation. Last summer it lost a librarian to another community which paid her more, and then last fall the library cut its hours from 33 a week to 25.

The library doesn't have a huge deficit to substantiate its claims that it is out of money, because, in fact, it really isn't out of money. But it does need more.

AS GEORGE HALL, a director of the Roselle Library board, said at a recent board meeting, "The only reason we're in the black is because of canny management and cutting services," and thus, he added, was "cheating the people."

William Myers has also expressed his concern about the library's mini-budget, which is expected to serve an expanding community. He appeared before the village board to see if funds were available from the state income tax allotted to Roselle, but was unsuccessful in securing any extra funds.

The library operates on a 12 mill levy. That means the board taxes each village homeowner $1.20 for every $10,000 of assessed valuation. Last year the library's budget was $29,000 plus, and this year the library will run on a budget of $29,822.

Operating with limited funds wouldn't be so bad, but being friendless is just too much for any library to take, especially when it had friends and lost them.

NINETEEN YEARS ago the library wasn't friendless. There was an active stimulating group of women who established the Roselle Friends of the Library to promote and assist the library programs to aid it financially.

Children's reading hours were organized, meetings were well-attended and the staff was increased by volunteer workers while the Friends lasted.

And they lasted until a year and a half ago, when the group just died out of existence like an old textbook.

Mrs. Maxine Mess doesn't know why the group lagged but she suggests there are just too many other things to do and people just don't have time.

Service organizations like the Friends are always struggling for members. The PTA keeps going, Mrs. Mess says, "because there are always a new batch of first graders and parents."

If a library is "a measure of the quality of a community," as Mrs. Mess says, Roselle's pressed-for-time-citizens better re-evaluate its purposes.

The Fence Post

Academy: 'Theory Great'

I've read, with quite some interest, the various pros and cons which have been appearing in the Herald as to the relevancy of the Sidewalk Academy, and of the contributions to understanding, if any, made by the people who had the platform.

I attended only two sessions. I heard some veiled, and some not-so-veiled, threats to white society by the president of Malcolm X College and a Black Panther.

Also, I heard some amazing accusations and pontifications by a black policeman, plus a very simplistic and impractical recitation by a white priest.

MY LIMITED observation is that there was much emotional rhetoric but nothing of substance offered by anyone, either by the speakers or by the questioning audience.

I agree with those who believe that such a forum should be provided for those with a grievance against society. (And the black man certainly has some grievances.) The beleaguered old establishment must make this provision if for no other reason than to preserve its own integrity.

But as happens all too often (and as happened at the Sidewalk Academy) the people whom we had express their views were extremists with no practical solutions to offer. They seemed to be armed only with threats and much abuse for the establishment, plus some self-serving purposes neatly wrapped-up in extremely shallow social, political, and economic philosophy.

I'm sure Clyde Brooks had the best intentions in promoting the academy. But I'm afraid that its contribution to understanding, because of the speakers chosen, was negligible. I'm also afraid, however, that it may have succeeded in doing what many of the speakers wanted to do: exploit the emotions and immaturity of the idealistic young. I saw some evidence of this.

The theory of the Sidewalk Academy is great. It could probably be effective, too, if concerned rational people became platform participants.

European Sales Are Up in Arms

BUENOS AIRES (UPI) — British missile frigates for Argentina, French supersonic jet fighters for Peru, West German mine sweepers for Brazil.

European arms dealers are selling their wares to Latin America in increasing quantities and they have the United States to thank.

The U.S. reluctance to sell advanced weapons south of the border along with Latin fears of American strings attached to arms purchases have opened the door for Europeans to move in and set up shop.

Argentina is a case in point. The army decided in the 1960s it was time to replace some of its 200 American-built Sherman tanks of World War II vintage.

The generals handed Washington a shopping list for 60 M41 Walker Bulldogs, but were turned down because the U.S. reaction to the 1966 military coup which brought President Juan Carlos Onganía to power.

The army eventually wound up filling the order with French AMX 13 tanks under a contract which provides for partial manufacture in Argentina. The first of the tanks began arriving at Buenos Aires in 1969.

U.S. arms policy since the early '60s — enunciated in a bodgepodge of 15 congressional amendments — has aimed at avoiding an arms race by keeping "sophisticated" weapons out of developing countries except when important to America's security.

by LESTER KINSOLVING

If a current and growing "Draft Danforth" movement reaches its ultimate goal, the United States Senate may soon have its first priest-senator.

The Rev. John C. Danforth, an Episcopal priest with enough theological competence to write for the magazine Theology Today, is also addressed as "The Hon. John Danforth" — since he is Attorney General of the State of Missouri.

Tall, trim and craggy handsome, the 33-year-old Attorney General is the first Republican state office holder in more than 22 years — and has been called to Washington, where President Nixon, among other high-ranking GOPs, has asked him to run against his fellow Episcopalian, Senator Stuart Symington.

Danforth is thus far noncommittal, but is enjoying considerable attention. He is well-equipped with an essential ingredient of both politics and the priesthood: a sense of humor.

When, for instance, any suggestion is made that his priestly office might conflict with the religious impartiality essential in any public official, he replies:

"I AM IN A GREAT tradition running from the Rev. Adam Clayton Powell to Cardinal Richelieu!"

The Rev. Mr. Danforth could add either Cardinal Wolsey or Rasputin, Czarist Russia's "mad monk" to illustrate that a number of history's priest-politicans were notorious. On the other hand, their political ability is unquestioned — and there have been highly admirable clergy statesmen, from Moses to Archbishop Makarios (at least from the standpoint of Greek Cypriots).

The U.S. Constitution, in barring any religious test — or prohibition — for public office, certainly guarantees the right of clergy to run for election.

Danforth has hardly shown any favoritism to his own denomination — or even to clergy in general. He enforced Missouri's Constitutional prohibition against money being paid for religious services by ruling against pay for a jail chaplaincy in Jackson County.

If he is elected to the Senate (despite Senator Symington's awesome ability to roll up votes) he may well find as many as seven clergy in the other house.

THE VERY REV. Robert J. Drinan, S.J., on leave from his past as Dean of Boston College of Law School, has announced his candidacy for the House of Representatives from Massachusetts. As one of the Jesuit order's most brilliant minds, Father Drinan has attracted national attention because he has urged Catholics to reduce their opposition to the liberalization of abortion laws. And while he does not favor unlimited abortion, his stance is a manifestation of ideal enunciated by Boston's Archbishop, Richard Cardinal Cushing, regarding anti-contraceptive laws: "Catholics do not need the force of civil law to remain faithful to their own convictions — nor do they seek by law to impose these convictions upon others."

Other clergy candidates for Congress include Brooklyn's Missouri Synod Lutheran pastor Richard Neuhaus; Father Joseph Lucas, professor at Youngstown State University in Ohio and the Rev. Andrew Young, an Atlanta Baptist.

THE HOUSE HAS two ordained clergy besides the Rev. Adam Clayton Powell, who are expected to seek reelection: Alabama Republican John Buchanan (Southern Baptist) and Wisconsin Republican Henry Schodeburg, a Congregationalist.

And in Connecticut, a United Church of Christ minister, the Rev. Joseph Duffey of Hartford, has entered the race against incumbent Senator Thomas Dodd.

The clergy-in-politics movement extends to state and municipal offices, such as the Rev. Robert North (Episcopalian) a Minnesota state legislator, who is running for Mayor of St. Paul.

One of the most incisive rationales for this movement comes from San Francisco's City Hall which, from the number of clergy employed therein, is beginning to look like an ecumenical council (two Presbyterians, two Catholics, one Baptist and one Episcopalian).

Presbyterian John Shellenberger, Jr., explains what he calls "another direction for the Christian ministry." As administrative assistant to San Francisco Supervisor Ronald Pelosi, he recalls:

"There was a great thrust in Seminary on the relevance of the Christian Faith to social problems. Seminary reinforced that zeal, but didn't give us the tools to work with. Many of us found ourselves attempting to be relevant to social issues, but unable to pull it off in the traditional church structures." (Copyright Chronicle Publishing Company 1970)

The Lighter Side Economic Utopia Near?

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In the 6 per cent pay raise that President Nixon has asked Congress to approve for postal workers and other federal employees, I think I caught a glimpse of economic Utopia.

It is estimated that the increase would cost about $2.6 billion. And how does Nixon propose to lay hands on that sum?

Well, part of the money, according to figures compiled by the White House, would come from the government workers themselves.

About six million of them would receive more income and as a consequence would pay an additional $180 million in income taxes.

In other words, by my calculation, the government workers would be paying for about 9-10ths of their own pay raise.

Do you see the beauty of this? Do you see how it moves our country closer to the best of all possible worlds, economically speaking?

Very well, then, I shall spell it out for you.

If our system of taxation can cause a group of workers to pay for 9-10ths of their own pay raise, and if taxes continue to rise, as taxes invariably do, then these workers eventually will reach the point where they will be paying for 100 per cent of their pay raises.

Is that not an exciting prospect? A pay raise for the workers financed entirely by the workers.

When that day comes, the workers truly will be lifting themselves up by their own bootstraps.

And this is by no means the only wonder that can be wrought through our system of taxation.

Once the government workers are paying for their own pay raises, the next goal should be to make the government completely self-supporting.

By that I mean that all of the expenses of the government would be borne by the people who work for the government. This would put us in the suburbs of Utopia, but we still would be short of the millennium.

As our final step, we must find some way to apply the principles of governmental financing to the private sector of the economy.

The way things now stand, we non-governmental workers must turn to our employers when we are seeking pay raises. What a boon to labor-management relations it would be if we had some means of paying for our own wage increases.

Offhand, I can't think of any way to swing it. But perhaps the Internal Revenue Service can work something out.

Lancers Drop Two on Day More Suited to Football

by PHIL KURTH

Lake Park and Barrington put on a remarkable display of baseball under almost impossible conditions Saturday morning, and then the umpires exercised a remarkable lack of judgment in turning the whole thing into a travesty.

In the end, the Bronchos walked off with a doubleheader victory but the absurdity of the second game only detracted from the glitter of the first.

Played with a brittle chill in the air, the first game was reeled off in less than an hour and a half with Barrington thwarting two late rallies by the Lancers to eke out a 2-1 triumph.

Lake Park outlit the hosts 6-1, but the Bronchos executed two double plays in behalf of southpaw Mike Duhaime while Tom Stuckey was victimized by an early unearned run that in the end proved decisive.

Both clubs looked sharp, though, in a fine exhibition of high school baseball.

Then came game two and the artistry of the opener was frozen in memory of what seemed like the distant past.

Instead of getting warmer, as the weathermen had promised, the day got colder. And the sun, which had peeked through earlier, hid behind a dismal cloud cover. And sleet ripped relentlessly across the field, interspersed with a cold, cold rain.

In their wisdom, the umpires decided that this was not exactly ideal weather for baseball. So after a consultation they decided not to go ahead with the scheduled seven-inning game — they would only play five.

This would make it an official game, of course, which was apparently of consummate importance to someone, although it certainly wasn't the players or the few fans on hand.

By the fifth inning, hands were too numb to hold the ball even if the spirit was willing. Lake Park committed four consecutive errors — one at third, one at short, one by the pitcher, and one at first — that helped Barrington erupt for a six-run inning and a 9-4 victory that meant almost nothing.

When you're seriously contemplating remedies for frost-bite, the score of the game seems rather insignificant.

Unfortunately, both losses count for Lake Park and it evened the Lancer's season record at 2-2.

Gunning for their third in a row in game one, the Lancers took an early lead on Faust DeLazzer's second-inning double and a single by Ted Brinkman but they gave it right back on a throwing error and Gary Bradley's base hit.

Stuckey and Duhaime then battled evenly through three rounds though the Bronchos needed a little luck to keep the Lancers from scoring again.

Leading off the fourth, DeLazzer rapped one off the third baseman's glove and Bill Natale laid down a bunt that was booted at third but the home-plate umpire ruled Natale out for stepping on the plate as he bunted. Brinkman followed with a solid smash to left for a hit but the inning ended without damage for Barrington as Duhaime retired the next two batters.

A lead-off walk to Jim Shriver in the fifth gave the visitors another start, but John Mikes rapped a hard shot to third that was turned into a double play.

The Bronchos finally snapped the tie in the sixth as Jonas Mata singled, Steve Clawson sacrificed, and Clisby Jarrard drove in the run with a solid hit to right.

Lake Park battled back in the top of the seventh, but Duhaime picked off a pinch-runner at first and two subsequent errors in the Broncho infield proved harmless as the tying and leading runs were stranded in scoring position.

Barrington jumped to the lead in game two with Jarrard and Mike Rossellian pairing hits with two out in the first to put the hosts on top 1-0.

The Lancers touched Clayton Bond for the tying run in the second.

DeLazzer walked, Brinkman reached on an error, and with two out pitcher Bob Malenius rapped a single to center to send DeLazzer home. When the throw

First Loss Follows Rout

Even in defeat, Addison Trail coach Phil Valaika was a pretty happy man.

Following Saturday's 3-2 extra-inning loss to York, the Blazers' first defeat after two victories, Valaika noted: "You never like to lose, but at this stage of the season I'm not that interested in trying to achieve a tremendous win-loss record."

"This is still like the exhibition season and I'm trying to use as many kids as possible to find out which ones can stick with the varsity."

"I have several young boys up from the lower levels, including five pitchers that I have to make a decision on before the first league game."

"In this game I brought in a sophomore pitcher, George Noguera, in the seventh and then a freshman, Al Lieb."

"Bob Landrum and Erwin Csuk had pitched well through the first six innings and had I merely been interested in winning, I'm confident we could have done the job."

"I'm really very optimistic and very pleased so far. We've looked real sharp in the field — picked a man off second and executed a nice double play — and we've come up with some good hitting."

The Blazers came from behind twice to tie York and almost did it a third time in the bottom of the ninth but a lead-off triple by Bob Paulsen was wasted.

A single, a balk, a wild pitch, and an error by Landrum who tried to pick a man off first gave York a run in the first, their only run until the eighth.

An infield hit by Tim Dorgan sent Al Rabe across the plate in the third, and the 1-1 deadlock stood through regulation play.

In the eighth, a single by York pitcher Suominen drove in the go-ahead run. But Dorgan singled and Dean Vaccarino drove him in with a two-bagger to knot the count again.

The Dukes broke on top in the ninth on a walk and an error, and this time they held on despite the lead-off triple by Paulsen.

Saturday's hard-fought battle for Addison followed a 22-1 laughter Thursday over Fenton.

John Baffa (who hurled the first four rounds and struck out four) and Al Lieb combined to hold Fenton to three hits while Bill Bonner was raked for 11 hits and victimized by eight errors.

A 13-run third, which included a single by Dorgan, doubles by Vaccarino, Hank DeAngelis and Kelly, and a triple by Kriske built an 8-0 Addison lead into a whopping 21-0 margin.

The Blazers had scored three in the first without a hit. The burst included walks to Dorgan and Vaccarino, a passed ball and two errors.

Addison paraded five more men across the plate in the second.

Dorgan and Rabe walked, Dorgan with the bases loaded, Mike Chapman singled in a run, Vaccarino drove in two more with a single, and DeAngelis belted a sacrifice fly.

Bob Paulsen singled and eventually came around on a steal and an infield out to make it 22-0 in the fourth before the Bisons scored their first run of the season in the fifth on walks to Tom Finn and Bonner and a single by Mark Seggeling.

A Tie Can Look Good

by PHIL KURTH

Relax, Fenton fans.

Those first two games were just a nightmare or an illusion, or a macabre joke. Thursday, on a frigid day more fit for football, the Bisons proved they really can play baseball.

They didn't win, but they didn't lose either. And after 19-0 and 22-1 defeats, a 2-2 standoff is a moral triumph, particularly when it's achieved in a two-run rally in the final inning.

To make it all the more dramatic, the tying run came across the plate with two outs on a steal of home.

Bob Murphy was the daring young man of the basepath.

Bill Staciak led off the bottom of the sixth (the game was called after six) with a walk. He stole second and went to third as Frank Spillone fanned and had to be thrown out. With a 0-2 count, Murphy looped a hit to right to cut the Geneva lead in half.

Murphy promptly swiped second and took third on a tap-out to the mound. Then, with Ron Frisbee in the batter's box, Murphy broke for the plate. Geneva hurler Warren Larson kept his cool and proceeded with his wind-up as the tying run streaked for home. Larsen's pitch and Murphy both reached the plate at the same time and as the runner slid in and Keith Caryell applied the tag, the umpire's thumb jerked in the air.

Bison manager Jim Monahan had just leaped off the bench, to protest the call when the umpire, seeing the ball in the dirt, altered his verdict and flashed the safe sign.

And it was probably right that this game should end in a tie, for both teams played well on a day of red noses and numb fingers. Both squads got good pitching, both gunned down runners at the plate, and both were enthusiastic in pursuit of the victory.

At the start it was Mike Fonseca for Fenton opposing Dave Diem for Geneva.

And while Fonseca had the edge in effectiveness through five innings, Geneva had the run.

After pitching out of a bases-loaded jam in the first created by a pair of hit-batters and an error, Fonseca ran into trouble not of his own making in the third.

Bob Babinsack led off by reaching second on a throwing error by the shortstop. Two outs later Babinsack stole third and continued home when the throw skipped into short left field.

The Bisons appeared certain to tie it in their half of the inning, but a great throw by Dave Renner nailed a runner at the plate.

The inning started with Fonseca drill-walking one, as Elk Grove held Fenton hitless over the last five innings.

Elk Grove coach Larry Peddy had praise for Hilderbrand, who is just recovering from a bout with mononucleosis. "We're getting him in shape as fast as possible by putting him right into ball games, and he did a real fine job today," Peddy said.

It was a frustrating game for Elk Grove, but Peddy was pleased with his team's overall performance and is sure they will bounce back.

"We were really tagging the ball today, but always right at somebody," Peddy lamented. "That doesn't make up for only scoring one run, but we had them in trouble about half the game."

Mike Losch experienced the epitome of Elk Grove's anguish, having the best 0-for-four day you'll ever see. All Losch did in being blanked was hammer three hard shots, two of which Peddy estimated went about 350 feet apiece. Both of them, helped along by the wind, were caught because Elk Grove's outfield fence is not yet up. "That fence will be up Monday," Peddy promised.

Fenton got all its runs in the first three innings and all its hits in the first two, but Papke made the lead stand up.

Armando Palacios immediately gave the Bisons a lift by leading off the game with a home run. It was a solid poke, also helped by the wind blowing out to left field.

Fenton added two more runs in the second on its last three hits before Hilderbrand settled down. Bill Murphy singled and stole second. After a strikeout, Gary Tett singled and he and Murphy executed a double steal, Murphy scoring. Frank Spillone then drove in the third run with a base hit.

The Bisons added a run in the third on two errors. Mike Fonseca reached base on the first, stole second, took third on an overthrow and came in on Bob Wisniewski's sacrifice fly.

Dave Ristau was two-for-four for Elk Grove and catcher Neil Noga rapped a double, but the timely hits just didn't come.

The Grenadiers averted a shutout and came within a whisker of tying the game in the bottom of the seventh, after two outs with nobody on base.

Nick Adams singled, went to second on an error, and was driven in on Ristau's base hit. Kevin Chesney also hit safely to put two men on and Losch followed with a mighty blast to left which seemed certain to be a game-tying homer.

But Palacios made a spectacular, over-the-shoulder catch to save the game for Fenton. He thus wore the hero's mantle in fielding as well as hitting for the Bisons — who have indeed come a long way in a short time.

'Almost' for Lancers

"We had a real barn-burner."

That was the way Lake Park track coach Frank Ashenhurst spoke of the triangular meet Thursday between the Lancers, the Mustangs of Mundelein, and the Knights of West Leyden.

Heading into the final event the mile relay, the score stood: Mundelein 51, West Leyden 50, Lake Park 49. "I thought we had a pretty good chance," says Ashenhurst. But it wasn't to be for the Lancers. Leyden won the race and edged Mundelein 55-54 while the Lancers finished third in the race and the meet with 49 points.

Speedster Norb Schaeffer flashed home with two victories, winning the 100 in 10.4 and the 220 in 24.5. Mike Goldman took long jump honors for Lake Park with an effort of 20-4 and Randy Hoff topped the field in the pole vault with a jump of 10-6.

Another 6-5 Win!

It was kind of fun, so they thought they'd try it again.

The Lancers of Lake Park, who edged past East Leyden 6-5 in a pulse-pounding Wednesday, came right back Thursday with another 6-5 victory, this time over Glenbard North.

And this time they had to rally from a 3-0 deficit to do it.

A two-run homer by Tom Pauling in the first and a solo shot by Terry Horan in the third staked Glenbard and Joe Barnas to a three-run lead over the Lancers and Bill Natale.

But Natale settled down to silence the Panthers, except for a two-run burst in the sixth, and his teammates came to life in the third and fourth, exploding for six runs.

John Mikes started a three-run third with a walk. One out later Dave Falkenberg rifled a single to left and Faust DeLazzer crashed a line-drive home run down the left field line.

In the fourth, Bob Malenius reached on an error. With one out, Mikes grounded to short but the throw to second sailed into right field and the runners reached second and third. Sal Dalo rapped a single to center scoring two runs and after Falkenberg walked, DeLazzer doubled to left center to send Dalo home.

That was all the margin Natale needed as the Lancers ran their season record to 2-0.

Conant Netmen in 3-2 Win

With a stiff wind playing a big part and causing adjustments and careful play, Conant's tennis team opened its season with a tense 3-2 win over visiting Addison Trail Thursday.

"The boys were really excited about it and it's great to win the first meet," enthused Conant coach Dave Alex.

Conant opened with close, two-set wins in the first two singles spots. No. 1 man Rick Reis defeated Bill Fredericks of Addison 6-1, 9-7, and No. 2 man Martin Oliff won a nip-and-tuck 6-4 set before finishing off his opponent, Ken Skopek, 6-2.

Ken Dirner got a point for Addison by winning the No. 3 singles contest, 6-3, 6-8, 6-4 over Steve Cohen, whom Alex praised as making "a good comeback" in the second set.

Addison's No. 1 doubles team, Pete Chen and Mike Wolinski (both of whom were singles players last year) defeated two Conant sophomores, 6-0, 7-5. Alex was glad his young duo made this one close, saying, "This is their first year playing varsity and being sophomores, I feel they have a fine future."

With the outcome riding on the No. 2 doubles match and everyone looking on anxiously, Mark Cornett and Larry Linne came through for Conant with a tight 7-5, 6-4 win over Chuck Bean and Tom Bernison.

Addison Trail visits Forest View Monday, while Conant has three road meets scheduled this week — at Fenton Tuesday, Glenbard North Thursday and Lake Park Friday.

That, as it turned out, would have been the winning run. It never scored, and the Bisons earned what has to be the most satisfying tie in many a season in Bensenville.

to the plate skipped away from the catcher. Brinkman raced for home but he was ruled as the ball was stopped by the fence running along the third base line and Bob Harrel threw to Ron to nip Brinkman.

An error and a single by Mark Heinemann pushed the Bronchos in front 2-1 in the third, and again the Lancers threatened to charge back but were thwarted by the host.

A walk and an error put two men on with nobody out in the Lake Park third with number two batter Sal Dato at the plate.

Dato ripped a smash toward short that could easily have gone through but it took the chest-high bounce right into Heinemann's hands and he turned it into a double play.

Harmon added a run in the fourth and then broke it open with six in the fifth before Lake Park finally put some hits together — singles by Dave Falkenberg, Delazzer and Natale — to score three runs in the bottom of the inning.

When the final Lancer was retired in the fifth, the umpires immediately called a halt to the proceedings and ended one of the most chilling diamond stories of

The Bowling Proprietors' Association of America, sponsor of the 29th annual All Star bowling tournament, was organized in 1932 at a charter meeting in Detroit with proprietor representatives from 11 cities in five states participating. BPAA is now one of 12,000 trade associations in the United States representing nearly every phase of business, commerce and industry in the national and international economy.

Iron Men of NBA

The most consecutive games ever played in the National Basketball Association is 917 by John (Red) Kerr, with Philadelphia and Baltimore between Oct. 31, 1954 and Nov. 4, 1965. The most minutes ever played in a season was 3,862 by Wilt Chamberlain for Philadelphia in 1961-62.

Addison Defeats Grove on Links

Addison 11 and defending champs of the Des Plaines Valley League, finally got their season underway Thursday, topping the Greenhorns of Elk Grove 127-190.

Best score in the meet was posted by Blazer Mike Bozek with a 43. Other Addison scorers were Mike Krage with a 45, Paul Levin 46 and Rich Capps 50. Jim Trubbe clocked in with a 52.

For Elk Grove, Marius Kessler led the way with 16 followed by Larry Nelson and Jim Cooney 17, Curt Hedjuk and John Elspas 30, Bob DeHaven 53, and John Rindl 60.

The Blazers, with all six lettermen back from last year's varsity squad, figure to be a formidable opponent for any school this year.

Two of Addison's best performers, sophomores Jim Lockelson and Rich Janas, helped the Blazers triumph 194-208 in the frosh-soph meet.

Lockelson figures to be the number one or two man for Addison's varsity squad this year with Janas number three or four. Last season, as freshmen, Lockelson averaged 41 and Janas 32 in varsity competition. Only Krage with a 40.7, topped the two underclassmen.

Other returning lettermen for Addison are Steve Stewart and Curt Geen.

Winning eight individual events and the mile relay, the Bisons of Fenton opened their dual track meet season Thursday with a resounding 78-39 victory over visiting Immaculate Conception.

The Bisons' top point-getter a year ago, Ken Hartmann, was the big man again winning three events and finishing second in a fourth.

Ken took honors in the 220 (24.9), the long jump (18-1 1/2), and the high jump (3-6 1/2) and was a runner-up in high hurdles.

"You can almost bet on him to place in every event he goes," says Fenton track coach John Kurtz. "He's that kind of a competitor. You can count on him for nine or 10 points every meet. He led the team in scoring last year with over 80 points, and he got 18 in this meet alone."

"We have five kids on this team who are going to give us a lot of first places — Hartmann, Bob Lemaire, Rick Kupronis, Don Cawley and Dave King."

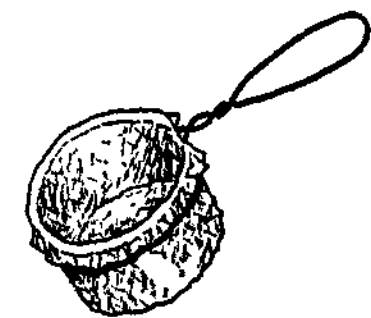

"All of these guys are seniors who have been competing for three or four years."

"Our problem this year, as it was last, is a lack of numbers. We have twice as many out for the frosh-soph team as we do for the varsity."

Golf Trip or Two At Exhibit Hall

Linksmen of the area will be heading for the Grandstand Exhibit Hall of the Arlington Park Race Track next Saturday and Sunday, April 18-19, for the ninth annual Chicago Golf Show and a tip or two on improving their game from Sam Smed and other pros.

Instruction will be stressed with the secondary Smed heading the twice daily stage clinics and a number of Illinois PGA members, sponsors of the show, contributing their services in driving nets and on putting greens distributed throughout the exposition area.

A major feature will be a 100-yard fairway with show visitors competing in a contest driving from just outside the exhibit hall towards a hole set in a green in the infield. This and other participation events throughout the show for awards carry no fee to try. At stake will be golf equipment and even free vacations at leading distant golf spas.

For the first time the show will have a large Golf Travel section with a number of resorts represented and furnishing information on attractive vacation packages. The dozens of exhibits will include nearly all of the manufacturers of golf equipment available in pro shops. Show hours will be noon to 11 p.m. on the 18th and noon to 9 p.m. the following day.

York Tops Lancers in Tennis Curtain-Raiser

It wasn't a great beginning, but it wasn't all that discouraging either.

Following Tuesday's 3 1/2-1 1/2 loss to York on the winner's court, Lake Park coach Dan Hildebrandt shrugged and said: "It's an opener — what else can you say."

"I hope we do better in the next meet, but I think all the boys played pretty well for their first match of the season. We lost eight of our top twelve from last year, but I have been really pleased with the attitude and desire of these guys coming up."

Only winner for the Lancers was John Fridlund who defeated Dave Patterson 6-4, 6-4 in number three singles. Eric Udd earned a standoff for Lake Park in his match with William Meyers at second singles. Meyers won the first set 9-7, Udd the second 10-8, and darkness the third.

The other singles match went to Dave Krohne of York who stopped John Robertson 6-3, 8-6.

In doubles, it was Bob Grob and Dave Oetko defeating Lake Park's Jeff Mikes and Mark Boller 6-1, 11-9; and Skip Jones and Gary Pokorn clinching the opening victory for the hosts with a 6-2, 6-0 over Steve Koschak and Lawrence Behrens.

Robertson, Udd, Fridlund, Mikes, and Chuck Zahara (who did not play Tuesday) are the only seniors on the Lancer team. Udd and Robertson were the conference runners-up at second doubles last year while Zahara finished second in third singles.

"Wehaton North and Ridgwood should be the toughest in the conference with the guys they have back," says Hildebrandt. "and Fenton had an outstanding frosh-soph team last year, although they may be a year away yet."

"With the spirit on our squad, we just might surprise somebody and we could be kind of a dark horse this year."

Carr Heads To Western

Bob Carr of Palatine All State football guard, has signed a tender for Western Illinois University in Macomb.

Carr, at 5-11 and 200 pounds, averaged 18 tackles per game on the outstanding Palatine entry.

"We are going to have to have a blue-chipper like Carr in order to compete," said Western Illinois coach Darrell Mudra.

Latest count shows 34 high school seniors have signed football tenders for Western Illinois Fall Term.

versary this year, begins as a Works Progress Administration (WPA) program and was housed in Selk Pioneer School.

April 12-18 is National Library Week. Large libraries throughout the country are sponsoring programs and festivities to encourage community involvement in their facilities.

Roselle's Public Library is not. On an austere budget, which has forced cutbacks in help and hours, the library isn't doing anything special this week.

The 30-year-old facility has existed as a quiet, but integral part of Roselle. Many people have served it faithfully and it has served the people.

How did it start, where is it now, and what is its future? This is the first in a three-part series during National Library Week on the Roselle Public Library. Today's article is a look at the past.

by GINNY KUCMIERZ

The library, which started as a welfare project in 1940, has never been rolling in money.

Roselle's library center was one of the cultural programs the Works Progress Administration, (WPA), undertook. What is now known as Selk Pioneer School on Pine and Park streets was the first home of the library.

Books were donated by local residents and the staff was furnished by the WPA. The library's budget that first year was $78.29.

THE LIBRARY LIMPED along on a shoestring," Mrs. Lois Elam writes in a history she compiled about the Roselle Public Library.

In August, 1942 a windfall of $100 was donated to the library by the Roselle Lions. Although a $100 donation would scarcely buy 20 books today, it went a long way towards paying the librarian's salary, $20 a month, and toward the purchase of books.

"The community was interested in the library from the beginning. Things were done on a voluntary basis," Mrs. Corrine Michel, former librarian, said.

"There were always people willing to do a job, aware the library had limitations and didn't have all the things it should have had," Mrs. Michel said.

NOT ONLY WERE the Lions closely associated with the growth of the library but the Friends of the Library, a group dedicated to stimulating community interest in the library and helping it out financially was particularly active in the 1950s.

The group's members did volunteer work in the library, cataloging, typing and sorting, besides initiating programs like the children's reading hour and sponsoring dances.

In 1943 the library petitioned the village asking that it take over the facilities and levy a tax for its support. Elections were held in April and May and a newly elected public library board met.

ON THAT BOARD were the late A. J. Binneboese, principal of Trinity Lutheran School; J.W. Followell, then principal of the public school; Raymon Scamehorn, local businessman; and Lyle Saxon, a commuter who made the original contracts with the WPA for the library project.

Also on the board were Dr. O. T. Kursch and Cedric Herrmann.

Since it was accepted by the village as a taxing body, the library was allowed to levy .049 mils, or less than half a cent on $100 of assessed valuation.

The tax revenue never was adequate to support the library. The first tax revenue which came in July, 1944 totaled $932.

Books were purchased each year but the library had to go to the bank to get the money.

MORE THAN A year was spent in planning before Paul Juhnke, owner of the Harvey Holland House, began building the one-room brick and stucco structure at the corner of Main and Howard streets. The library moved there in October, 1945.

More $100 donations from the Lions Club and community determination kept the library solvent as it inched along. In 1949 the Lions bought the building from Juhnke for over $6,000 by issuing bonds to local people.

It was purchased by the library 10 years later. Although still under financial stress by this time the library had support from the Friends of the Library.

IN 1955 THE library proposed a tax increase to the voters, which passed 88 to 8. The library could now levy one full mil of $1 for $10,000 of assessed valuation.

The year 1962 was a dramatic one in the growth of the library. It boldly proposed a $62,000 bond issue to finance the addition to the one-room building.

After it passed, by a three-to-one margin the books, desks, shelves were hauled out so expansion and repairs could begin. June 23, 1963 the staff, board members and Friends of the Library began unpacking again for the open house June 29.

Prizes will be awarded. Entries will be organized into four age groups, and winning kite owners will receive prizes on originality of design and performance in flight.

Tom Conroy, Jaycee member, is the chairman of the kite-flying contest.

June 3 Is Deadline For Motorcycle Tags

Tags will cost $45 each. The deadline for displaying the tags is June 3, after which vehicles without tags will be ticketed and owners will be fined $10.

Lombardi Wins in Squeaker

Incumbent Louis J. Lombardi, 911 Sunnyside Street, Roselle, retained his position on the Medinah Dist. 11 school board Saturday when he edged out Calvin Meyers of 21W320 Sunnyside Drive, Itasca, by three votes.

Lombardi, in winning another two year term, tallied 79 votes to Meyers' 76 votes at the end of a suspense filled count that had to be rechecked. The race had particular significance because Lombardi has been a critic of the board's financial policies opposing the use of tax anticipation warrants and favoring a pay-as-you-go budget.

Originally not planning to run for reelection, Lombardi said he got into the race to give the voters of the district a choice.

"IF I DIDN'T run there would be no way of knowing whether the people prefer what I've done," he said earlier.

Because the returns weren't decisive one way or the other, no conclusions could be drawn, Lombardi said after the election.

"The vote showed there was sufficient dissatisfaction and I did expect it," he said, adding that he wanted "to express my gratitude to all those who did vote for me and I promise I will continue to serve them."

He attributed his victory in large part, to the Register article last Monday on the Dist. 11 elections, pointing out that it brought the issues to the attention of many people who wouldn't otherwise have voted.

"The story made people aware of the situation and helped to get them out. Without it, I don't think the election would have turned out the way it did."

LOMBARDI, 50, has lived in the area since 1964. He is a chemist acting in a supervisory capacity for the Richardson Co. He and his wife, Lee, have a daughter attending Lake Park High School.

Lombardi also received one write-in vote as a candidate for the Lake Park Dist. 108 High School board.

His opponent, Calvin Meyers, expressed concern over the use of tax anticipation warrants, credit on next year's tax money, but his views apparently weren't as firm as Lombardi's.

Meyers, an assistant general manager for the General American Transportation Co., said, "It must be done, if at some point in time a district has to rely on warrants if it is to maintain a standard of education and if the amount of warrants issued is reasonable."

Also running in Dist. 11 for two uncontested three-year terms were Mrs. Judith Soukup, 22W319 Lawrence Street, Medinah, and William Huntscha, 1N220 Eagle Terrace, Medinah. Mrs. Soukup received 120 votes and Huntscha tallied 137.

Receive Land 'Option'

The Village of Itasca will receive first priority to purchase the Mensching property directly south of the village hall, according to owner Glenn Mensching.

Mensching, president of the Itasca State Bank, is hoping to sell the property including two stores pending an appraisal of the land.

The village would like to buy the property, if the price is right, to utilize for resident parking.

Walbert Notke, village president, has indicated that residents need additional parking because the train parking lots are already full to capacity. The village wants to convert the property into a parking lot to be used by train commuters.

Itasca police have had a problem with illegal off-street parking by train commuters. Stanley Rossol, Itasca police chief, has said his police will ticket all unauthorized vehicles according to the village ordinance.

Notke has been seeking additional parking facilities from Milwaukee Railroad officials but, to date, has not reached a suitable agreement. The village wants the railroad to supply the necessary parking for train riders who must park their cars on village property.

During a village board meeting last week, a railroad representative indicated that he would investigate the possibility of his company providing ample parking for village commuters.

Bensenville Cops Have Busy Year

Last year was a busy one for the Bensenville Police Department, according to the department's annual report.

A total of 560 complaints were handled by the department. This was an increase of 1,533 complaints over the previous year, according to the report.

Although traffic fatalities were down (two in 1969 compared to four the year before) there were 199 more accidents reported in 1969. A total of 732 accidents were reported last year.

THE JUVENILE DIVISION of the department received 877 complaints in 1969. Of these, 338 were vandalism complaints. Of the remaining 539, 45 were attributed to larceny (theft), 129 were for disorderly conduct (including truancy), 35 were runaway cases and eight complaints concerning drugs, according to the report.

"The figure of eight for drug offenses indicates how little is being done in that area because it is well known that the figure would probably be many times that amount," Juvenile Officer Donald Jensen said.

"As the village grows and more personnel are added to the juvenile division, we hope that we will be able to stem the number of yearly increases of juvenile complaints through some increased preventative patrol and through the various techniques employed in delinquency prevention and control."

L.T. ARTHUR GARCIA of the detective division, reported 2,850 arrests were made by the department in 1969 for various offenses. The greatest amount of citations, 1776, were issued to parking violators. Speeding violators numbered 364. There were 17 arrests for theft and 20 for battery. There was one arrest each for the following: burglary, assault, robbery and rape.

Voters Do It Again: Turnout Low

Several incumbent races, bad weather, and Apollo 13 added up to an unusually poor turnout for Saturday's school board elections, which traditionally have low voter participation.

Elected to Lake Park High School's Dist. 108 school board were Mrs. Constance K. Huntsberger, Medinah, who will complete a one-year unexpired term, and Mrs. Ann H. Borre, Itasca, and Samuel Vitali, Bloomingtondale, who will serve full three-year terms.

Most precincts were plagued with low turnouts, especially Bloomingtondale and Roselle, where election judges sat seven hours and saw no more than 50 people.

The uncontested Lake Park candidates received the following number of votes at the elementary school precincts included in Dist. 108:

In Itasca Dist. 10, Mrs. Huntsberger received 62, Mrs. Borre 58, and Vitali, 60. In Medinah Dist. 11, Mrs. Huntsberger received 139, Mrs. Borre, 135, and Vitali 129. In Roselle Dist. 12, Mrs. Huntsberger received 42, Mrs. Borre 41 and Vitali, 44.

In Bloomingtondale Dist. 13, Mrs. Huntsberger received 29, Mrs. Borre, 30 and Vitali, 30. In Keeneyville Dist. 20, Mrs. Huntsberger received 139, Mrs. Borre, 139 and Vitali, 126.

Both Beskin and Larry Peterson won

uncontested elections to Bloomingtondale's Dist. 13 school board. Peterson received 40 votes and Beskin 39.

One of the largest turnouts in the area,

oddly enough, was in tiny Keeneyville, where over 200 people voted.

Joseph Moran seeking re-election to Keeneyville Dist. 20 board won over Ed

Pauley, 131 votes to 65. Moran owns a poultry farm and has six children. Pauley who has five children works for ESSO Products Co.

Roselle Dist. 12 incumbents were elected to two year terms. Melvin Luxemburg received 44 votes, Lowell Steger 46 and Frank Zielinski, 47.

There were write-in candidates in both Bloomingtondale and Roselle elections. In Roselle, both Mrs. Isabell Grall and James McIntosh received one vote, while in Bloomingtondale's Dist. 13 Shuffy Smith, address unknown, tallied one vote.

All residents are final unofficial counts until each school board canvasses the election.

Pool Opening Set

Roselle residents will take the big plunge in June, when the new community swimming pool is scheduled to open.

Program director Paul Derda said Friday, "I've been trying to get everything squared away and ready for June. We're setting up the pool staff, talking with officials from the DuPage County Health Dept. and checking with the construction company."

Pool construction began early last year after the community approved a referendum to finance its construction. It is located on a park site south of Bryn Mawr Avenue extended, west of Prospect Street and east of Roselle Road.

The pool opening will lead off the summer program for the park district. The spring program started today with a variety of courses, including a senior life saving course for anyone 15 or older who can swim one-quarter of a mile.

The six-week course, taught by Ann Peterson, is at the Flick-Reedy pool in Bensenville on Mondays from 6:30 until 9:15 p.m. Those taking the course will be ineligible to work as lifeguards at the new pool because the staff is currently being chosen.

Although there is no charge for the life-saving course, the other eight-week courses sponsored by the Roselle Park District have fees.

There is a $5 charge for the baton, ballet and tap-dance courses, as well as the self-protection class and an $8 fee for the organ classes.

Derda also reminded residents about open volleyball for women at Parkside School, 233 E. Maple St. on Tuesdays from 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. and open basketball for men on Thursdays.

Y Camp Signup To Begin

Registrations for YMCA Summer Camps will begin Saturday for Y Sustaining Members announced Robert Williams, executive director of the Twinbrook YMCA.

Williams said, "because they are the ones who pay the overhead cost of the YMCA and allow us to run such programs as the Y-Camping."

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to noon at the Y Office, 11 East Schaumburg Road, Schaumburg. Free pennants will be given to the first 50 campers enrolled. Y Camp T-Shirts will also be given to campers.

An "Eat Your Way" program will be on this day. Campers will be able to take care of Y Camp Butter Toffee. On consent to sell in their neighborhood. A 10 per cent profit goes toward the camp. We find the youth appreciate the summer vacation a lot more when they have earned part of their way," Williams said.

The Y-Camping Program offers three 2-week (8 day) sessions of Y Day Camp for boys and girls, two one-week residence camps for boys and girls, a North Woods Caravan for junior high boys, Lake Superior Coed Canoe Trip and a weekend family camp.

"It's not too late to become Sustaining Members," Williams commented, "many parents become members just to take advantage of the early sign-up. We're not sure of what to expect, but it's not unusual for YMCA Camps to fill on Sign up Days."

Y Camp Registration for Sustaining Members will continue at the Y Office during regular office hours, 9-3:30. Sign-ups can also be made by mail, although advance mail registrations will be considered after the Sign up Day. The official registration for the general public will open the following Saturday, April 25th at the Y Office.

Some Camp Leader positions are still open and applications are being received at the Y Office. Further information may be obtained by calling the Y Office, 894-8700.

Slate Church History Class

The Medinah Baptist Church will offer a new course in the "history of Christianity in America" starting at 9:45 a.m. Sunday, Rev. James Weir, minister of Christian Education, announced.

"Come to this class and find out what Christian people did in early America and across the years as the nation developed. Every Christian should know what the Half-Way Covenant is when it happened and what brought it about," Rev. Weir said.

The course will run for 13 weeks and will be taught by John Rowan, a Hoffman Estates resident and member of the congregation. Rowan is also a free lance writer specializing in researching and writing historical radio dramas for station WMBI, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

Rowan has written such historical series as Land for the Brave, Full Grown Men and is currently researching and writing Old Yankee. He is a graduate of Northern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Rev. Weir said, "This 13 week session will end with a view of the Christian church in America today. This perspective will show that God is still in control of things and the Gospel of Jesus Christ is ageless."

All area residents may attend the free class. To enroll, call the church office at 894-9421. Medinah Baptist Church is located on Foster Avenue at Sycamore Street in unincorporated Medinah.

Patrick R. Riedy, Lisle township Supervisor on the DuPage County Board, missed his day in court recently.

Riedy is taking a trip so his pre-trial hearing on charges of official misconduct scheduled for March 31, was continued until April 14 at 9:30 a.m.

It was another trip made to Las Vegas in January, with fellow supervisor John Stobb Jr., from York township, that led to Riedy's indictment.

The two supervisors went to Las Vegas while supposedly attending a public works seminar in Phoenix, Ariz. They are accused of charging meals and small expenses to the county.

After the trip was disclosed, Riedy resigned from his position as chairman of the county board public works committee and as member of the legislative committee.

Stobb initially resigned from his chairmanship of the sheriff, courthouse and grounds committee and as member of the public works committee.

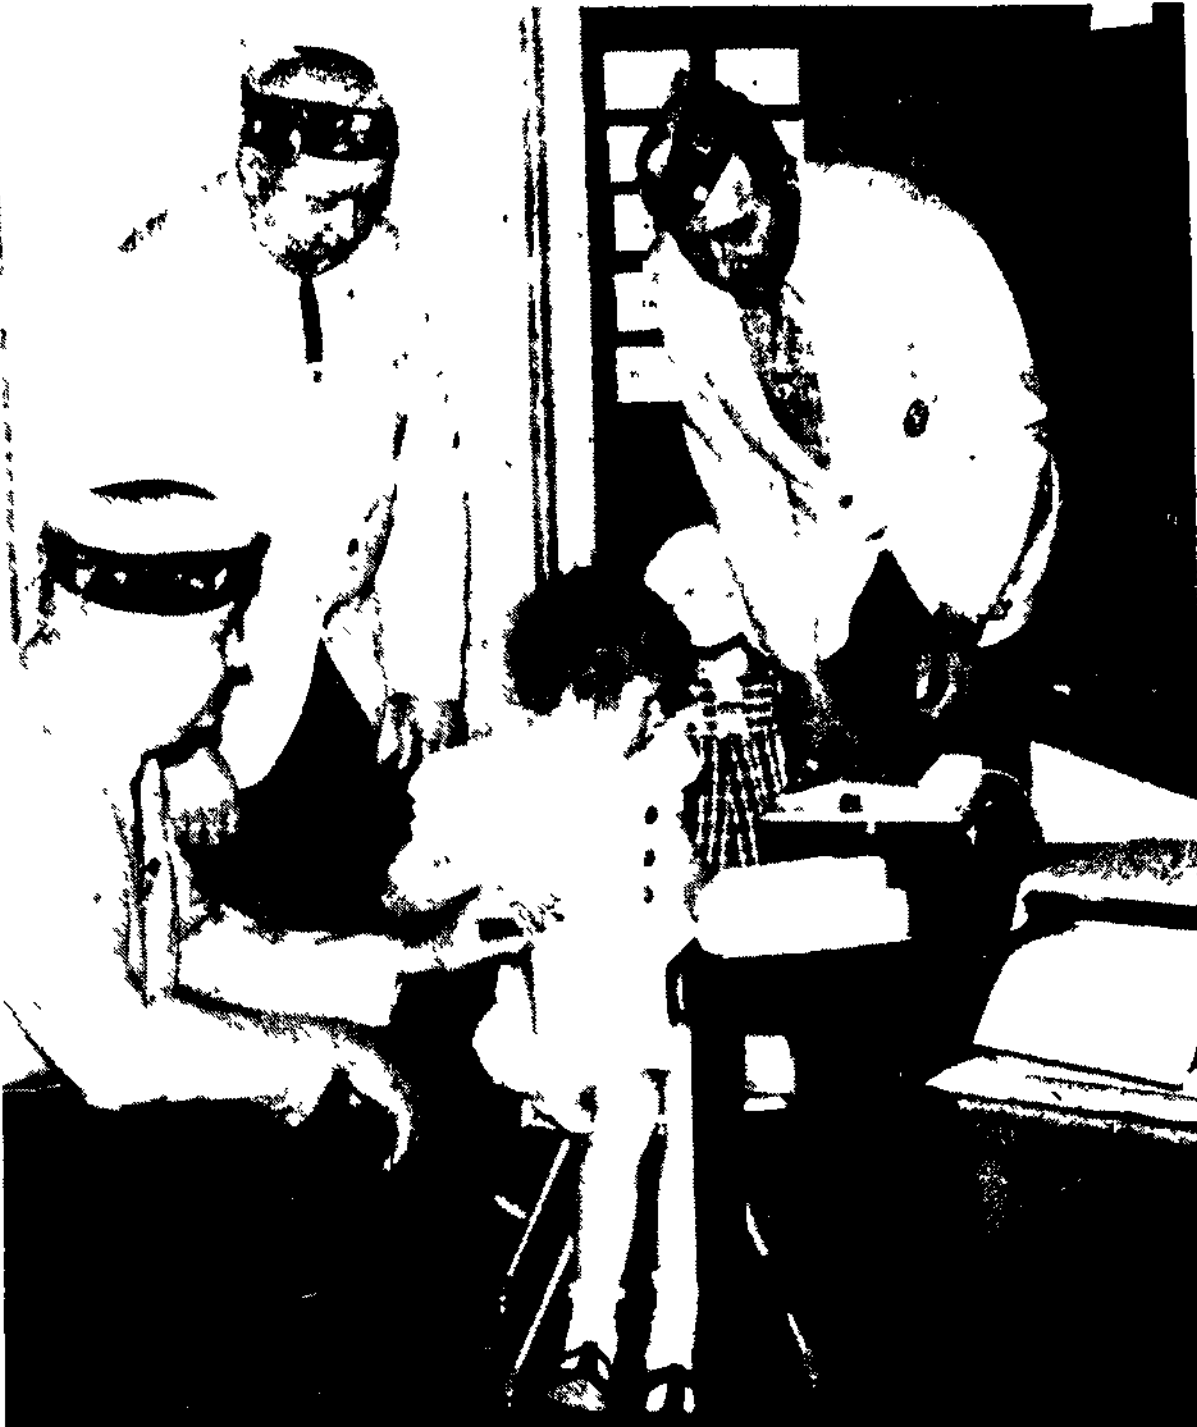

He later resigned from the board of supervisors and was found guilty of official misconduct in a special hearing before Judge Leroy L. Rechenmacher.

Also running in Dist. 11 for two uncontested three-year terms were Mrs. Judith Soukup, 22W319 Lawrence Street, Medinah, and William Huntsha, 1N220 Eagle Terrace, Medinah. Mrs. Soukup received 120 votes and Huntsha tallied 137.

Receive Land 'Option'

The Village of Itasca will receive first priority to purchase the Mensching property directly south of the village hall, according to owner Glenn Mensching.

Mensching, president of the Itasca State Bank, is hoping to sell the property including two stores pending an appraisal of the land.

The village would like to buy the property, if the price is right, to utilize for resident parking.

Wilbert Nottke, village president, has indicated that residents need additional parking because the train parking lots are already full to capacity. The village wants to convert the property into a parking lot to be used by train commuters.

Itasca police have had a problem with illegal off-street parking by train commuters. Stanley Rossol, Itasca police chief, has said his police will ticket all unauthorized vehicles according to the village ordinance.

Nottke has been seeking additional parking facilities from Milwaukee Railroad officials but, to date, has not reached a suitable agreement. The village wants the railroad to supply the necessary parking for train riders who must park their cars on village property.

During a village board meeting last week, a railroad representative indicated that he would investigate the possibility of his company providing ample parking for village commuters.

Voters Do It Again: Turnout Low

Several incumbent races, bad weather, and Apollo 13 added up to an unusually poor turnout for Saturday's school board elections, which traditionally have low voter participation.

Elected to Lake Park High School's Dist. 108 school board were Mrs. Constance K. Huntsberger, Medinah, who will complete a one-year unexpired term, and Mrs. Ann H. Borre, Itasca, and Samuel Vitalli, Bloomingtondale, who will serve full three-year terms.

Most precincts were plagued with low turnouts, especially Bloomingtondale and Roselle, where election judges sat seven hours and saw no more than 50 people.

The uncontested Lake Park candidates received the following number of votes at the elementary school precincts included in Dist. 108:

In Itasca Dist. 10, Mrs. Huntsberger received 62, Mrs. Borre 58, and Vitalli, 60. In Medinah Dist. 11, Mrs. Huntsberger received 139, Mrs. Borre, 135, and Vitalli 129. In Roselle Dist. 12, Mrs. Huntsberger received 42, Mrs. Borre 41 and Vitalli, 44.

In Bloomingtondale Dist. 13, Mrs. Huntsberger received 29, Mrs. Borre, 30 and Vitalli, 30. In Keeneyville Dist. 20, Mrs. Huntsberger received 139, Mrs. Borre, 139 and Vitalli, 129.

Both Beskin and Larry Peterson won

uncontested elections to Bloomingtondale's Dist. 13 school board. Peterson received 40 votes and Beskin 39.

One of the largest turnouts in the area,

oddly enough, was in tiny Keeneyville, where over 200 people voted.

Joseph Moran seeking re-election to Keeneyville Dist. 20 board won over Ed

Pauley, 131 votes to 65. Moran owns a poultry farm and has six children. Pauley who has five children works for ESSO Products Co.

Roselle Dist. 12 incumbents were elected to two year terms. Melvin Luxenberg received 44 votes, Lowell Steger 46 and Frank Zielinski, 47.

There were write-in candidates in both Bloomingtondale and Roselle elections. In Roselle, both Mrs. Isabel Grall and James McIntosh received one vote, while in Bloomingtondale's Dist. 13 Snuffy Smith, address unknown, tallied one vote.

All residents are final unofficial counts until each school board canvasses the election.

Bensenville Cops Have Busy Year

Last year was a busy one for the Bensenville Police Department, according to the department's annual report.

A total of 5,600 complaints were handled by the department. This was an increase of 1,531 complaints over the previous year, according to the report.

Although traffic fatalities were down (two in 1969 compared to four the year before), there were 109 more accidents reported in 1969. A total of 732 accidents were reported last year.

THE JUVENILE DIVISION of the department received 877 complaints in 1969. Of these, 339 were vandalism complaints. Of the remaining 538, 45 were attributed to larceny (theft), 129 were for disorderly conduct (including truancy), 35 were runaway cases and eight complaints concerning drugs, according to the report.

"The figure of eight for drug offenses indicates how little is being done in that area because it is well known that the figure would probably be many times that amount," Juvenile Officer Donald Jensen said.

"As the village grows and more personnel are added to the juvenile division, we hope that we will be able to stem the number of yearly increases of juvenile complaints through some increased preventative patrol and through the various techniques employed in delinquency prevention and control."

L.T. ARTHUR GARCIA of the detective division, reported 2,850 arrests were made by the department in 1969 for various offenses. The greatest amount of citations, 1776, were issued to parking violators. Speeding violators numbered 364. There were 17 arrests for theft and 20 for battery. There was one arrest each for the following: burglary, assault, robbery and rape.

ITASCA'S UNOFFICIAL garbage dump on Thorndale Road east of Route 53 is off limits to all litter bugs. Police Chief Stanley Rossol will enforce the no-dumping ordinance with fines and arrests if dumping residents are caught.

Y Camp Signup To Begin

Registrations for YMCA Summer Camps will begin Saturday for Y Sustaining Members announced Robert Williams, executive director of the Twinbrook YMCA.

"We're giving our Sustaining Members first opportunity to sign up for the program," Williams said, "because they are the ones who pay the (overhead) cost of the YMCA and allow us to run such programs as the Y-Camping."

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to Noon at the Y-Office, 11 East Schaumburg Road Schaumburg. Free pennants will be given to the first 50 campers enrolled. Y-Camp T-Shirts will also be given to campers.

An "Earn Your Way" program will begin this day. Campers will be able to take cases of "Y-Camp Butter Toffee Peanuts" on consignment to sell in their neighborhood. A 40 per cent profit goes toward their camp fee. "We find the youth appreciate the summer vacation a lot more when they have earned part of their way," Williams said.

The Y-Camping Program offers three 2-week (8 day) sessions of Y-Day Camp for boys and girls, two one-week residence camps for boys and girls, a North Woods Caravan for junior high boys, Lake Superior Co-ed Canoe Trip and a weekend family camp.

"It's not too late to become Sustaining Members," Williams commented, "many parents become members just to take advantage of the early sign-up. We're not sure of what to expect, but it's not unusual for YMCA Camps to fill on Sign-up Days."

Y-Camp Registration for Sustaining Members will continue at the Y-Office during regular office hours, 9-3:30. Sign-ups call also be made by mail although advance mail registrations will be considered after the Sign-up Day. The official registration for the general public will open the following Saturday, April 25th, at the Y-Office.

Some Camp Leader positions are still open and applications are being received at the Y-Office. Further information may be obtained by calling the Y-Office, 894-8500.

Slate Church History Class

The Medinah Baptist Church will offer a new course in the "history of Christianity in America" starting at 9:45 a.m. Sunday, Rev. James Weir, minister of Christian Education, announced.

"Come to this class and find out what Christian people did in early America and across the years as the nation developed. Every Christian should know what the Half-Way Covenant is, when it happened and what brought it about," Rev. Weir said.

The course will run for 13 weeks and will be taught by John Rowan, a Hoffman Estates resident and member of the congregation. Rowan is also a free lance writer specializing in researching and writing historical radio dramas for station WMBI, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

Rowan has written such historical series as Land for the Brave, Full Grown Men and is currently researching and writing Old Yankee. He is a graduate of Northern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Rev. Weir said, "This 13 week session will end with a view of the Christian church in America today. This perspective will show that God is still in control of things and the Gospel of Jesus Christ is ageless."

All area residents may attend the free class. To enroll, call the church office at 894-9421. Medinah Baptist Church is located on Foster Avenue at Sycamore Street in unincorporated Medinah.

Swierczewski Dissertation Wins Award

Eugene T. Swierczewski, curriculum coordinator for Lake Park High School Dist. 106, Roselle, recently was awarded the 1970 Otto J. Gabel Memorial Award.

The award was made by the Northern Illinois University chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, international honorary for men in education, and honors the late Dr. Gabel, long-time NIU education professor and PDK member.

Swierczewski was selected for his 1968 dissertation, "The Effect of Intensive Reading Instruction on Achievement in Reading." The 1970 Gabel Award competition was limited to dissertations completed between June, 1965 and August, 1969. In alternate years the award also is made for best research in public schools, and best thesis for a master's or a sixth-year program.

THE 1970 GABEL winner received his Ed. D. in curriculum and supervision at NIU in August, 1968.

He will be installed later this month as president-elect of the Illinois Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development (ASCD). He also is on the national ASCD committee on curriculum theory.

A member of the Lake Park staff since 1956, he was head of the English department prior to being named in 1963 to his present post as administrative assistant for curriculum and instruction.

Swierczewski, of 659 Hazel Court, Roselle, earned a bachelor's degree in English from Western Illinois University in 1952, and master's degree in English education from WIU in 1956.

Patrick R. Riedy, Lisle township Supervisor on the DuPage County Board, missed his day in court recently.

Riedy is taking a trip so his pre-trial hearing on charges of official misconduct scheduled for March 31, was continued until April 14 at 9:30 a.m.

It was another trip made to Las Vegas in January, with fellow supervisor John Stobb Jr., from York township, that led to Riedy's indictment.

The two supervisors went to Las Vegas while supposedly attending a public works seminar in Phoenix, Ariz. They are accused of charging meals and small expenses to the county.

After the trip was disclosed, Riedy resigned from his position as chairman of the county board public works committee and as member of the legislative committee.

Stobb initially resigned from his chairmanship of the sheriff, courthouse and grounds committee and as member of the public works committee.

He later resigned from the board of supervisors and was found guilty of official misconduct in a special hearing before Judge Leroy L. Rechenmacher.

Elect Incumbents, Bucina

Dist. 4 school board incumbents Charles "Gene" Willett and Robert Deobler and newcomer Dr. Eugene Bucina were elected Saturday to serve three-year terms on the board of education.

The contest was a spirited one as the fairly small turnout of voters gave five of the six candidates a shot at finishing in the top three and a place on the board.

Deobler was the leading vote-getter with 483 coming off his strong showing in both the Fullerton and Indian Trail Junior High School areas in which he finished first in both precincts.

Willett garnered 459 votes with a major portion of his votes coming from the same precincts, plus a first place finish in the Oak School area, the third polling area used for the election. Bucina was close behind Willett with 433 votes.

THE REST OF THE totals found Robert Papp finishing a strong fourth with 375 votes, Warren Fabel coming in fifth with 359 votes, and Ronald Almquist in last with 228 votes. Voters were allowed to select any three candidates.

"This was a direct vote of confidence as to the job the existing board is doing," said Willett Saturday night at Indian Trail, where the ballots from the three precincts were counted. "The citizenry expressed their feeling of a job well done and I'm very proud and satisfied at the results."

Deobler echoed the vote of confidence theme saying the voters were "not displeased with the way the board has been conducting business." He said the endorsement of the two incumbents (by the Register in its April 6 issue and the Dist. 4 caucus) gave the two men the edge in the final outcome.

"DR. BUCINA SAID he was very happy with the results but was disappointed with the small turnout of voters. "I was pretty certain the two incumbents would be elected," he said. "But because of such a small turnout anything was possible. It was a close race like I expected."

Deobler took the lead from the outset and didn't let go while Willett and Bucina kept close to each other in the number two and three positions throughout the evening.

A breakdown of the three precincts shows Deobler gaining 159 votes at Fullerton, 267 votes at Indian Trail and 57 votes at Oak. Willett had 130 votes from Fullerton, 259 from Indian Trail and 70 from Oak. Bucina received 133 votes from Fullerton, 234 from Indian Trail and 66 from Oak.

Papp came in strong at both Fullerton and Oak while Fabel finished last at Indian Trail.

WILLETT, 33, president of the school board for the last year and third place finisher when he ran for the board three years ago, said he didn't mind coming in second.

"I've been in the district only 4½ years," he said. "I'm not active with any local groups or organizations in Addison.

For example, I'm affiliated with a church located outside of the village while at least four of the other candidates are active in church work in Addison.

Willett said the voter trend Saturday went about the way he had hoped, that he would lead the rest of the candidates at Oak and get a major vote at Indian Trail. He said before the election he would be "tickled to death" if he carried 25 per cent of the votes at Fullerton and the final results showed he received about a third of the votes cast at the precinct.

DEOBLER, 44, finished second when he ran for the board three years ago — 86 more votes this time around for first place. He said he was particularly pleased at finishing number one and that it was a good showing especially since he was listed fourth on the ballot, a bad spot in any election, he said.

All three winners said they were surprised at Papp's strong showing in the election considering he did not receive the endorsements of any newspaper or of the Dist. 4 caucus, which is an influential organization.

Willett said this was a direct compliment to Papp and to his supporters who worked for him. Deobler said it was a good sign that "people who are willing to get out and support their candidate and vote can get their man elected."

The total voter turnout irked all three men. The 912 votes cast was short of last year's figure but still was a higher mark when compared to about 600 voters two years ago.

"It was a typical, apathetic Addison turnout," said Willett. Bucina thought the turnout "wasn't very good in a district with about 12,000 eligible voters. People take their franchise lightly," he said.

Profile: Two Headmasters

'It's Not For Everybody'

Education is in the spotlight today, with five eager candidates waiting to be sworn in as members of the Dist. 4 and 88 school boards. The five will help administer the policies and programs of the two educational institutions and provide guidance and watch the purse-strings of the taxpayer. But what about the status of education, especially at Addison school? Today, Barry Sigale, Register reporter, presents a dual "profile," giving the views of David Koch, principal of Addison Trail High School, and Lester Przewlocki, superintendent of elementary school Dist. 4.

"High school is not necessary for everybody," said David Koch, principal of Addison Trail High School, a learning institution that has prospered by presenting programs that are relevant to society.

"Some people ought to become involved in a training program if they are not going to go on to a more formalized education. Youngsters who cannot make it to college should have a salable skill when they go out into the world.

"And I'm not sure every high school student should get his education in a high school building, either. Not all learning has to be out of books. There should be more programs where they could be doing things, seeking to work with things that are going to be beneficial to them when they get out of school."

KOCH SAID critics who have said that some high school students are bored and not being motivated to learn are speaking the truth. But, he said, it's not because the schools aren't trying to do a better job.

"We have made progress recently in motivating kids," he said. "But there is more work to do. I don't advise abolishing traditional subjects. You can't dismiss reading because whether you go to college or not, you have to be able to read to do your income tax, to fill out an application or to read a newspaper."

It is this switch from the traditional, however, that educational institutions are turning to in order to make learning more interesting to the student.

At Addison Trail, several "new wave" approaches make the life of the high

PROFILE

A Look at People from the Passing Suburban Scene school student a little more bearable, Koch said.

THERE IS a math laboratory where students work with bills from local businesses, figuring them out and checking their work with calculators. This, said Koch, is relevant to the student who may be doing this type of work someday.

Another trend in the learning process is the Listening Center, where students can look at slides of art collections and architecture, listen to tape recordings of music or poetry or see films.

Then there is closed-circuit television, where speech students can see and hear their own speeches and learn better what they are doing right and wrong.

And there is the Distributive Education program, where students go to school half a day and work at local business establishments the rest of the time. It gives the student a chance to acclimate themselves to the outside world, said Koch.

THE REASON for the new methods in learning, Koch said, is a better-educated student who is more aware of life and what they want to get out of it.

"School reflects society," he said. "The so-called youth rebellion is a real thing, although it is pretty hard to say that it involves a majority of kids."

"But kids do display the same characteristics as their parents did. The difference is that the student is more aware of power because of recent court decisions, legislative decisions and the news media."

"Any student worth his salt is going to test some of the limitations placed upon him. I'd be more disturbed if the student didn't do this. I am not condoning sit-ins or violence, but the use of the proper channels."

Koch said that society's attitude toward the school system 10 years ago was one of a "parent," being all-protecting and all-encompassing, but that the courts and legislatures have decided that schools should take care of the academic aspects instead of some of the social aspects, such as enforcing what a student can and can't wear to school.

He Likes Hockey, Too

A seventh grade student at Indian Trail Junior High School bounded up to Dist. 4 school superintendent Lester Przewlocki in the hallway Friday morning and asked firmly, "Did you enjoy the hockey game last night?"

Przewlocki, who had gone to see the Chicago Black Hawks and the Detroit Red Wings square off at the Chicago Stadium, agreed that the game was a good one and added that he enjoyed the action.

Later, when the student had gone on his way down the long corridor, Przewlocki turned back to the Register reporter standing next to him and said, "In my day, when I was young, we never even thought of going up to the superintendent or the principal and discuss anything like that."

"IT USED to be that a child was seen and not heard, that when a parent said you could speak you did so and when he said you couldn't speak, then you didn't."

That brought Przewlocki to one of the major questions of today. Should a youngster be allowed to voice his opinion in the schools and to go so far as participating in the final decision as to which teacher will teach him and what he should be taught?

"There has been a big change in kids," said Przewlocki, who has been involved in the field of education for 21 years. "Kids bring to school a far greater sophistication today than ever before. When a child comes into the elementary school system he has a great deal of awareness of what is happening around him."

"In this regard, kids have and should have the right to express themselves to the teachers and the teachers, in turn, should listen. They don't have to change but they should hear what the students are saying."

"RECENTLY I was on a radio program with a group of junior high school kids. Because of some of the things they said, I gave the tape to the junior high school principal (Dale Zorn) to play to his staff."

"Some of what was said by the kids was pertinent. In fact, we took a couple of their ideas and translated them into constructive things at the school. After all, that's what kids want anyway — to be heard. If they have perceptions and insights I say, 'why not?'

"I surely wouldn't ask a student what he thought about an educational tax rate increase or something like that, but I might ask him about our science program and what we could do to beef it up, to make it more interesting and comprehensible."

WHILE THE student on the elementary school and junior high level has changed, according to Przewlocki, the educational community and the taxpayer have changed to meet this sophistication.

The teacher has changed in the 21 years he has been an instructor and administrator, Przewlocki said. The teacher has a great many more materials to use, including that of television programs.

"Television has improved and has had a positive effect on kids," he said. "Teachers now use television as a springboard to discussion or as an aid to a lesson. In 1949, when I first started teaching and television was in its infancy, parents and other teachers said kids would be glued to the TV and not want to learn to read or do anything constructive."

"BUT THIS crop of kids today, 20 years later, is certainly more sophisticated and better educated than ever before."

"Also, the clientele has changed. Teachers are not just insisting on answers but want a rationale, that it be told the way it is."

"And the parents want the schools to dish out a quality education because that is the key to the success for their kids or an open door to success. It is this motivation that the parents instill in their kids that has helped them mature the way they have."

When asked to sum up the bad and good points about the educational system, Przewlocki said, "Society has placed such a high degree of importance on a good education and yet in areas such as the educational institution we don't get enough money to do the kinds of things we want and should be doing."

"As far as what's good, I like what I see and the direction we're taking in developing the individual progress of the kids. There is a more individualized and more personal concern about the child."

Krieger Zaps By Dist. 88 Field

Addison's Henry Krieger completely dominated the four man race for election to the Community High School Dist. 88 board of education Saturday being chosen to a three year term.

Krieger, 48, of 116 E. Natoma, thus joins Rev. G. William Bingaman as the only two Addison residents on the Dist. 88 board of education.

Also elected to a three year term was J. L. Sinson, 39, of 280 Chandler Avenue, Elmhurst, who finished second in a field of four which included Krieger, Dan Dallas and Eric Gibson.

But Krieger was the overwhelming favorite of the voters in the 31 precincts comprised of Addison, Elmhurst, Villa Park, Lombard, Oak Brook and Oak Brook Terrace.

Krieger received the support of the several communities and pulled in 2,420 votes. He finished with 687 votes from Addison's three precincts, an expected margin over his competitors. But the electronics engineer for the Zenith Radio Corp., fared well throughout the voting area.

Sinson received 1,853 votes to finish second while Dallas and Gibson ended up far behind with 980 and 812 votes respectively.

Krieger was at a gathering Saturday night for the victorious candidates for Elmhurst's Dist. 3 election when he was finally tracked down by a Register reporter.

"I'm not that surprised at winning the election," he said. "I am surprised at the margin of victory, though. My strong showing in other communities besides Addison's could be attributed to getting around to various groups and hearing them out and making my views known."

Krieger said his function as Dist. 88 caucus chairman for the Addison-north Elmhurst area enabled him to become involved and to meet and know people in those communities and in Villa Park.

He said he has gotten a "good feeling" of what the people think is right and wrong with the schools and that there has been a give and take, a two way street of sorts, between himself and area residents.

Little Education Interest

by BARRY SIGALE
A News Analysis

Candidate night at Indian Trail Junior High School in Addison Thursday indicated several things about this year's elections.

First, the voter turnout for the week-end's school board elections was expected to be very light because the public appearance of the candidates Thursday drew a maximum of 30 persons.

Second, the evening was marred by the absence of several of the candidates themselves. Three of the six Dist. 4 competitors were missing, one of four Dist. 88 candidates was not in attendance and one of the two College of DuPage aspirants didn't make it either.

IN ADDITION, it was evident that the campaigners were going to stick to the usual rhetoric of an election year, the familiar ring that includes the general praising of the school systems and a promise to improve the quality of education while saving money for the taxpayer.

The evening was not without inspiring give-and-take between the audience and the candidates, particularly on the part of Eric Gibson, who sought the vote for the Dist. 88 school board.

The candidates each gave three-to-five-minute speeches, then fielded written questions from the audience.

First came a speech by Austin Fleming, a Dist. 502 candidate, which was read by a substitute because Fleming was unable to attend. Henry Hoekstra, the other junior college candidate, read his prepared statement and answered several questions from the audience.

THE DIST. 88 hopefuls were next, with Henry Krieger, Addison's only resident vying for election, absent. His place was taken by Sam Weigle, chairman of the Dist. 88 Citizens Advisory Council.

When the questions were read by the evening's chairman, former Addison village president Harry Warthen, Gibson was the object of most of the piercing questions because of his liberal ideas.

In question were some of his ideas about how the students in the high school district should be taught, and specifically his statement that students should be allowed a voice in choosing their own teachers. Many parents apparently disagreed.

Incumbents Charles "Gene" Willett and Robert Deobler, and Warren Fabel represented the Dist. 4 candidates. Dr. Eugene Bucina, Robert Papp and Ronald Almquist were missing because of previous commitments.

Y Camp Signup To Begin

Registrations for YMCA Summer Camps will begin Saturday for Y Sustaining Members announced Robert Williams, executive director of the Twinbrook YMCA.

We're saving our Sustaining Members first opportunity to sign up for the program, Williams said, because they are the ones who pay the (overhead) cost of the YMCA and allow us to run such programs as the Y-Camping.

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to noon at the Y-Office, 11 East Schaumburg Road, Schaumburg. Free pennants will be given to the first 50 campers enrolled. Y Camp T-Shirts will also be given to campers.

An "Earn Your Way" program will be run this day. Campers will be able to take cases of "Y Camp Butter Toffee" Pennants on consignment to sell in their neighborhood. A 40 per cent profit goes toward their camp fee. We find the youth appreciate the summer vacation a lot more when they have earned part of their way, Williams said.

The Y-Camping Program offers three 2-week (8 day) sessions of Y Day Camp for boys and girls, two one-week residence camps for boys and girls, a North Woods Canoe Trip for junior high boys, Lake Superior Coed Canoe Trip and a weekend family camp.

"It's not too late to become Sustaining Members," Williams commented, "many parents become members just to take advantage of the early sign up. We're not sure of what to expect, but it's not unusual for YMCA Camps to fill on Sign-up Days."

Y-Camp Registration for Sustaining Members will continue at the Y-Office during regular office hours, 9:30. Sign-ups call also be made by mail although advance mail registrations will be considered after the Sign-up Day. The official registration for the general public will open the following Saturday, April 25th at the Y-Office.

Some Camp Leader positions are still open and applications are being received at the Y-Office. Further information may be obtained by calling the Y-Office, 894-8500.

Slate Church History Class

The Medinah Baptist Church will offer a new course in the "History of Christianity in America" starting at 9:45 a.m. Sunday, Rev. James Weir, minister of Christian Education, announced.

"Come to this class and find out what Christian people did in early America and across the years as the nation developed. Every Christian should know what the Half-Way Covenant is, when it happened and what brought it about," Rev. Weir said.

The course will run for 13 weeks, and will be taught by John Rowan, a Hoffman Estates resident and member of the congregation. Rowan is also a free lance writer specializing in researching and writing historical radio dramas for station WMBI, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

Rowan has written such historical series as Land for the Brave, Full Grown Men and is currently researching and writing Old Yankee. He is a graduate of Northern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Rev. Weir said, "This 13 week session will end with a view of the Christian church in America today. This perspective will show that God is still in control of things and the Gospel of Jesus Christ is ageless."

All area residents may attend the free class. To enroll, call the church office at 894-9421. Medinah Baptist Church is located on Foster Avenue at Sycamore Street in unincorporated Medinah.

Swierczewski Dissertation Wins Award

Eugene T. Swierczewski, curriculum coordinator for Lake Park High School Dist. 108, Roselle, recently was awarded the 1970 Otto J. Gabel Memorial Award.

The award was made by the Northern Illinois University chapter of Phi Delta Kappa, international honorary for men in education, and honors the late Dr. Gabel, long-time NIU education professor and PDK member.

Swierczewski was selected for his 1968 dissertation, "The Effect of Intensive Reading Instruction on Achievement in Reading." The 1970 Gabel Award competition was limited to dissertations completed between June, 1965 and August, 1969. In alternate years the award also is made for best research in public schools, and best thesis for a master's or a sixth year program.

THE 1970 GABEL winner received his Ed. D. in curriculum and supervision at NIU in August, 1968.

He will be installed later this month as president-elect of the Illinois Association for Supervision and Curriculum Development (ASCD). He also is on the national ASCD committee on curriculum theory.

A member of the Lake Park staff since 1956, he was head of the English department prior to being named in 1963 to his present post as administrative assistant for curriculum and instruction.

Swierczewski of 639 Hazel Court, Roselle, earned a bachelor's degree in English from Western Illinois University in 1952, and master's degree in English education from WIU in 1956.

Patrick R. Riedy, Lasle township Supervisor on the DuPage County Board, missed his day in court recently.

Riedy is taking a trip so his pre-trial hearing on charges of official misconduct scheduled for March 31, was continued until April 14 at 9:30 a.m.

It was another trip made to Las Vegas in January, with fellow supervisor John Stobb Jr., from York township, that led to Riedy's indictment.

The two supervisors went to Las Vegas while supposedly attending a public works seminar in Phoenix, Ariz. They are accused of charging meals and small expenses to the county.

After the trip was disclosed, Riedy resigned from his position as chairman of the county board public works committee and as member of the legislative committee.

Stobb initially resigned from his chairmanship of the sheriff, courthouse and grounds committee and as member of the public works committee.

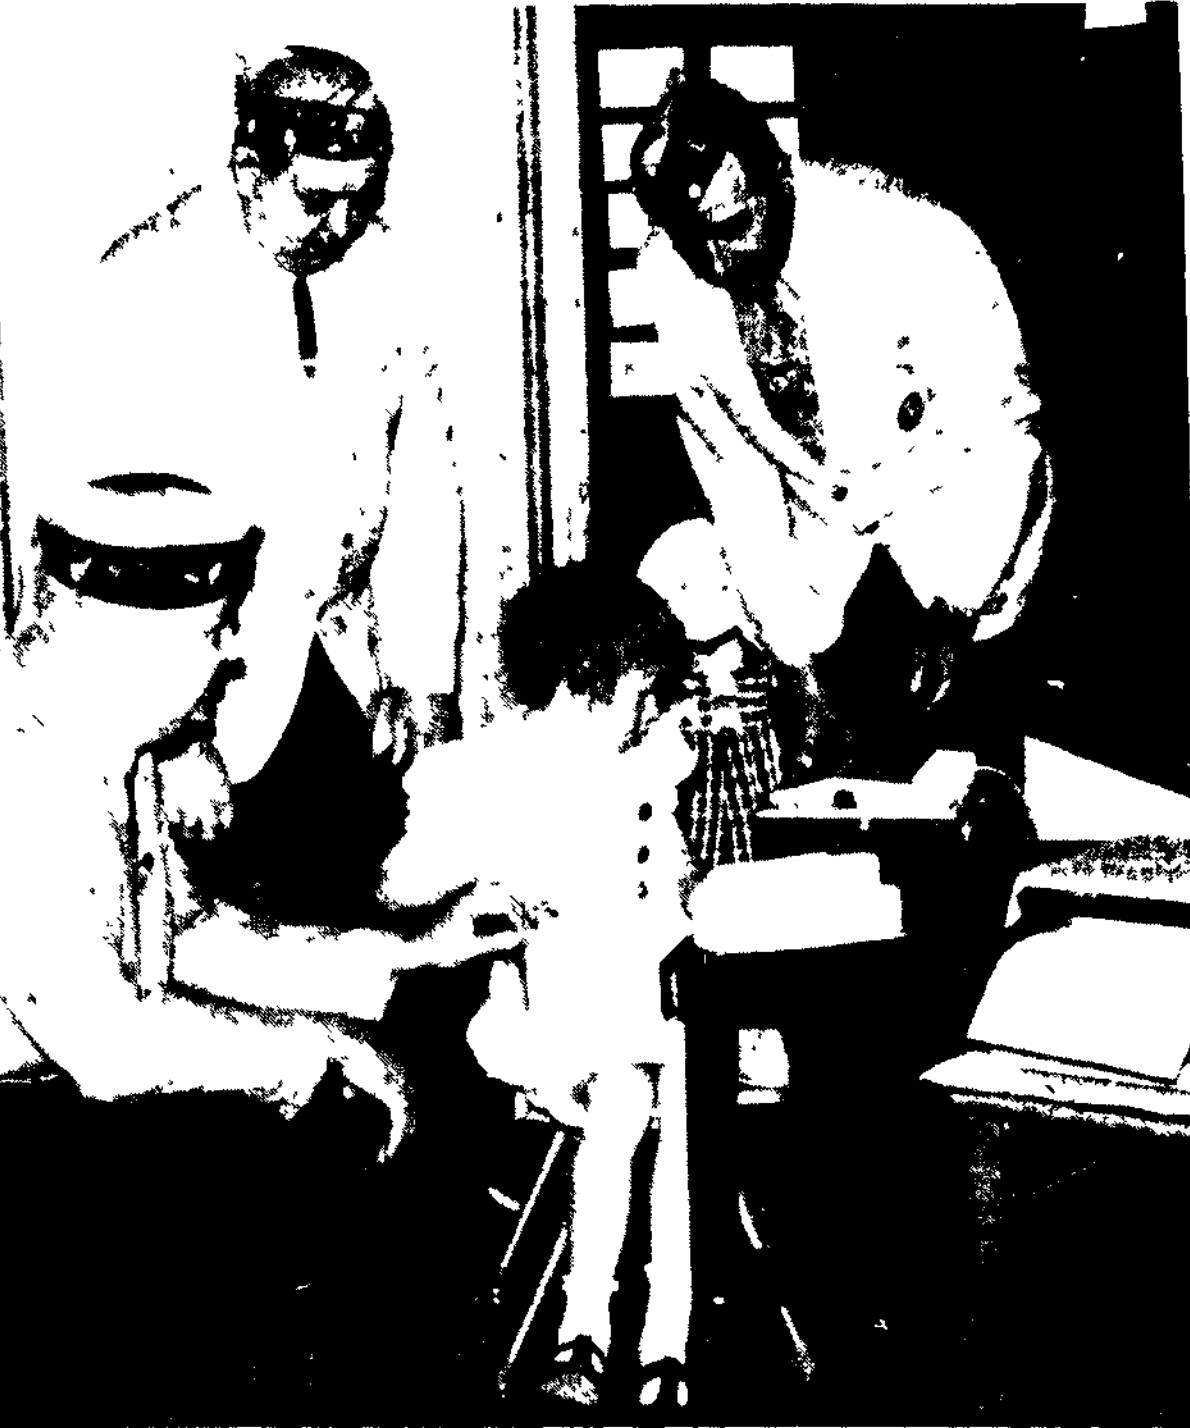

He later resigned from the board of supervisors and was found guilty of official misconduct in a special hearing before Judge Leroy L. Rechmhammer.

Three Wood Dale Men Win

IN VIOLATION OF the DuPage County zoning ordinance, this car has been abandoned on Church Road just north of Grand Avenue for several months. On March 20, the county placed a sticker on the bumper of the car citing it for the violation. The sticker reads that the car would be towed away within five days of the posted notice. Twenty-one days later, the car still remains on the side of the road.

Classrooms Called 'Unsafe'

by KEN HARDWICKE

Is Highland School in Wood Dale unsafe for children? Reading, writing and arithmetic may be top caliber but some parents are concerned about the potential fire hazard that looms in the school's basement classrooms.

The parents are upset because there appears to be only one passable exit in the classroom — the entrance door. They admit that there is a window available but question whether a child can escape through the small screen opening if a fire started.

School officials were out of town on conference business but Highland personnel indicated the building, presently under mass construction, was termed satisfactory by Merrill Gates, county superintendent of schools, earlier in the year.

GATES SENT A LETTER to Warren Carson, Dist. 7 superintendent of schools, commending the school for providing adequate exits for children.

"The approach we have taken is one of assuring the life safety of children, Gates said. "We recommend close cooperation with the local people responsible for fire safety in the village. To function well in emergency, they need to know the buildings."

Apparently that close association that Gates stressed hasn't come about with Wood Dale's Fire Dept. because Chief Jack Haynes didn't even know classes were being conducted in the school basement. Chief Haynes indicated that other towns allow their fire departments to investigate schools for fire safety but Wood Dale does not.

"THE WOOD DALE Fire Dept. has no jurisdiction to inspect public schools," Chief Haynes revealed. "Dr. Carson is solely responsible."

Although the village volunteer firemen are only authorized to conduct fire drills, Haynes inferred that other departments are given the privilege of inspecting school fire safety. The state and county are responsible for fire inspection of all public schools.

Despite the assurance of a county inspection and the many exits outside the classrooms, some parents are still afraid of a potential fire with no proper exits.

"I asked the school principal if he would like his child in that classroom and he ignored my question," declared one irate mother.

PARENTS APPARENTLY, weren't the only ones concerned with a potential fire hazard. It was reported that some teachers in the Highland School were also leery of "suitable" exits if fire broke out.

Highland School officials appear to be freed of all fire hazard charges because the building has been properly inspected and improved by the county.

Nevertheless there seems to be continuing consternation about how a fourth or fifth-grade student could muster the strength or height to break a glass-block window inside the classroom once a fire started. Reportedly, the only person who has the physical capabilities to shatter the block-window is the room teacher.

A fire may never ignite to justify claims by either side. But school officials will take further precautions next year when construction is completed and basement classrooms will become vacant.

Kite-Flying Contest Can't Get Off Ground

Roselle's kite-flying contest, co-sponsored by the Jaycees and the Park District was grounded temporarily April 5 because of mud.

The festivities are rescheduled for April 19 at Parkside School, 233 E. Maple St. Registration begins at noon and the contest will start at 1 p.m.

Prizes will be awarded. Entries will be organized into four age groups, and winning kite owners will receive prizes on originality of design and performance in flight.

Tom Conroy, Jaycee member, is the chairman of the kite-flying contest.

Three Wood Dale residents won election to the Bensenville Dist. 100 high school board election Saturday.

Morton L. Wright, of 233 Dalewood, Wilfred C. Prather, of 178 S. Montclare and Arthur W. Richter, of 244 Dalewood netted 569, 550 and 509 votes respectively.

The other candidates vying for the three full term board positions were Richard E. Perry, 419 votes; Harli R. Jones, 299 votes; Oscar J. Sahagan, 216 votes; John P. Meyer, 211 votes, and Lawrence P. Kaspari Jr., 192 votes.

Zuckerman indicated at "first glance" he thought there might have been a greater voter turnout in this election than in the last. About 900 voters cast ballots in Saturday's election.

THE APPROXIMATE number of ballots cast at each precinct was Mohawk, 88; Green Street, 152; Tioga, 212; Blackhawk, 141; Wood Dale Junior High, 121;

Oakbrook, 109 and Westview, 82.

Prather did best of all candidates in the Tioga precinct, with 106 votes. Jones and Perry also placed high in the Tioga precinct, with 100 and 98 votes respectively, but did not maintain enough votes in the other precincts to carry the election.

The two incumbents, Wright and Richter, proved strong in all the precincts. Wright pulled in 140 votes in the Wood Dale Junior High precinct while Richter took 134 votes.

Prather, who is employed as a station manager for WMAQ-TV in Chicago, is not new to the workings of a school board. He served as president of the Wood Dale Dist. 7 school board for six years. He was also secretary for one year during his 8½ years on the board.

WRIGHT, WHO IS completing his fourth year with Dist. 100 has also served on the Wood Dale Dist. 7 board three years. He is employed as an engineer for the Illinois Bell Telephone Co. Wright has been a resident of Wood Dale for 21 years and served on the Fenton Citizens' Advisory Council for two years.

A Wood Dale resident for 36 years, Richter is completing his third year with the Dist. 100 board. He is the owner of Richter Concrete Contractors.

While Wright and Richter sought to maintain their board positions, Prather will take the position vacated by Larry Reimer. Reimer, who has served on the Fenton board for six years, did not seek reelection. The newly elected board members will serve three year terms.

The results of Saturday's election will not be official until the school board votes to accept them at their next meeting.

Roy Tison Wins Seat

Roy Tison, of 1006 Green Valley in Bensenville, and Robert Broderick, of 455 S. Center Street in Bensenville, accumulated the most votes Saturday to win the election to the Bensenville Elementary School Dist. 2 board of education.

Unofficial returns Saturday night showed Broderick with 400 votes, Tison with 388 and John P. Meyer, of 25 Roosevelt Court, in Bensenville, with 316.

Meyer, who was also seeking a position on the Fenton Dist. 100 board, was never too far behind the other candidates, but he could not maintain a lead in any of the precincts. He also lost in the Dist. 100 election.

BRODERICK did best in the Tioga and Green Street precincts, with 160 and 89 votes respectively. Tison proved stronger than the other candidates in the Blackhawk and Mohawk precincts with 103 and 65 votes respectively.

The approximate number of ballots cast in each of the precincts was Mohawk, 82, Green street, 125; Tioga, 211 and Blackhawk, 133.

Dr. Martin Zuckerman, superintendent of Bensenville schools, told the Register Saturday night that he thought the voter turnout in this election was pretty good. "At first glance it is at least as well, probably a little better than last year's voter turnout," Zuckerman said.

About 551 ballots were cast in the Dist. 2 election.

TISON, WHO IS presently filling out a term vacated by Earl Meyer, has served one year on the Dist. 2 board. Broderick will take over the position of Will Davidson, who did not seek re-election. Davidson was elected last year to fill the term of Dr. Tom Barber and is presently serving a term on the Dist. 100 board.

Tison is teaching social studies to 7th and 8th graders at Itasca Junior High School. He is also working on his masters degree at Northeastern Illinois State College. Tison has been a resident of Bensenville for 20 years.

This will be Broderick's first experience on a school board. Broderick, who is a fire protection engineer for the U.S. Gypsum Co., has lived in Bensenville for five years.

DR. ZUCKERMAN said that "it was good to have a contest in both districts." There were eight candidates seeking three positions in the Fenton Dist. 100 board race.

The results of Saturday's election will be validated when they are voted on and accepted by the school board at the next Dist. 2 meeting. Both newly elected board members will begin their terms at that time.

Bensenville Cops Have Busy Year

Last year was a busy one for the Bensenville Police Department, according to the department's annual report.

A total of 5,600 complaints were handled by the department. This was an increase of 1,533 complaints over the previous year, according to the report.

Although traffic fatalities were down (two in 1969 compared to four the year before), there were 109 more accidents reported in 1969. A total of 732 accidents were reported last year.

THE JUVENILE DIVISION of the department received 877 complaints in 1969. Of these, 338 were vandalism complaints. Of the remaining 539, 45 were attributed to larceny (theft), 129 were for disorderly conduct (including truancy), 35 were runaway cases and eight complaints concerning drugs, according to the report.

"The figure of eight for drug offenses indicates how little is being done in that area because it is well known that the figure would probably be many times that amount," Juvenile Officer Donald Jensen said.

"As the village grows and more personnel are added to the juvenile division, we hope that we will be able to stem the number of yearly increases of juvenile complaints through some increased preventative patrol and through the various techniques employed in delinquency prevention and control."

LT. ARTHUR GARCIA of the detective division, reported 2,890 arrests were made by the department in 1969 for various offenses. The greatest amount of citations, 1776, were issued to parking violators. Speeding violators numbered 384. There were 17 arrests for theft and 20 for battery. There was one arrest each for the following: burglary, assault, robbery and rape.

Other arrests made by the department included 47 for disorderly conduct, one narcotic drug arrest, 15 damage to village property, four public intoxication within the village limits, nine curfew vilations, 40 Zoning Ordinance violations and three nuisance complaints.

"The police department handled an average of 124 contacts a day which is an average of five for each hour of the day in 1969," according to Police Chief Walter Tett.

"The year 1969 showed increases in many areas of police services," Tett said. "We have tried very hard not only to keep up with expanding the police department, but also to stay abreast of current methods of police functions by attending many colleges, in-service training courses and correspondence courses from both the Chicago Police Academy and the National Police Academy."

6 Incumbents Unopposed

Elementary school Dist. 7 and 10 voters reelected six incumbents to respective school boards Saturday in uncontested elections.

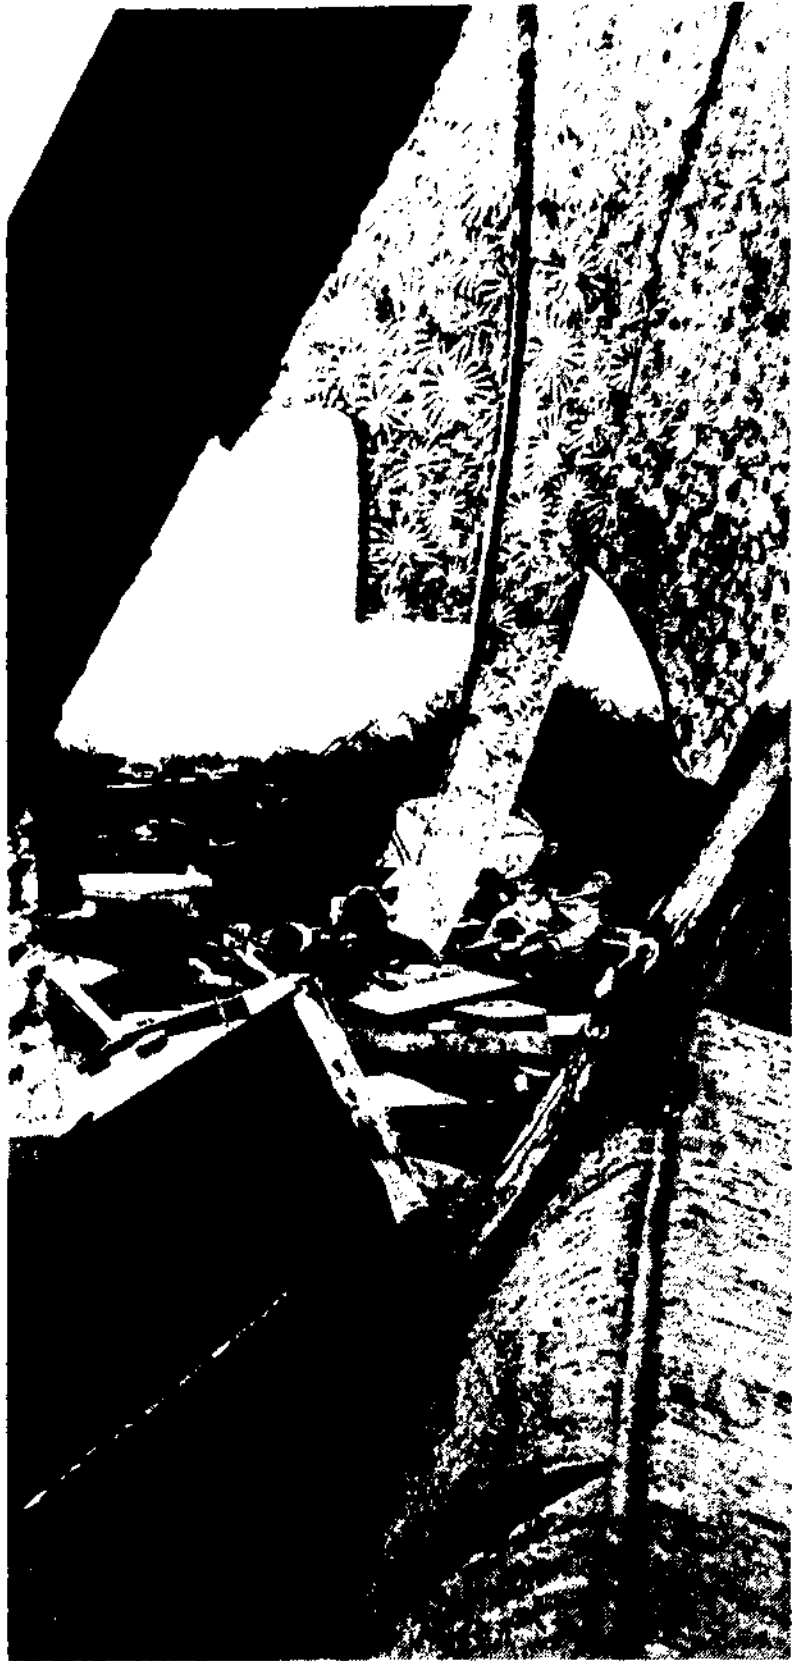

Although all three candidates for Wood Dale Dist. 7 seats were running unopposed, a large turnout for the Fenton Junior High School election raised the voter number well over 300. Three polling precincts were open from noon to 7 p.m.

Top Dist. 7 vote getter was Morton L. Wright who received 354 votes. Also reelected for three year terms were Robert Doane (324) and Jerry Gereer (318). All three reelected officials had previously served one term.

IN DIST. 10, there was a tight vote because of no contest at the high school or junior high level. Arnold Rusche, superintendent of Dist. 10, indicated it was the lightest voter turnout for the district in 10 years.

Three incumbents were also reelected in the uncontested election. Michael Debowski topped all three candidates by receiving 64 votes. Debowski was reelected

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELLMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at North-eastern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,144 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an Inverness housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 1,596 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied 4,020. And board member Le Roi Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 3,738.

votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,376 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not become official until the board canvasses the votes Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and William Mann, vice president for financial affairs, flipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts, primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings, who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Toot, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard-fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature, a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and often witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight, a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

Neuhauser Top Vote-Getter

It's as easy as one, two, but three was the hitch in the Dist. 59 board of education race for three three-year terms.

Mrs. Sharrie Hildebrandt and Mrs. Judith Zanca, first and second on the ballot captured two seats. Zanca with a 315 vote lead. Dr. Erwin Poklacki, third on the ballot, however, lost his place in the lineup to incumbent Harry Peterson, who edged his way into the third seat by three votes out of a total 8,361 for the 10 candidates.

Incumbent Paul Neuhauser soundly defeated his only opponent, Gerald Smiley by 1,151 votes for the two-year seat.

A minimum of 2,767 voters turned out in the run to select from the 12 candidates.

"WITHOUT A doubt, it surely must be some kind of record for Dist. 59," Al Wellman, acting superintendent, said.

Paul Neuhauser

Hildebrandt for two of the three three-year seats.

Mrs. Zanca came in on top when the first precinct reported, and carried her lead throughout the evening.

Commenting on her lead position near the end of the tally, Mrs. Zanca said, "I don't know how I feel yet. No, I'm happy. I'll do a good job."

Although eight of the 10 precincts had reported by 9:30 Saturday night tension ran high for almost two hours until the Salt Creek vote came in at 11:20 p.m., determining the winners.

Those still in the race for the last two seats at the end of the eight-precinct total were all from Elk Grove Village and had campaigned hard in the Salt Creek territory.

MRS. HILDEBRANDT would not definitely claim it as her precinct before the tally came in, but she sighed with relief and exclaimed, "My people," when Salt Creek provided her with 336 votes, 67 above the next contender.

When Poklacki heard of his three-vote defeat he said he would wait until the votes were canvassed before commenting.

Canvassing of the votes and the official count will be held at the next board meeting, scheduled for April 20.

Vote totals for the three-year seats are:

Judith Zanca, 1,500; Sharrie Hildebrandt, 1,185; Harry Peterson, 1,130; Erwin Poklacki, 1,127; Richard Pettinato, 917; Philip Lawson, 842; John Roesser, 750; Edwin Kudalis, 413; Nickolas Kostos, 280; Robert Winkle, 212; write-ins, 9; total, 8,361.

Vote totals for the two-year seat are: Paul Neuhauser, 1,556; Gerald Smiley, 503; write-ins, 6; total, 2,465.

Bauer, Burn Victim, Dies

Burton C. Bauer Jr., 202 W. Hawthorne St., who was badly burned and run over by an ambulance in a "freak" accident on April 6, died Saturday afternoon in Cook County Hospital Burn Center in Chicago.

Bauer, 32, part owner of Haire Funeral Home, was apparently working on a clogged gas line in an automobile parked near an ambulance in a garage near the funeral home when it suddenly burst into flames.

The victim's clothing caught fire and he fell to the ground after running out of the garage. An unidentified person ran to the garage to move the ambulance away from the fire and when the vehicle was driven from the garage, Bauer allegedly rolled in front of it.

Bauer suffered burns over 70 per cent of his body.

Defend Hlavin At Hearing

A letter written to the Elk Grove Village Park District complaining about supervision of Disney pool sparked the interest of 10 residents, who appeared at the board meeting Thursday in support of the swimming pool manager.

The letter, written by Mrs. Muriel Gloss of Elk Grove Village, a frequent user of the pool, requested an investigation of what she called "violations of the most elementary way of supervisory requirements."

The residents, who came in support of Bill Hlavin, pool manager, said they had heard about the complaints and wanted to insure that no action would be taken against him.

MRS. GLOSS, who said her concern was for the "safety and health of the public which uses the pool," appeared at the board meeting to hear a reply to her letter.

A response, which was termed "satisfactory" by Mrs. Gloss, was written by Mrs. Sandra Little, recreation superintendent, and read at the meeting.

Mrs. Gloss had presented complaints concerning showering street shoes on the swim deck, adequate lifeguarding and equipment.

Although many of the complaints were considered valid by the board and administration, the problems seemed to be a result of the pool construction adjacent to Lively Junior High School.

THE CONCERN ABOUT THE showers was that they were not always possible to turn on. Mrs. Little explained that the school district would be replacing the "gang showers" in June for individually controlled units, allowing users to shower without continuously running water.

The use of street shoes on the swim deck was caused by the inconvenient location of doors for street access to the swim area. The board recommended that correction of the problem be handled by the building and grounds committee.

The proper number of lifeguards always have been on duty, according to Hlavin, and more will be scheduled as pool use increases.

Hlavin was called a "great coach and wonderful manager" by one resident.

Another said, "He's the only person who can correct a kid and have him come back from nine to five on Saturdays."

Series Peeks At Astrology

by SUE CARSON
A glimpse into the heavens and the secrets they might hold was given to local residents Thursday by astrology expert Homer Lathrop.

An interested audience, mostly housewives, came to the gymnasium at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove to hear Lathrop expound on the influences on the heavenly bodies on nature and mankind. His lecture was the last in the Inquiry into the Unknown series, sponsored by the Longfellow Community Education Project.

"Astrology has been condemned and exalted to great heights, but it has never been disproved," Lathrop declared. "It has been the foundation of all religions. The Christian church was influenced by astrology, although in many cases this influence was kept secret."

"FOR EXAMPLE, the calculation of the date of Easter each year was plotted from the heavens. Biblical patriarchs were well versed in astrology and all the prophets used astrology to make their prophecies. The 19th Psalm has many references to astrology."

"The major astronomers, like Sr. Isaac Newton, began as astrologers," he added.

The 27-year-old Lathrop has studied physics and astronomy at Northwestern University and now teaches a course in astronomy at the "free university" there.

He told the audience that astronomy "should not be considered a faith, but a guide."

"WILL POWER IS ONE thing that can't be taken into consideration when calculating a horoscope. The person highly developed spiritually usually goes beyond the influence of the zodiac."

Lathrop admitted that he has gone against his own horoscope, but said "it's very difficult to do. Obstacles are thrown up to prevent a person from acting contrary to his horoscope, and they must be overcome."

Lathrop said that while horoscopes printed in newspapers and magazines may be helpful in giving insight into coming events, a detailed horoscope would take many hours to develop and would take up 15 or 20 pages.

HE EXPLAINED THAT each person has a certain zodiac sign according to his birth date. Certain general characteristics are associated with each sign.

"Those born under Cancer are protective, maternal types, while those born under Libra are well-adjusted. A Taurus is aggressive and a Virgo, analytical."

"All signs are ruled by a planet and each planet affects the sign," he said.

"Some planets rule more than one sign, as Venus which rules Taurus and Libra. Venus is the planet of love and honor, but Librans are more altruistic than those born under Taurus. Many judges are Librans."

The moon also influences man and his activities, according to Lathrop.

"It's better to be born under a new moon than a waning one. Persons born under a new moon have more vitality."

"More crime occurs under a full moon than at any other time."

Rips Meeting Time

A candidate for the State Senate has demanded that the time of Tuesday's annual town budget hearing in Elk Grove Township be changed from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. to allow more voters to attend.

Paul Shanyfelt of Elk Grove Village, Democratic candidate from the Third District, said the earlier starting time will "insure a low turnout."

"Many interested groups will not be able to attend due to work or having to stay at home because of their children attending school," he said.

SHANYFELT SAID this year's town meeting will be important in the light of a recent Illinois Supreme Court decision preventing townships from keeping a 2 per cent commission fee for collecting taxes.

"How will this be handled without costing the local residents more in an already hard hit tax year?" asked Shanyfelt.

The township, in an attempt to make up for the loss in excess fees (amounting to $340,000 last year), will ask voters at Tuesday's meeting to approve a tax levy.

Frank Hines, township attorney, explained why this year's meeting will be held at 2 instead of 8 p.m.

He said the time of this year's town meeting was determined by state statute.

HINES EXPLAINED that when the town meeting was adjourned in 1969 there was no provision for the hour this year's meeting would begin other than that it be held the second Tuesday in April.

State statute calls for town meetings to be held at 2 p.m. if not specifically stated at the previous town meeting, he said.

Last year's town meeting began at 8 p.m. because the hour of the meeting was included in the motion to adjourn in the previous year, 1968.

Shanyfelt suggested the township follow a practice that Congress uses, calling the meeting to order at 2 p.m. and adjourning to 8 p.m.

Hines said a state statute allows the town meeting to adjourn only to move to larger quarters to accommodate a crowd, and when it is unable to finish its business.

SHANYFELT ALSO fired a blast at the township form of government, which may be placed in jeopardy if a tax levy is not approved.

"If this form of government is so badly needed," he said, "the elected officials must show that they are responsive to the needs of the residents."

"It's the local resident's tax dollar that is being used to keep this duplicity of government in operation," he said. "At least give the taxpayers a chance to discuss openly what the elected officials are going to do with their money."

"AN ECLIPSE at the time of birth will have a definite influence on an individual's life," according to astrology teacher Homer Lathrop. Lathrop, who spoke Thursday at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, said that astrology "can help us understand ourself and our relation to others."

Costello Heads 214 Vote

by TOM WELLMAN
Jack Costello, Raymond Erickson and Joseph Schiffhauer Saturday night won three-year terms on the High School Dist. 214 Board.

Costello of Mount Prospect, who has already served one year on the board, led the field with 4,563 votes. Erickson of Arlington Heights, who has just completed his first three-year term, tallied 2,781, and Schiffhauer, also of Arlington Heights, gained 2,948 votes to win his first term on the board.

However, until the final five precincts were reported, Schiffhauer was closely challenged by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, the first black man ever to seek a Dist. 214 seat.

Brooks finished fifth, but with 22 of the 27 precincts reporting, he was only 114 votes behind Schiffhauer. However, the five remaining precincts, mainly from Arlington Heights, gave Schiffhauer an easy victory.

FOURTH PLACE WENT to Joseph Connery of Arlington Heights, who tallied 1,171. Brooks totaled 2,310, Robert Le Forge of Prospect Heights had 2,018, Mrs. Sophie Basile of Elk Grove Village collected 1,332 and Don McGlothlin finished with 811.

The results as recorded in the Dist. 214

Raymond Erickson

Jack Costello

Joseph Schiffhauer

offices in Mount Prospect are unofficial and they will be canvassed at a later date. However, it was apparent from the beginning that Costello and Erickson would be easily reelected to three-year terms.

"I feel very honored at winning," Costello said after the victory. "I'm appreciative of the support of the people, and I hope and feel that the support indicates an endorsement of my efforts."

He stressed he was impressed by the field of candidates, and he emphasized that he would work to serve the best interests of the young people and the community.

Erickson also stressed that he was pleased with the community support, and praised the losing candidates, one by one. Schiffhauer, who had to wait until the final return to be sure of his victory, said simply, "It's wonderful." He praised the teamwork and the hard work of a "great group of workers."

COSTELLO, IN LEADING the ballot, scored heavily in the Mount Prospect-

Des Plaines area, winning an overall total of 13 of the 27 precincts. Erickson could capture only three, but he scored large victories in Arlington Heights and was steady throughout Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships.

Schiffhauer was extremely strong in precinct 15, his home precinct, where he tallied 201 votes to 87 for Costello. But his heartstopping triumph came against Brooks' strength in Elk Grove Village, where Brooks consistently outscored Mrs. Basile, who finished seventh.

Connery, with strong backing from former Mount Prospect mayor Daniel Congreve, showed great strength in Arlington Heights and considerable power in Mount Prospect. Le Forge, former board president in Dist. 23, captured both of the Prospect Heights precincts.

Meetings Set in 'Shadow'

Area residents will have their single, yearly chance tomorrow to participate in democracy in its purest form.

Or at least take sides in the battle over the continuation of the township form of government in Cook County.

Cook County townships will hold their annual meetings tomorrow not knowing the result of their legal battle to restore "excess commissions."

The townships' practice of keeping 2 per cent of the taxes they collected for themselves was ruled unconstitutional last month by the State Supreme Court.

Lawrence Gunnels, a Chicago attorney representing the Cook County Tax Collector's Association, said a request for a rehearing of the decision will be filed either Tuesday or Wednesday. He said it was "absurd" to expect the decision before the township's annual meetings.

FOUR NORTHWEST suburban townships, Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling, are asking local residents to levy a township tax this week.

Gunnels claimed that when the Supreme Court made its decision to throw out the excess commissions it did not consider one of the key arguments in the defendants' case. That is, he said, where those who brought the suit live.

According to the brief, the plaintiffs cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission charged to taxes collected for exclusively suburban levying agencies.

"The vast bulk of taxes paid by suburban residents," the argument says, "are paid to levying agencies that are solely within the townships and have no connection or relation to the City of Chicago or to the plaintiffs as Chicago residents."

The plaintiffs, it continues, "clearly cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission that is retained on these taxes and spent in the townships for public purposes."

The suit was filed by William J. Harte and Kevin M. Forde, two Chicago attorneys.

Program Set For Wrestlers By Park Dist.

The Elk Grove Park District will sponsor a pilot program in wrestling this spring.

Mrs. Sandra Little, recreation superintendent, announced recently that the program for fifth through eighth graders will begin April 25 and continue through May 23.

The program was established prior to the regular summer programming to determine how successful it would be before scheduling it on a larger basis, she said.

Norm Loveless, Elk Grove High School's wrestling coach, will be the instructor. Classes will be held in the high school wrestling room.

Fifth grade sessions will be from 9 to 10:30 a.m., sixth grade from 10:30 to noon, and seventh and eighth grade from 1 to 2:30 p.m. each Saturday.

Registration will be held Tuesday in the high school wrestling room from 8:30 to 9 p.m. A $2 fee will be charged for the program.

Any questions on the program should be directed to Mrs. Little at the park district office at 427-5780.

Joint Housing Effort A 'Must'

Only a joint effort by communities, townships, and the county will solve the housing shortage for low-income families, said a member of a housing task force in Elk Grove Village.

"We cannot solve the problem on a village by village basis," said Edward Kenna who spoke Friday night at a panel discussion in an Arlington Heights church. "It must be a joint venture," he said.

ALONG WITH solving the housing problem, Kenna said, a social problem that accompanies persons new to the suburbs must be solved at the same time.

They must be taught how to get along in an area which is different than from where they came, he explained.

Kenna was one of four panel members who spoke before a group of about 80 persons in the basement of the Congregational United Church of Christ, 1001 W. Kirchoff Road.

Kenna has served 2½ months on a housing task force assigned the job of placing 17 Mexican-American families in permanent housing. The families had been living in substandard dwellings deemed unsafe in recent months following the death of three children last November in Elk Grove Township.

"WE STILL haven't housed the 17 families," he said. There is no housing of a permanent nature for them, he asserted.

One of the 17 families Kenna referred to is living in the basement of the church only a few feet away from where he spoke.

A mother and her three children have been living there since mid-March when friends moved her from a dilapidated trailer near Higgins Road and Oakton Street.

Mrs. William Trevor, of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the housing shortage is no longer a problem but a disaster.

"Half the population is priced out of the housing market in the United States," she said.

CHARLES CATLIN, an Arlington Heights architect who has worked with public housing projects, used slides to illustrate attractive low-income housing for families and senior citizens.

CONSTRUCTION COSTS for such housing would be about $15,000 if included in a 50-unit project, he said afterward.

The federal government buys the land, builds the homes, charges nominal rent, and finances the homes through tax free bonds.

Rudolph Hazucha, of the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition, said his organization wants to set up housing committees in each community and survey the communities to find who the needy families are.

He said the coalition has also proposed that each resident give $1 a month for an emergency housing fund. Though only $250 has been collected, he indicated he was optimistic.

Library To Stress Theme

Library Week, today through Saturday, will not be forgotten by the Elk Grove Village Public Library, although building construction prohibits special activities.

Mrs. Evelyn Schmidt, head librarian, indicated that the national theme, "Reading is for Everybody," will be stressed by the library.

Gov. Richard Ogilvie, honorary chairman of the citizen's committee for National Library Week, issued a proclamation designating Library Week in Illinois.

THE GOAL of the 1970 observance is to promote the idea that libraries and librarians can make library services lively, exciting and relevant as well as worthwhile.

Accompanying the "Reading is for Everybody" theme is one advocating "Read — Look — Listen in Your Library."

Village Pres. Jack Pahl also proclaimed this week as library week in Elk Grove Village.

Mrs. Schmidt explained that due to construction of the addition and remodeling in the main library area no programming has been scheduled.

The addition is on schedule, according to Mrs. Schmidt, with completion in early June.

Garage Fire-Suspect Arson

A garage fire last Wednesday at the Donald Peska residence, 140 S. Walnut in Bensenville, may have been arson, according to Fire Chief Martin Heinrich.

Heinrich said this is the third fire in that nearby area that could be attributed to arson.

The fire chief said the garage was engulfed in flames when the fire equipment arrived at the scene.

There was no car in the garage at the time and the structure was completely destroyed, according to the fire chief.

THE DAY BEFORE the fire, Mrs. Elaine Peska reported someone had damaged her car. Police said a railroad train was placed on the car tracks and burned spot on the finish.

Mrs. Peska told police her husband reported two youths to 51st and 101st streets that day. Police are investigating both incidents.

True Kephart of Wood Dale, a son of a Benson High School in Bensenville, reported to police his car had been damaged by an explosion while parked in the lot on Feb. 12.

Police reported that another railroad flat was placed on his car and had coated the finish with sulfuric acid. There was no one seen in the lot at the time of the incident, police said.

2 Charged In Tollway Death

Two men, 17 and 18 years old, will involuntarily stand trial Thursday in the death of Mrs. Barbara Snyder, who was killed last Sunday. One in a pound rock was dropped from the windshield of the car, according to the Northwest Tollway.

The two men, involuntarily, stand trial were charged for James Arnold, 17, and David Akers, 18, of the Northwest Tollway.

Donald Smith of the Illinois State Police, Tollway District 15, said the two men, included in the Niles County, Ill., Bond was set at $10,000 each.

Smith and Sgt. Donald Tobin, also with District 15, have been working on the case since the Sept. 29 fatality. The arrests were made with the cooperation of the Illinois State Police department. CHIEF JOHN O'Connell said the arrests resulted from information given by a source, Hoffman, U.S. police, who asked the information to Smith and Tobin.

At the time the arrests last week were made, Smith, Det. Ronald Spradley and Det. William Muleale.

The two men, excellent example of the tollway, on the part of Sgt. Duane, and other officers, Chief O'Connell said.

Smith and Akers, currently in the Tollway, are charged with armed robbery, and a full from an earlier case, on March 28.

Smith and Akers, 17, and 18, were charged with the death of Mrs. Snyder, 27, who was killed when a car was thrown into the tollway from the Illinois Road, according to Hoffman's statement.

The tollway is driven by the Illinois Department of Transportation.

A Pledge To Be Fulfilled

A blind, 14-year-old Rolling Meadows boy will go to Springfield tomorrow to help Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie fulfill a pledge he made during his 1968 campaign for governor.

Dan Cooley, of 3202 St. James Street, will ride to the state capital tomorrow morning with State Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and Rolling Meadows Ald. James Huddleston.

In Springfield, Dan and his escorts will have lunch with Third District Con-Con Delegates John G. Woods, and Mrs. Virginia Macdonald and will visit the Illinois House of Representatives while it is in session.

But the highlight of the day will come at 2:15 when Dan says hello to the man who invited him to Springfield, the governor.

Dan first met Ogilvie in October 1968, when the Ogilvie campaign paid a visit to the Rolling Meadows shopping center.

The young boy and several hundred other Saturday afternoon shoppers listened to Ogilvie and when the candidate stepped down from the speaker's platform, Dan extended his hand.

Ogilvie, who was president of the Cook County board at the time, shook Dan's hand and made a personal pledge to the blind boy.

"Young man, if I'm elected, I want you to come to Springfield to visit me," Ogilvie said.

Among those who overheard the pledge were Mrs. Glen Ann Jicha, Palatine Township GOP committeewoman, and Huddleston.

So when the governor was elected, Mrs. Jicha decided to take him up on his promise to the boy and she asked Huddleston to find out who the boy was.

Huddleston did some scouting around and learned that the boy was a nephew of an employee in the Rolling Meadows city hall.

It took awhile for the plans to be arranged and to find an opening in the governor's busy schedule but with the help of Graham, the plans were set for tomorrow.

Huddleston and young Cooley plan to meet Graham and Regner at the DuPage County Airport early tomorrow morning. They will then drive to Springfield, arriving in time for lunch with the Con-Con delegates.

Graham and Regner will be staying in the state capital for the spring session of the legislature, but Huddleston and Dan will fly back to the DuPage airport around dinner time.

Dan, who will graduate this year from Jack London junior high school, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Cooley.

They don't have a car yet, but the Northwest Opportunity Center in Rolling Meadows plans to offer driver's education classes beginning in May.

"The car we have been using is quite old and we would appreciate the use of another," she stated. "We also need volunteers to teach the classes."

Classroom instruction is scheduled to start in May and on-the-road instruction in June, the director said.

Mrs. Stanley said the center is also seeking housing for a disadvantaged family of 10 who were recently displaced from their home.

The Way We See It

Teens Tackle Trash

Spring's thaw brings many things besides relief, joy, good will, ice-free streets and flowers.

It brings, among the other things, litter.

When the last of the snow fades away, it lays bare in our towns the residue of winter's neglect. Along streets, in alleys and parking lots, on lawns, on park grounds and sidewalks, the remnants of conscious and unconscious littering lie scattered in offensive array.

It's not much to look at, the panorama of discarded cans, bottles, license plates, paper, wood, mufflers, home appliances, and assorted other scraps and trash.

It's part of the pollution problem that doesn't get much attention or publicity, however unappealing it may be. Residents generally don't seem to get stirred up about it, perhaps because they're so much responsible for it.

The prevailing attitude is that it's a time for public works crews to perform, to get the trucks out and scour the community to pick up our rubble.

But there's another way as well, and a number of communities —

Hoffman Estates included — are trying it.

Local teens are being encouraged to roll up their sleeves and dig into the problem themselves, helping rid their communities of unsightly debris with a little physical labor.

The most impressive example has been in Rockford, where 125 students from Harlem High School organized themselves into a group called SCRAP (Students Constructive Revolt Against Pollution).

They didn't like the look of the area in their neighborhood, so they teamed up on a garbage hunt. In one afternoon alone, they picked up four truckloads of junk in one park area.

The Hoffman Estates project — touched off by the convincing complaint of a resident to village leaders — didn't generate quite the same enthusiasm. But when the superintendent of streets and the park district director did get the program going, they came up with 16 teens — two girls included — who cared enough about their town to spruce it up. They spent their Easter break from Conant and St.

Viator high schools combing the community for litter.

Those 16 are to be commended, and so is the whole idea of getting teen volunteer corps to fan out in their towns to give them a spring facelifting.

It's a most constructive form of community involvement, a way for young people to show that they do care, and that they care enough to get their hands dirty.

The towns are theirs, too, and even in this little way they can do their part to make them better places to live.

We think all our communities are missing a bet if they don't try the same tactic, especially in the spring when litter is such a widespread nuisance. They can get a big and a messy job done quickly and efficiently, and at the same time implant a special feeling of productivity among all the helping hands.

We all have a stake in it, as one Rockford Harlem youngster observed, when he said, "The stuff we were picking up wasn't dumped there by industry. It was dumped there by people."

Critic's Corner

It Was Haunting Reality

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Are there really haunted houses? I think so.

At least, it is something that shouldn't be passed off very lightly. It's certainly not a passing fad, nor anything very new.

I really didn't know what to expect one recent evening when I tagged along with Mrs. Richard Broman. She's a woman who is able to serve as a medium, is able to see auras and give readings under the category of public service and not business, which means she's not in it for money.

Carol is not a figment of our times. Rather the times have finally caught up with Carol.

Anyway, we were on our way to what

by all popular definitions was an honest-to-goodness haunted house, a house in which a young housewife could hear someone climb the basement stairs and the piercing cries of an unhappy frightened child which even a turned up stereo could not drown out. Household articles began to disappear or be wildly misplaced.

AT FIRST IT SCARED the woman. Like all rational creatures, she refused to believe there was something within the house in addition to her husband and child. Today she will gladly tell you, "I will believe anything. Everyone does once they experience it for themselves."

There is a long story involved which Carol was gradually able to piece together . . . how a crippled retarded man had starved to death years ago on the property, having always been confined to the basement of his home . . . how a little girl decades ago had inadvertently been beaten to death by her stepmother . . . how the poor tormented woman herself, feeling a tremendous burden of guilt, had been unable to be released from her present existence and so also haunted the premises.

The characters only serve as backdrops. What is important is what happened, what I think happened, what I believe happened, because naturally nothing can be proven. Those strictly living by science would be sorely disappointed. I'm not and I wasn't.

THE SEVEN OF US gathered in one small room and Carol, acting as medium, contacted the unhappy woman who felt persecuted by those around her. The rest of us prayed.

The room was dark and small and maybe it was only my imagination, a desire to really experience something so I could convince myself yes, this all was actually happening. I don't think so. I felt a general feeling of oppressiveness, and my body was continually racked with waves of chills, even though under normal conditions, the confined room would have been stifling and sent us all out gasping for air.

To use layman's terms, we were successful. The home was "dehaunted." We were able to relieve the woman of her guilt, reunite her with her child and thus release them from their bondage to the property.

And the lonely little man? He followed along like a puppy dog. You see, he had made friends with the little girl, possibly the only friend he had ever had.

I DIDN'T actually see the woman or even hear the voices. I only heard Carol. Even my eerie feeling can be explained away. And the missing articles? Well, that's a little harder to explain, but someone will.

So, I almost expect people to laugh at me when I relate the experience. I don't even bore them with additional details unless they are interested.

But in the same respect, those same unbelievers will never convince me that the whole thing was merely a creation of all our imaginations. We who live strictly within our five senses have no right to knock or judge anything we think we can't try or experience.

Need Broader Cultural Interest

by DAN BAUMANN

Some of the area's culture enthusiasts got a big dose of inspiration recently when the Arlington Heights Cultural Commission traveled to Milwaukee to see that city's performing arts center.

They noted and aaked at the theatres and rental halls, at the stark white marble walls, red velvet furnishings, architectural and acoustical innovations, dining and meeting facilities and parking structure.

And in the back of their minds they wondered how Arlington Heights could ever hope to have a facility in which they could take equal, or relative, pride and enthusiasm.

If any of them ever hoped to duplicate the Milwaukee center, which is doubtful, defeat seemed already in their grasp.

THE MILWAUKEE Center cost $12 million. It represents years of struggle and effort. It represents the best work of a population center of 1.2 million people and the enormous pride of some of the richest families in the Midwest.

You and I helped pay for the center by buying some of the products that made Milwaukee famous . . . particularly machine tools and beer. The family that owns the Schlitz brewery gave enough money to have the main concert hall named after them.

The owners of a machine tool company have a pavilion in the center named after them.

Practically everything in the center other than Men's and Women's is a family name.

The managing director of the center told the local group of one wealthy patron of the arts ready to drop $500,000 in to the kitty to have a major room named after him. All the major rooms had been named for other equally generous contributors.

There aren't too many people in Arlington Heights who have that kind of money, much less to give away. It is obvious the local center will have to be built with the help of a lot more small donors.

IT ALSO SEEMS likely some kind of public financing will be needed to help build the center. The Village of Arlington Heights has already provided land for the project; that's an enormous contribution but don't be surprised if more is needed. A public building commission may be the answer, with costs returned from revenue of the center plus gifts.

But the big consideration probably will be the scope of influence. Trying to build an Arlington Heights-only facility for Arlington Heights culture could be very shortsighted.

The Northwest suburban community is a relatively tight-knit and homogeneous amalgam. At least as far as people are concerned.

An attractive, functional cultural center in Arlington Heights would serve an area far beyond the village's borders.

FOR THE NEXT decade, one major cultural center could serve all Northwest Cook County and parts of adjacent Lake and DuPage; in the future another center might be needed to complement it.

People would gladly travel a few miles to use a worthwhile center, as they do in Milwaukee.

Unfortunately, community pride and jealousy could interfere with an area-wide effort to build a really major center. Arlington Heights would have to give up some of its direct control and identification; it's hard to imagine some other communities giving any help for a center located in another town.

But a large facility serving the whole area would enhance the climate of all towns in the northwest community.

Knox Notes

Let's Go Easy; It's Only Junk

by KEN KNOX

Junk mail

That has such a nice ring to it.

It also masquerades as bulk mail, mass mailings, and commercial mail, but it's really junk mail, and I get about four pounds of it each week in my mailbox. Which is about 15 times what I get of the other stuff, like bills, cards and letters.

It takes many forms: flyers, pamphlets, brochures, catalogs, form letters, handbills and other miscellaneous folded and unfolded sheets.

It comes from many sources: insurance companies, car companies, seat cover companies, record companies, book companies, rug companies, food companies, leather goods companies, dirty film companies, marriage manual companies, physical fitness companies, magazine companies, and ad infinitum companies.

AND IT HAS ONE distinctive characteristic: none of it is stuff you asked for, or particularly want to receive, or would miss if you never got it, or even especially bother to open.

But it keeps coming, and keeps you limber giving it the fast shuffle to the trash can.

That's why it's a little vexing to get the impression that Pres. Nixon wants to keep this country in the junk mail business, at the expense of all us dolts who go first class.

The plan, as one wag described it, is to turn the neighborhood post office into a dime store. The 10-cent postage stamp is a must, the President says, if we're to pull together enough money to give our mailmen their desperately-needed pay raises.

ACTUALLY, POSTAL hikes will be across the board in the Nixon plan, which goes something like this:

—Up 67 per cent in first class rates, jacking up the old six-cent to a 10-cent rate. That'll bring in about $2.3 billion extra a year.

—Up 12 per cent in second class rates, which applies mostly to magazines and newspapers. They pay an average of 2.4 cents a piece now, and the minimum would zoom from 1.3 to 1.6 cents. Estimated new revenue: about $16 million a year.

—Up a whopping five per cent in third class, which is the junk-mail-commercial category. They now pay 3.5 cents a piece for the first 250,000 pieces, and four cents a piece for larger mailings. They'd go to a standard 4.2 cents a piece minimum. New revenue: about $125 million.

I'M NOT MUCH on economics, but somehow that doesn't seem right. We come up with an extra $2.3 billion, and the second and third class mailers chip in $141 million.

Meantime, it's the second and third class cargo that's breaking the collective back of our postmen. I shudder at the plight of the pony express, if it ever had to carry that stuff.

Doesn't it make more sense — since the junk mail is what's glutting the postman's bag — to put a high tariff there?

That not only would haul in some extra revenue, but it might also slow down the flow of all that unwanted paper. Which would make for lighter mail pouches, happier mailmen, emptier trash cans, and maybe even cheaper cost of moving the mail.

But I suppose in an age when we stress mediocrity in candidates for the Supreme Court, it also makes sense to give a favored position to mediocre mail.

The Fence Post

Academy: 'Theory Great'

I've read, with quite some interest, the various pros and cons which have been appearing in the Herald as to the relevancy of the Sidewalk Academy, and of the contributions to understanding, if any, made by the people who had the platform.

I attended only two sessions. I heard some veiled, and some not-so-veiled, threats to white society by the president of Malcolm X College and a Black Panther.

Also, I heard some amazing accusations and pontifications by a black policeman, plus a very simplistic and impractical recitation by a white priest.

MY LIMITED observation is that there was much emotional rhetoric but nothing of substance offered by anyone, either by the speakers or by the questioning audience.

I agree with those who believe that such a forum should be provided for those with a grievance against society. (And the black man certainly has some grievances.) The beleaguered old establishment must make this provision if for no other reason than to preserve its own integrity.

But as happens all too often (and as happened at the Sidewalk Academy) the people whom we had express their views were extremists with no practical solutions to offer. They seemed to be armed only with threats and much abuse for the establishment, plus some self-serving purposes neatly wrapped-up in extremely shallow social, political, and economic philosophy.

I'm sure Clyde Brooks had the best intentions in promoting the academy. But

I'm afraid that its contribution to understanding, because of the speakers chosen, was negligible. I'm also afraid, however, that it may have succeeded in doing what many of the speakers wanted to do: exploit the emotions and immaturity of the idealistic young. I saw some evidence of this.

The theory of the Sidewalk Academy is great. It could probably be effective, too, if concerned rational people became platform participants.

Fenton Shows Life, Handles Grove, 4-1

You've come a long way, Bisons.

Fenton's baseball players, over a span of four days last week, made as much progress toward becoming a team as women did over a century in liberating themselves.

It looked like a long, long season coming up for coach Jim Monahan and his boys after they were outscored 41-1 in their first two games, being walloped 19-0 and 22-1.

But instead of despairing, they started their instant comeback with a 2-2 tie Friday and then journeyed to Elk Grove Saturday morning to conquer a fine Grenadier team, 4-1.

Some timely hitting in the early going and a fine seven-inning pitching job by Bill Papke added up to Fenton's first triumph and gave the Bisons a big boost in confidence.

It was mighty difficult to keep an arm loose in the miserable cold drizzle of Saturday morning, but Papke's was just loose enough. He went the entire route, showed excellent control with just one walk, and allowed six scattered hits.

Losing pitcher Dave Hilderbrand was sharp, too, striking out four and walking nobody in his five-inning stint. Dave Ristau finished up, whiffing three and walking one, as Elk Grove held Fenton hitless over the last five innings.

Elk Grove coach Larry Peddy had praise for Hilderbrand, who is just recovering from a bout with mononucleosis. "We're getting him in shape as fast as possible by putting him right into ball games, and he did a real fine job today," Peddy said.

It was a frustrating game for Elk Grove, but Peddy was pleased with his team's overall performance and is sure they will bounce back.

"We were really tagging the ball today, but always right at somebody," Peddy lamented. "That doesn't make up for only scoring one run, but we had them in trouble about half the game."

Mike Losch experienced the epitome of Elk Grove's anguish, having the best 0-for-four day you'll ever see. All Losch did in being blanked was hammer three hard shots, two of which Peddy estimated went about 350 feet apiece. Both of them, helped along by the wind, were caught because Elk Grove's outfield fence is not yet up. "That fence will be up Monday," Peddy promised.

Fenton got all its runs in the first three innings and all its hits in the first two, but Papke made the lead stand up.

Armando Palacios immediately gave the Bisons a lift by leading off the game with a home run. It was a solid poke, also helped by the wind blowing out to left field.

Fenton added two more runs in the second on its last three hits before Hilderbrand settled down. Bill Murphy singled and stole second. After a strikeout, Gary Tett singled and he and Murphy executed a double steal. Murphy scoring, Frank Spillone then drove in the third run with a base hit.

The Bisons added a run in the third on two errors. Mike Fonseca reached base on the first, stole second, took third on an overthrow and came in on Bob Wisniewski's sacrifice fly.

Dave Ristau was two-for-four for Elk Grove and catcher Neil Noga rapped a double, but the timely hits just didn't come.

The Grenadiers averted a shutout and came within a whisker of tying the game in the bottom of the seventh, after two outs with nobody on base.

Nick Adams singled, went to second on an error, and was driven in on Ristau's base hit. Kevin Chesney also hit safely to put two men on and Losch followed with a mighty blast to left which seemed certain to be a game-tying homer.

But Palacios made a spectacular, over-the-shoulder catch to save the game for Fenton. He thus wore the hero's mantle in fielding as well as hitting for the Bisons — who have indeed come a long way in a short time.

'Cats Have 1-1-1 Week

Glen Jarzemboski came within three outs of pitching perfection in his very first varsity mound performance Saturday as Wheeling picked up their first baseball triumph of the campaign by running visiting Niles North Saturday 8-0.

The triumph came on the heels of a 6-0 statement at Deerfield an evening earlier. Coupled with an opening day loss to Niles West, the Wildcats have now molded a 1-1-1 log against a trio of Central Suburban league foes prior to entering their own circuit race.

Jarzemboski, who blanked Deerfield in one inning of relief Friday, added seven more scoreless frames of pitching the following morning and only a leadoff triple in the seventh prevented him from chalking up a no-hitter in his hurling debut.

"He looked real quick," Cat mentor Ron DeBolt observed of his moundsman after the contest. "His curve ball was decent and his control was good. I had planned on him just going four or five innings because of the cold but he hadn't thrown many pitches so I let him try for it."

After the three-bagger, a hard liner, Jarz settled down and squashed the threat. The next Viking popped out to third, the next fanned and a fly out to right then preserved the shutout.

In the meantime Scott Day and Speedy Wiesen provided the hot bats in Wheeling's ten-hit attack, each of them getting a trio of safeties. Wiesen singled to open the home half of the first, moved to second when the ball was mishandled in left and then scored on a one-base rap by John Dyson.

Day also singled, sending home Dyson and moving the hosts up 2-0 after an inning of play.

The hurler helped his own cause in the third with a leadoff single and after Wiesen followed him to paths by walking, Dyson singled Jar home and Day drove home two more with a single to right center.

The 'Cats picked up a pair of insurance runs in the sixth. Wiesen singled and stole second and came home on another Day hit. Later Dino Sheridan and Terry Lundquist crossed the plate too when a fly ball off the bat of Gary Schweitzer was bobbled in right field.

In the Deerfield tilt Wheeling put four runs on the board in the second and led 6-2 after three-and-a-half innings but the Warriors picked up a pair each in the fourth and sixth stanza to earn the stand-off.

Bill Tyler started on the mound for the visitors and went the first six frames although he was tapped for a couple of two-run 330-foot circuit blasts.

Wiesen headed up the seven-hit 'Cat offensive with two singles and a walk in four trips.

DeBolt's group takes a few days off now before resuming action by moving into a conference match with visiting Conant Wednesday.

ANAHEIM, Calif. (UPI) — The Cleveland Indians used four pitchers in a one hit game they lost to the California Angels last year. The Angels won, 3-2, on a two walks, a double by Aurelio Rodriguez, another walk, a sacrifice fly by Tom Egan and an error by the catcher, all in the fifth inning.

A Nice Habit for Falcons

"This was quite a ball game."

That was Coach Tom Seidel's first reaction to Forest View's third game of the season Thursday afternoon.

The Falcons, hosting York of Elmhurst in a non-conference contest, made a brilliant comeback in the final inning to win 5-1.

"We've been behind in all three ball games," said Seidel while discussing the Falcons' 3-0 record. "But we've got some kids that can hit the ball, so it's pretty hard to count us out."

Another fine Forest View crowd, however, might have had some doubts late in the bottom of the fifth when its team was down 1-3, there were two outs and it was getting dark. But Ryan Maly came to the rescue.

The lanky senior crunched a triple to the football fence in left field and strolled home with the tying run when the relay was thrown out of play.

This sparked the Falcons. Sophomore third baseman Randy Jespersen singled and Buzz Johnson and Ed Banskfield walked to load the bases. Bob Novak was inserted as a pinch runner at third and he came in soon after when, with Bob Kaspar batting, the York catcher let a pitch get past him and the game was over.

York scored in the first and second frames to take a 2-0 lead, but Forest View matched that with a pair in the bottom of the second after Jespersen's shot to center was dropped. It came with the bases loaded and two runs tallied.

The Falcons took the lead in the third when Maly again came through in the clutch with a run-producing single.

York pushed two more over in the top of the fifth to set the stage for the Falcons' late heroics.

Forest View's George Schmidt hurled the first three innings, Dennis O'Keefe tossed the fourth and Johnson threw the fifth.

"The ball club still has a way to go," Seidel points out. "There are aspects of the game we can improve upon to become a top caliber team."

Although he was hoarse from the close contest, the Falcons' new head coach was fairly happy with the way the season had gone so far. But, when asked about this season's perfect record, he only commented, "We just take them one at a time."

Falcon Netmen
Whip York, 4-1

This could be Forest View's big year in tennis. At least the Falcons' opener would lead one to believe that.

Captain Doug Tolman's boys went to Huhns to take on a talented York team and came back with a 4-1 victory, the first win ever over the Ducks.

The Falcons shipped through the single without a loss. Scott Vaughn won his first set against Dave Krohne, 6-2, lost the second 1-6, and then rallied to take the first singles match 7-5.

Don Martin Forest View's No. 2 man, it was forced three sets before winning 6-2, 3-6 and 6-2 — over Bill Meyers. Put his brother, Dick, handled his man, Dave Patterson fairly easy — 6-0 and 6-4.

The Falcons also captured first doubles as Fred Melone and Kirk Buckholz disposed of Bob Grob and Dave Oetke, 6-1 and 6-2.

But Bill Joyce and John Placek couldn't get the job done against Skip Jones and Gary Pokorn in losing, 6-2 and 6-3.

The York fresh-soph team easily handled the Falcons, 5-0, in straight sets.

"Melone and Buckholz were impressive in their first start," Tolman said. "Vaughn showed a lot of desire and confidence in coming back to win the third set after losing a close second."

The Falcon coach was also happy with the Martin boys' play.

Forest View will play its first home meet today against Addison Trail at 4:30 p.m.

Bats Silent;
Fremd Falts

Fremd's baseball team must get some hitting if it is to be a contender in the Mid-Suburban League, according to head coach Terry Gellinger.

The Vikings, who connected only twice in the season opener against tough Glenbrook North, managed just one safety at Glenbrook South in falling 5-0.

Saving his teammates from the embarrassment of a no-hitter was Mike Kolze. The senior catcher smacked a bloop line drive to center in the seventh inning. Dave Wickersham followed with a walk, but both died at first and second when the Titan hurler retired the next three Vikings.

Fremd also had a chance earlier in the game when Wickersham walked with no one out. He was bunted to second, the next batter fanned, and Tim Simpson walked. But, again, both runners didn't progress any further.

The Titans did their damage in the third inning. Mark Wimer, who had destroyed St. Viator on Wednesday, crashed a double with the bases loaded off starting pitcher Steve Kellett. Wimer's shot cleared the bases and the next batter doubled him for the fourth run. Then the fifth tally came home on a wild pitch and a passed ball.

Kellett had a fine game going until the third. The Titans had a bloop single in the first and were shut out in the second. And the leadoff single in the third which started the rally was also not tagged ... but the doubles were.

Rick Pockel hurled the last two frames while only allowing one walk.

The Titans' pitcher was tough on the Vikings as he fanned 11. Had they put the ball in play, they might have done some damage for the wind was playing tricks on every fly ball.

Lion Rally Falls Short

by LARRY EVERHART

The never-say-die Lions of St. Viator created a lot of excitement with their last ditch rally against Marist on the Vianth diamond last Friday.

Unfortunately, though, it was the same kind of excitement as a 400-foot drive that is hauled in on the warning track. Baseball isn't like horseshoes, and close doesn't count.

In ever increasing darkness closing in on the field in the bottom of the sixth inning St. Viator pushed across three last-minute runs. But it wasn't quite enough as they took a tough 6-5 loss to Marist, one of their big challengers for the crown in the Chicagoland Prep League opener.

One game isn't reason to get discouraged yet because the Lions also got off to a slow start last year before winning the title. Marist fell one game short that time.

Mike Pettenuzzo, counted on to be the Lions' pitching ace, didn't quite have it Friday in cold weather that had a good-sized crowd shivering under heavy topcoats and blankets.

The Red-knits jumped on Pettenuzzo for three quick runs in the top of the first inning when they batted around.

Mike Plahn singled and stole second before Bill Madden made a fine catch on a long, towering foul fly, with Plahn going to third. But the next batter walked and also pilfered a base. After a strikeout, Marist scored all three runs with two out on a walk and hit batsmen sandwiched around two more singles.

Marist made it 4-0 in the third on a walk, two stolen bases and a single before St. Viator dented the scoreboard in the same frame. Speedy Mike Abinanti beat out an infield hit, moved up on a groundout and eventually scored on Pettenuzzo's base hit.

Two more runs scored for Marist in the fourth on a walk and two singles. That made it 6-1 and the Lions' hopes, as well as the light around the field, were getting ever dimmer.

But the hosts got one run back in the fifth when Abinanti walked, stole second and third and scored on a hit by reliable Mike O'Donnell (who again led Viator's six-hit attack with two safeties).

Pettenuzzo was finally chased in the fourth inning in favor of Scott Lindberg, who pitched to just one batter. Sophomore Ken Martin did a fine job finishing up, holding Marist at bay and almost making it possible for the Lions to pull it out.

With visibility precarious at best in the bottom of the sixth, Jim Golden led off with a bloop single and Steve Snyder pinch-ran for him. Steve Smith then reached base on an error.

After a strikeout, pinch-hitter Tom Smith cracked a double, scoring both runners. O'Donnell came through with another solid clutch hit, scoring Smith and making it 6-5, but the game ended on Mark Rossi's high fly to the right fielder.

Jim Tennecott went the distance for the pitching triumph as Marist outthit the Lions 6-6.

Sweet But Frigid Victory
For Harper in 1970 Debut

by PAUL LOGAN

Clete Hinton, coach of Harper College's baseball team, planned on giving just three pitchers of his talented staff work-outs in the season opener against Wau-bensee College.

However, a fourth hurler had to be brought on late in the nine inning contest held at freezing, wind swept Pioneer Park.

Steve Bahn, Mr. Number Four, relieved in the eighth when the Chiefs, who had trailed 9-2, held their biggest uprising. The former Fremd ace survived several errors by his teammates to finally cut short the rally with the score 9-8. Then he retired the side in order in the final frame to preserve the sweet but frigid victory.

The Hawks looked unbeatable during the first six innings behind the combination of strong pitching, fine hitting and an errorless defense.

Starting moundman Tom Koehler gave up an opposite field double and a single while shutting out the visitors for the first three innings. During that time, his mates were scoring six runs.

Jim Stramborski, who tallied in the first inning after an error, drove in two runs in the second on a freak infield single. Gary Curtin and John Trunda, who had led off the inning with singles and had moved to second and third on infield outs, danced home when Stramborski's smash bounced off the Wau-bensee pitcher.

The third inning wasn't any fluke as the Hawk bats of Jim Kenny, John Nemenich, Curtin and Trunda banged out four straight safeties. Curtin and Trunda each chalked up an RBI and the third run came home after an error.

Ron Kunde, who hurled the next three innings, only faced nine batters while not allowing a hit. And the one Chief who he walked was erased on a fine double play.

Grove Net
Team Wins
Over Larkin

Elk Grove's tennis team warmed up for a big quadrangular Saturday with a 5-0 blanking of Elgin Larkin on the Grenadier courts in the season opener last Thursday.

Coach Ken Rundquist's squad had little trouble with the visitors, as just one match went beyond the minimum two sets.

Pat Massey polished off Mike Reat in No. 1 singles, 6-1, 6-1. Elk Grove also won the other two singles contests with ease, as Chris Lesniak topped Jon Mink, 6-2, 6-0 in No. 2 action and the third man, Mark Hopkins, defeated Norm Zuservics, 6-4, 6-2.

In the first doubles match, Dave Griffith and Ken Siebold beat Ken Sell and Ken Runyan, 6-2, 6-3. The No. 2 duo completed the shutout with a 6-2, 6-8, 6-2 triumph. Dave Hansen and Steve Marresso downing Steve Larson and Dan Medino.

The Grenadier fresh-soph squad duplicated the varsity achievement with a 5-0 whitewash of their own.

The Grove was slated to host a quad Saturday against Addison Trail, Fenton and St. Charles. Tuesday they will entertain St. Viator and Thursday the Grens will be at Forest View to open the Mid-Suburban League season.

Falcon Coach Disappointed

Disappointment is the only word to describe Coach Bill Mohrmann's feelings after his Forest View track team hosted a triangular with Elgin and Lake Zurich Thursday.

The Falcons could have won the meet, according to Mohrmann, had they had consistent efforts in the distance events. Instead, they fell before Elgin 76-71 with Lake Zurich coming in with 12 points, but very valuable ones that could have helped the hosts.

Bobb Bell and Mike Keen came through with double wins. Bell took the 220-yard dash (23.06) and the 880-yard run (2:12.8) and Keen copped the low hurdles (20.0) and the 100-yard dash (10.3). Terry Shakon finished with the same clocking as Keen but placed second in the 100.

There were three other individual firsts as well as a relay first. Howard Mock and Jeff Brown tied for the top spot in the pole vault (10-6), Chris Janowski captured the discus (126-3), Keith Phillips won the high jump (5-8) and the 880-yard relay team (1:36).

The Fresh-soph team finished last for Forest View. Lake Zurich won with 58, Elgin had 53 and the Falcons totalled 48.

Forest View's next test is against the highly touted Prospect Knights this Tuesday. Elk Grove will also be at Prospect.

Meanwhile, Steve Hearn, the Hawks' strong center fielder, upped the lead on his own with a towering solo home run to right field. Hearn finished the day as the Hawks' leading power hitter with two doubles in going three for four.

The last three innings were supposed to be for Harper's John Furio, but the former Conant sensation just didn't have his usual effectiveness. He gave up three singles, a double and hit a batter as the Chiefs scored two runs in the seventh.

But the Hawks got the pair right back in the bottom of the frame. Jim Kenny, who had reached on a walk, moved to third on a double by Nemenich. After the next two Hawks were retired, Kunde blooped a single to right which drove in both runners.

Then, in the eighth, a single, walk and infield error loaded the bases for Wau-bensee and Bahn came on to try and halt the upsurge. But three more errors, a single and another hit batsman sent nine men to the plate. When the inning was over, the visitors were just one behind. But that's as far as they were to come.

Besides Hearn, three other Hawks had good showings at the plate — Curtin with 3-for-4, Trunda with 2-for-4 and Nemenich with 2-for-5 of which both were doubles.

Wau-bensee is now 0-3 and Harper is 1-0.

Maine West linksmen spoiled Wheeling golf club's opening match of the 1970 season, topping the Wildcats 184-189 on their own Golden Acres layout.

Jack Winters of the 'Cats posted a 45 to share medalist honors with a Warrior entry. But the 46 added by Bob Winters, the 47 by Jim Carlson and the 51 by Terry Nied still left the visitors five strokes shy at the finish line.

Coach Jack Berry's outfit gained some vengeance in the Irish-soph half of the fray, dumping Maine 206-214. Mike Mills paced the local lower level attack with a 47 to earn medalist laurels.

Deerfield Tops Prep Quad

A strong show in the pole vault discouraged an Arlington comeback and allowed Deerfield to seize the winner's trophy at a cold and damp fourth annual Prep Quadrangular hosted by the Cardinals Saturday afternoon.

Behind a winning jump by last spring's state runnerup Mark Nelson the Warriors latched onto three of the top four slots in the pole vault and built up better than a ten point lead in the gathering as it neared its conclusion. Arlington had moved within three tallies of them just prior to that but ended up turning over the crown they earned last year when Deerfield finished at 68 to 63 1/2 for the hosts Saturday.

Niles North trailed directly on the heels of Bruce Samore's outfit at 60 while Wheeling settled for fourth with 29 1/2 tallies.

Nelson, who's already cleared 14-1 this season, just needed a 13-0 effort to garner the blue ribbon and only an 11-6 effort by Card Scott Mudge prevented Deerfield from grabbing all three top places. The Warriors also picked up first in the two-mile run, the shot, the high jump and the 200 relay enroute to their victory.

Arlington snatched three blue ribbons themselves. Mike Spitt, running in a 2:01.5 to turn back Frank Savage of the Wildcats in the 200. Scott Butler logging a 4:29.5 this best this year to capture the mile run hands down, and Sam We gaining the nod in the long jump with a 20-2 1/2 leap.

Coach Jerry Parson's Wheeling and notched a pair of wins, with Kevin Bar, thule uncracking a 151-11 1/2 discus toss to gain honors by a scant half-inch and a Wildcat quartet coming up with a fine 3:39.5 mark enroute to a mile relay victory.

Wheeling made up for the low varsity total by annexing the sophomore title with a 75-point composite. Niles North was a close second at 72 with Arlington collecting 58 and Deerfield 57. The Vikings were winners of the fresh end of the meet with 65 to 60 for the Cards, 50 for the Warriors and 44 for the Wildcats.

Pirate Coach Encouraged

Roy Schodtler liked what he saw.

The head man of Palatine High School's baseball fortunes knows he has a super pitcher in Dave Hasbach this spring, but he also knows the importance of mound depth.

After Hasbach... what? That's what Schodtler was interested in seeing in non-conference action, and the Pirate coach had reason to smile after two wins in three games last week.

Hasbach, as expected, was superb as he threw a shutout at Barrington, but the steady work of right-hander Bob Sander in a 5-3 win over Niles North and the efforts of a couple of other pitchers in a loss to touted Glenbrook North provided the encouraging note for the week.

"Yes, I'm pleased," admitted Schodtler. "We lost to a good ball club in Glenbrook but even then the kids showed me something. We didn't strike out, we were hitting the ball at people putting it in play, the over-all defense wasn't that bad, and the pitching was bright."

Rick Ziemann, Kim Busse, and Phil Laverchio worked on the hill in the 7-1 loss to Glenbrook North.

"There was a problem with the wind," admitted Schodtler, "and also with the cold so I'd have to say the pitching was encouraging. No one can really get started in a couple of innings."

Glenbrook jumped out in front with a pair in the first and Palatine didn't reach the scoreboard until the sixth when Steve Garoutte, who has been wielding a hot bat, slapped a run-scoring single to right-center.

Chris Andriano slammed a first inning double but was stranded.

That first loss of the season came after two big wins, including a Thursday conquest (5-3) of Niles North.

Sander went the distance in the game called after six by darkness. He yielded five hits, only one earned run for his first career win with the varsity.

Garoutte drove across the first Palatine run and the Pirates exploded for four runs in the third on doubles by John Durr, Johnny Compton, Hasbach, and Garoutte. A balk chased Garoutte across.

Palatine will be idle now until opening Mid-Suburban play Wednesday at Elk Grove.

Conant Netmen in 3-2 Win

With a stiff wind playing a big part and causing adjustments and careful play, Conant's tennis team opened its season with a tense 3-2 win over visiting Addison Trail Thursday.

"The boys were really excited about it and it's great to win the first meet," enthused Conant coach Dave Alex.

Conant opened with close, two-set wins in the first two singles spots. No. 1 man Rick Reis defeated Bill Fredericks of Addison 6-1, 9-7, and No. 2 man Martin Oliff won a nip-and-tuck 6-4 set before finishing off his opponent, Ken Skopek, 6-2.

Ken Dirner got a point for Addison by winning the No. 3 singles contest, 6-3, 6-4 over Steve Cohen, whom Alex praised as making "a good comeback" in the second set.

Addison's No. 1 doubles team, Pete Chen and Mike Wolinski (both of whom were singles players last year) defeated two Conant sophomores, 6-0, 7-5. Alex was glad his young duo made this one close, saying, "This is their first year playing varsity and being sophomores, I feel they have a fine future."

With the outcome riding on the No. 2 doubles match and everyone looking on anxiously, Mark Cornett and Larry Linne came through for Conant with a tight 7-5, 6-4 win over Chuck Bean and Tom Bernston.

Addison Trail visits Forest View Monday, while Conant has three road meets scheduled this week — at Fenton Tuesday, Glenbard North Thursday and Lake Park Friday.

Lose by 1-0, Win by 1-0

Hersey bounced back from a 1-0 defeat the best way possible Saturday, forging their own 1-0 victory to break even in opening week exhibition baseball activity.

Friday the Huskies and a visiting Crown met and only two hits between them and unfortunately for the hosts, both safeties were collected by the opposition resulting in a 1-0 no-hit setback in an abbreviated contest.

Saturday the enemy picked up just two hits, again, but hurlers Paul Elisco and Terry Smith combined to shut out visiting Elmwood Park while a lone Hersey tally in the sixth held up to determine the verdict.

Hersey, twirling was actually strong through both games with Bob Leja losing the heart-breaking opener through an unearned run in the third stanza while his own mates failed twice in bases loaded situations.

Leja fanned six in five innings, giving up harmless singles in the first and last stanzas of the game. His downfall was a three-error outburst in the top of the fourth that had the Vikings scoring without benefit of a base hit.

A miscue put a man on base to open the fourth and after a force out play another Crown player also reached base on a Hersey bobble. A walk ensued to load the sacks and one more error then allowed the front runner to score.

A double play pulled the Viking twirler out of his first jam in the top of the first after he had walked the bases full with one out. In the fourth Hersey had the bags full again with two outs but a popup ended the threat.

Just before the game was called because of darkness, after five frames, the Huskies played a little long ball trying to knot things up. Mike Ryder powered a blow deep to left that had the fielder going up an incline to make a running over the shoulder catch.

Then Bruce Frase snatched one even harder to left center but the center fielder bailed it in with a beautiful diving lunge.

Friday Elisco and Smith teamed up to wiff 15 Tiger batters, the veteran Elisco striking out nine of them during the four opening innings he toiled. In the meantime Hersey was still having difficulties getting a runner across.

In the bottom of the first Bill Ludwigsen drew a base on balls, advanced to second on a passed ball and then scampered to third when Ryder's bunt went for a single. But with nobody out, the two still managed to die on base.

There were no outs again in the fifth when Ken Morales singled, Tom Hart reached on sacrifice attempt and Smith walked to crowd the bases. Again Hersey couldn't muster up a timely hit.

Finally in the sixth Frase poked a two-base shot to left and took third on a passed ball. After Steve Koch walked Elmwood Park tried to pick him off at first, threw wide, and Frase streaked home with the game's only score.

Hersey is scheduled to host Grant of Fox Lake on Monday and make up a game with Maine West at home Tuesday before launching Mid-Suburban league play at Arlington on Wednesday.

Prospect Falls to Warriors

For Al Carstens, winning baseball teams are no novelty. It's a novelty when a Carstens-coached entry has a losing season.

And the veteran diamond coach, who has been to the winner's circle in state tourney competition, appears to have another solid club this spring.

Prospect had to be impressed Thursday afternoon despite some sloppy Maine defense.

The Warriors rapped out 11 hits and coasted to a 10-3 victory over Larry Pohlman's young Knights.

Both clubs put two across in the first inning although Prospect didn't get a hit, scoring on walks and a couple errors.

Maine West jumped on starter Warner Schlais for three runs in the second with a two-run double by Jimmy Hanselman the big blow.

The Knights hung in there with a singleton in the fourth on a hit batsman, wild pitch, error and their first hit of the contest, an infield safety by Tom Streng.

From then on, it was all Maine as the Warriors unlimbered their offensive muscles some more and got to both Schlais and relief pitcher Chris Dabovich.

Conant's Golfers Triumph

Conant's golfers were among the first of many who will trample over the Golden Acres Country Club course this year, opening their season there Thursday with a 179-194 victory over Wheaton North.

The teams played the white nine, which has a par 36.

Brian Ruks was medalist for Conant with a 41 score that included one birdie and four pars. Other scores for coach Barry Carlson's Cougars were a 44 by Owen Schettman, 45 by Chris Dilger and 49 by Ron Ortwerth.

The frosh-soph Cougars were also victorious by a 187-200 score.

The Conant linksmen have a hectic schedule lined up for this week, weather permitting, with a meet every day. The Cougars take on Niles West Monday, Palatine Tuesday in the Mid-Suburban League opener, Lake Park Wednesday, Glenbard North Thursday and Fenton Friday.

The first three meets are on the home Golden Acres course and the last two away.

Hersey Golfers Win

Behind a pair of 42s by Mark Boyett and Mike Sutton, Hersey golfers waltzed passed Stevenson in the opening match for both sides, 172-218.

Despite high, chilly winds, all four Huskie scorers broke 45 over the par 36 front nine at the Buffalo Grove layout claimed as home course by both teams. Behind medalists Boyett and Sutton, Steve Jackisch carded a 43 and Dean Taggart posted a 45.

Coach Ken Carter's charges also dominated the frosh-soph portion of the meet, breezing to a 188-230 victory. Kurt Miller headed up the underclass triumph with a 44.

Fremd Track Team Tops Glenbrook North, St. Viator

Fremd's track team faced its toughest test of the young outdoor season Thursday, but it met the challenge successfully despite a strong wind.

The Vikings entertained highly regarded Glenbrook North and St. Viator and just nosed out the former in a tightly contested meet. It was Fremd 74 1/2, Glenbrook North 70 1/2 and St. Viator 74.

Just as in a triangular earlier in the week, the Vikings were paced by Mike Menek. The flashy senior raced to first in the 100 yard dash (10.4), the 220 (23.3) and the 440 (51.4).

This teammates also posted four other triumphs — Rick Bowman in the 2-mile (10:15.7) Bill Jarocki in the half mile (2:03.3), Dan Pittenger in the mile (4:38.8) and the mile relay in 3:33.2.

Right on the heels of the Vikings' anchor man in the mile relay event was St. Viator's runner as the Lions finished second in 3:34.8. They also had a runnerup spot notched by Steve Schlickman in the half mile (2:05.7).

Rick Gaure of Fremd had his best day in the shot put with 40-3 1/2, but it was only good enough to take second behind a Glenbrook North toss.

Glenbrook managed to defeat Fremd in frosh-soph action by posting 93 1/2 points compared to the Vikings' 53 1/2 and the Lions' 13.

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELLMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at North Eastern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,144 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an Inverness housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 4,906 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied 4,020. And board member Le Roi Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 1,748 votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,376 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not be come official until the board canvasses the votes Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and William Mann, vice president for financial affairs, flipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Toot, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and often witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight, a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

Mrs. Hart Leads Dist. 54

Mrs. Dianne Hart, Donnie Rudd, and Gerald Lewin, an incumbent, were elected to three-year terms on the Dist. 54 board of education Saturday.

Mrs. Eleanor Thorsen, another incumbent, was elected to fill a one-year term. Mrs. Thorsen has served on the Dist. 54 board six years.

Approximately 1,300 persons — nine per cent of the registered voters in Schaumburg Township — voted in Saturday's school board election.

Mrs. Hart led all seven candidates running for three vacancies with three-year terms. A resident of Hoffman Estates, she received 731 votes.

RUDD, A PATENT attorney, received 776 votes, while Lewin received 629 votes. Lewin and Rudd were listed first and second on the ballot, respectively.

A mechanical engineer at Motorola Corp., Lewin was originally appointed to fill a seat on the school board last October.

Totals for the other candidates for three-year terms were: Adam Jelen, 447; Mrs. Mychalene Mandel, 360; Raymond Wehrs, 274; and Daniel Netzel, 236.

In the contest for the one-year board term, Mrs. Thorsen received 591 votes, carrying seven of eight precincts in the township.

MRS. CONNIE SCHOELD, who received 340 votes for the one-year term, carried precinct seven (MacArthur school) with 106 votes. Mrs. Schoeld lives in Hoffman Estates.

Bruce S. Campbell, of Hoffman Estates, received 299 votes for the one-year term.

Mrs. Hart, a housewife and mother, supported better health care programs in Dist. 54 schools, the hiring of more school nurses, and the expansion of gifted pupil programs in the district.

Rudd, who resides at 213 Flagstaff Lane, Hoffman Estates, supported the past leadership of the school board and the board's committee system. He also said he had an open mind on the 12-month school concept, but did not feel it would necessarily result in reduced costs.

LEWIN, AN INCUMBENT, supported additional reading laboratories for the Dist. 54 junior high schools and a study of alternative methods for handling school enrollments rather than double shifting pupils. He resides at 613 S. Springmead, Schaumburg.

Mrs. Thorsen ran on the basis of her experience and the desire to continue serving the community.

211 Incumbents Reelected

Saturday's school elections appeared to be a vote of confidence for Palatine-Schaumburg Township High School Dist. 211 incumbent board members.

Challenged by four newcomers, incumbents Lyle Johnson of Hoffman Estates, Robert Creek of Inverness, and Alexander Langsdorf of Schaumburg, regained the seats on the Dist. 211 board.

Johnson received 1,589, Creek, 1,131 and Langsdorf, 889. The breakdown by precincts was as follows:

No. 1 — Schaumburg Elementary School: Johnson, 35; Creek, 17; Langsdorf, 23.
No. 2 — Twinbrook School: Johnson, 116; Creek, 55; Langsdorf, 69.
No. 3 — Hillcrest School: Johnson, 178; Creek, 74; Langsdorf, 99.
No. 4 — Hoffman School: Johnson, 186; Creek, 74; Langsdorf, 91.

And No. 12 — Winston Park school: Johnson, 230; Creek, 208; Langsdorf, 141. The total amounts of votes cast for the other four hopefuls were 840 for Murphy, 749 for Meyer, 566 for Seger and 301 for

Construction Co. Is Burglarized

De Or Builders, 210 S. Bloomingdale Road, was reported burglarized Monday night of about $600 in equipment and $150 in cash.

The owner of the company, Dan De Grazia, 107 E. Monterey Ave., Schaumburg, was at home when the burglary occurred.

New School by September?

"Only a major negative possibility could prevent occupancy of Schaumburg High as scheduled," Eric Jones, a member of the architectural firm Dist. 211 hired for the Schaumburg High School project, said at Thursday night's board meeting.

Scheduled to open in September, Jones assured the board the new high school on Schaumburg Road will be ready for students and faculty on time.

In a progress report to the board, Jones said the new facility is more than 60 per cent complete, "with four full months, the best months of construction left."

Jones said another positive factor in completing the building on time is the fact that any teamsters' walkout "would not seriously affect the project" since most of the material is now on the site.

IN ANOTHER report, which Jones updated somewhat, progress as of April 7 on Schaumburg was as follows:

In the academic area, the interior masonry work is 70 per cent complete with only a small amount left on the lower level, ceiling framework is nearly completed on the lower level. More than 30 per cent of the light fixtures have been

Bell Looks To 2 Building Is Delayed Again

'Firsts' In July

Hoffman Estates will be the location of two Illinois Bell central office firsts in July.

Construction will get underway then at Jones and Higgins roads on the company's first office built exclusively for a large electronic switching equipment installation.

At the same time, to handle customers' telephone needs during the construction phase, the company's first Japanese-made portable central office will be installed at the site.

The portable office, made by Hitachi Electric under a Western Electric manufacturing license, will provide service for new residents of the area until the permanent office is ready for service in September, 1972. Later, it may be used elsewhere.

W. C. Clouser, Illinois Bell staff engineer, described the portable office as Number 5 cross-bar switching equipment with a capacity of 1,400 lines. The equipment can provide touch-tone service, he said.

The 9-BY-46-FOOT structure is completely assembled and tested before shipping from the factory, Clouser said. At the site it will be set down on a prepared concrete pad and put into service after cable splicing is completed.

At least one other Bell System company, Southern New England, has purchased a similar unit for temporary use in its territory.

The Hitachi-built central office will serve about 600 customers initially, but that figure is expected to grow to about 1,000 lines by the time the new building is ready for service.

The Hoffman Estates building, a two-story structure, will contain space for a business office and plant service center, in addition to an ESS office with a 15,400 line capacity.

It will serve customers in Roselle, Palatine, Hoffman Estates, Schaumburg and Barrington, which comprises the fastest growing area in Illinois Bell territory. Two central offices now serve the area.

Search Has Happy Ending

Reports of missing children frequently appear on police blotters in the spring. The weather turns warm and children have a way of wandering from home before mother realizes they are gone.

Such was the case with young Brian Glauber of Hoffman Estates Thursday.

Brian, who had his fifth birthday two weeks ago, was playing at his home at 265 Deunson Road late Thursday afternoon. About 5 p.m. his mother couldn't find him.

Mrs. Jeffrey Glauber said she checked with neighbors and looked around the usual places, but couldn't locate her son. Her neighbors joined in the search with no success.

She called the Hoffman Estates police department "and within 15 minutes, Brian was home. I was so thankful to see him, I burst into tears," Mrs. Glauber said.

POLICEMAN William Boaz spotted Brian on Cambridge street several blocks from Deunson. He was brought home by 6 p.m.

The boy was told never to ride with strangers and he wasn't too cooperative when Boaz gave him a ride home.

In the excitement, Mrs. Glauber didn't remember Boaz's name. "I thanked him then, but I think the community should know what fine policemen we have," Mr. Glauber said.

Failed by a lack of time, High School Dist. 211 board members Thursday agreed to postpone the preliminary screening of architects for their upcoming building program until a later date.

This was the second delay board members experienced in trying to get the first screening of some 25 prospective candidates for the June referendum building program underway.

Last month, this first screening was originally scheduled to take place. Because of ambiguity in the open meeting law, there was some confusion as to whether or not the screenings should be done in open or closed session, and therefore the task was rescheduled for last Thursday night.

What board members were faced with last week was the job of whittling down 25 out of 32 architects, who had replied to questionnaires Dist. 211 sent out, to a group small enough for oral interviews at a later date this month.

THE PROCEDURE for the preliminary screenings was derived from retiring superintendent G. A. McElroy, acting superintendent Richard Kolze and Martin Plate, the district's new director of research and information.

The committee divided the 25 hopefuls into four groups: prime candidates, goals in the architectural business, responsible for jobs like the John Hancock Building; those with a lack of experience, size or with an out-of-state or undesirable company location, and former district employees, according to Kolze.

On this basis the board was to review the four groups and hopefully eliminate firms until a semi-final group of architects was chosen, McElroy said.

Setting out to accomplish this process of elimination, the board, already hampered by the lateness of the hour, decided to select a third plan to complete the first screenings.

BOARD MEMBER Robert Creek said he felt it was too late in the night to be "making intellectual decisions" on such an important matter and recommended the following plan, which the board approved.

Kolze and McElroy will each, separately, select seven candidates, compare notes, decide on a final seven and present these to the board who will then eliminate three on April 23 leaving four to be interviewed in person at a later time.

The criteria for this first screening consist of the firm's size, experience, quality of work, work load, location in regard to prompt service and supervision.

The preliminary screening is in connection with a referendum Dist. 211 will call June 6, 1970 for the money necessary to build a school to accommodate 2,500 students in the south part of the district, a school of the same size in the north part of the district, and an approximately 8,000 square foot addition to the present administrative center on Roselle Road.

Dist. 54 Approves Salaries

Salaries for the central administrative staff in Dist. 54 for 1970-71 were approved by the board of education Thursday at a continued meeting in Helen Keller Junior High.

The Dist. 54 board also approved a three-year contract for Supt. Wayne Schaible.

Under new legislation, it is mandatory for Illinois school districts to hire superintendents for three year periods, unless a superintendent is serving in that post for the first time.

Schaible's salary for 1970-71 will be $25,000, an increase of $2,400 over his salary for the current fiscal year. The new salary will take effect July 1.

THE BOARD WILL review the superintendent's salary annually under the contract terms.

School board members voted Thursday to create a post for assistant superintendent for personnel and transportation in 1970-71 and named Ronald Ruble to fill this post. Ruble's annual salary will be $18,700.

Assistant Supt. Milton Derr will be returning to Dist. 54 next year following sabbatical leave for graduate study at Northern Illinois University. Derr's annual salary is $18,200.

SALARIES OF the other central administrators in Dist. 54 approved for 1970-71 are listed with 1969-70 salaries for comparison: Ruble, $18,700 ($17,000); Marvin Lopicola, business services director, $20,500 ($19,000); Karl Plank, administrative assistant, $16,500 ($14,720); R. Kim Driggers, program development coordinator and audio-visual director, $16,720 ($14,720); and Mrs. Mildred McClure, director of special services, $17,400 ($15,960).

Total increase for seven administrators amounted to $10,820 in the coming year.

Rev. Olson To Speak

Rev. Armon Olson will talk about "King and Queen of the Home," Tuesday at the Parent Teacher League meeting of St. Peter Lutheran School on Schaumburg Road, at 8 p.m.

Rev. Olson's talk will focus on the changing culture. A slate of PTL officers for the coming year will also be presented.

Word to Wise: Pay Your Tax

Non-payment of village vehicle tax is getting stickier and stickier in Hoffman Estates.

According to Daniel Larson, administrative assistant to Mayor Frederick E. Downey, a total of 180 citations for displaying invalid vehicle stickers were issued during March.

Larson said that police officers are continuing to search for vehicles that either do not display a sticker or carry an expired tax decal.

He indicated that this procedure will be a continuing activity within the village and also said that he hopes to initiate a program of mailing reminders to residents next year.

Y Camp Signup To Begin

Registrations for YMCA Summer Camps will begin Saturday, for Y-Sustaining Members announced Robert Williams, executive director of the Twinbrook YMCA.

"We're giving our Sustaining Members first opportunity to sign up for the program," Williams said, "because they are the ones who pay the (overhead) cost of the YMCA and allow us to run such programs as the Y-Camping."

Registration will be from 9 a.m. to Noon at the Y-Office, 11 East Schaumburg Road, Schaumburg. Free pennants will be given to the first 50 campers enrolled. Y-Camp T-Shirts will also be given to campers.

An "Earn Your Way" program will begin this day. Campers will be able to take cases of "Y-Camp Butter Toffee Peanuts" on consignment to sell in their neighborhood. A 40 per cent profit goes toward their camp fee. "We find the youth appreciate the summer vacation a lot more when they have earned part of their way," Williams said.

The Y-Camping Program offers three 2-week (8 day) sessions of Y-Day Camp for boys and girls, two one-week residence camps for boys and girls, a North Woods Caravan for junior high boys. Lake Superior Co-ed Canoe Trip and a weekend family camp.

"It's not too late to become Sustaining Members," Williams commented. "many parents become members just to take advantage of the early sign-up. We're not sure of what to expect, but it's not unusual for YMCA Camps to fill on Sign-up Days."

Y-Camp Registration for Sustaining Members will continue at the Y-Office during regular office hours, 9-3:30. Sign-ups call also be made by mail although advance mail registrations will be considered after the Sign-up Day. The official registration for the general public will open the following Saturday, April 25th, at the Y-Office.

Some Camp Leader positions are still open and applications are being received at the Y-Office. Further information may be obtained by calling the Y-Office, 894-8500.

Slate Church History Class

The Medinah Baptist Church will offer a new course in the "history of Christianity in America" starting at 9:45 a.m. Sunday, Rev. James Weir, minister of Christian Education, announced.

"Come to this class and find out what Christian people did in early America and across the years as the nation developed. Every Christian should know what the Half-Way Covenant is, when it happened and what brought it about," Rev. Weir said.

The course will run for 13 weeks and will be taught by John Rowan, a Hoffman Estates resident and member of the congregation. Rowan is also a free lance writer specializing in researching and writing historical radio dramas for station WMBI, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

Rowan has written such historical series as Land for the Brave, Full Grown Men and is currently researching and writing Old Yankee. He is a graduate of Northern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Rev. Weir said, "This 13 week session will end with a view of the Christian church in America today. This perspective will show that God is still in control of things and the Gospel of Jesus Christ is ageless."

All area residents may attend the free class. To enroll, call the church office at 894-9421. Medinah Baptist Church is located on Foster Avenue at Sycamore Street in unincorporated Medinah.

installed on the first and second levels, levels two and three have been almost completely primed and finished with paint. Good progress has been made on the installation of window frames on the north and east sides of the building and brick work has started on the south outside wall. The east penthouse (a maintenance facility on the roof) has been enclosed, only the kitchen area floors remain to be poured, and progress is well underway on the installation of the elevator.

In the gym area, which comprises most of the unfinished work, the upper deck floors have been poured, the south wall is nearly completed, the west wall has been started, and the shower and washroom plumbing is in place.

SCHAUMBURG HIGH SCHOOL is being built by Tyan Brothers Construction Co. and has been designed by Fitch, Larocca, Carington and Jones. It is the first high school in the state to be built by interest free loans from the state building commission.

Johnson, former board president, ran unopposed in Saturday's election since he was the only candidate to file for a one year, instead of three year term like the others.

"I'm very grateful," he said. "And I'm truly hoping that this will be the best year ever in Dist. 211." Johnson commented that he thought the voter turnout was low.

Langsdorf, who was appointed to the board last January, to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Eugene Baker, said, "I didn't get into this for fun, because it's not. Some people might think it is, but it involves an awful lot of work. I'll do my best and hope that's good enough."

Creek, was appointed to the board last June when George Ledford resigned.

The Dist. 211 board has scheduled a meeting for April 16 at which time election results will be canvassed and new board officers will be elected.

Joint Housing Effort A 'Must'

Only a joint effort by communities, townships and the county will solve the housing shortage for low income families, and a member of a housing task force in Elk Grove Village.

"We cannot solve the problem on a village by village basis," said Edward Kenna who spoke Friday night at a panel discussion in an Arlington Heights church. "It must be a joint venture," he said.

ALONG WITH solving the housing problem, Kenna said, a social problem that accompanies persons new to the suburbs must be solved at the same time.

They must be taught how to get along in an area which is different than from where they came, he explained.

Kenna was one of four panel members who spoke before a group of about 20 persons in the basement of the Congregational United Church of Christ, 1001 W. Kinross Road.

Kenna has served 2 1/2 months on a housing task force assigned the job of placing 17 Mexican-American families in permanent housing. The families had been living in substandard dwellings deemed unsafe in recent months following the death of three children last November in Elk Grove Township.

"WE STILL haven't housed the 17 families," he said. "There is no housing of a permanent nature for them, he asserted."

One of the 17 families Kenna referred to is living in the basement of the church only a few feet away from where he spoke.

A mother and her three children have been living there since mid-March when friends moved her from a dilapidated trailer near Higgins Road and Oakton Street.

Mrs. William Trevor, of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the housing shortage is no longer a problem but a disaster.

"Half the population is priced out of the housing market in the United States," she said.

CHARLES CATHAN, an Arlington Heights architect who has worked with public housing projects, used slides to illustrate attractive low-income housing for families and senior citizens.

CONSTRUCTION COSTS for such housing would be about $15,000 if included.

ed in a 50-unit project, he said afterward. The federal government buys the land, builds the homes, charges nominal rent, and finances the homes through tax free bonds.

Rudolph Hazucha, of the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition, said his organization wants to set up housing committees in each community and survey the communities to find who the needy families are.

He said the coalition has also proposed that each resident give $1 a month for an emergency housing fund. Though only $250 has been collected, he indicated he was optimistic.

2 Charged In Tollway Death

Two Hoffman Estates residents, 17 and 24, were charged with involuntary manslaughter Thursday in the death of Mrs. Barbara A. Snyder who was killed last September when an 18 pound rock was dropped through the windshield of the car she was riding in on the Northwest Tollway.

Warrants charging involuntary manslaughter were issued for James Arnold, 17, 257 Highland Blvd., and David Akerson, 24 134 Evergreen.

Area residents will have their single, yearly chance tomorrow to participate in democracy in its purest form.

Or at least take sides in the battle over the continuation of the township form of government in Cook County.

Cook County townships will hold their annual meetings tomorrow not knowing the result of their legal battle to restore "excess commissions."

The townships' practice of keeping 2 per cent of the taxes they collected for themselves was ruled unconstitutional last month by the State Supreme Court.

Lawrence Gunnels, a Chicago attorney representing the Cook County Tax Collector's Association, said a request for a rehearing of the decision will be filed either Tuesday or Wednesday. He said it was "absurd" to expect the decision before the township's annual meetings.

paid to levying agencies that are solely within the townships and have no connection or relation to the City of Chicago or to the plaintiffs as Chicago residents."

FOUR NORTHWEST suburban townships, Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling, are asking local residents to levy a township tax this week.

Gunnels claimed that when the Supreme Court made its decision to throw out the excess commissions it did not consider one of the key arguments in the defendants' case. That is, he said, where those who brought the suit live.

According to the brief, the plaintiffs cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission charged to taxes collected for exclusively suburban levying agencies.

"The vast bulk of taxes paid by suburban residents," the argument says, "are 80 per cent of such taxes are collected for and remitted to such levying bodies," the bodies that are solely within the suburban townships.

"No Chicago resident is subject to any levy or assessment by these bodies; the plaintiffs as Chicago residents," it is argued, "are thus in no way taxwise involved or affected by these levies or collections."

A suburban resident would not be able to bring a suit against the practice of excess commissions, claiming discrimination, as in this case, Gunnels said, because all the suburban townships receive the same 2 per cent

The suit was filed by William J. Harte and Kevin M. Forde, two Chicago attorneys.

IN THE STIPULATION of facts, Gunnels said, "Of the total property taxes paid by suburban township residents and received by the township collectors, 85 to

Area ACLU Rips Judge Carswell

The nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell to the U. S. Supreme Court "embarrassed" intelligent Southerners, according to Jay Miller, an executive of the local chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Miller discussed the Carswell nomination, gun control laws and the relationship between the court and the criminal Friday with Wheeling High School social studies students.

Miller called President Nixon's nomination of Carswell "shocking," and said that the judge was not qualified to sit on the court.

"I didn't understand it, except that the nomination was part of Nixon's 'Southern strategy'." There are many Southern judges who would not agree with the ACLU but would nevertheless be brilliant on the Supreme Court.

"MANY SOUTHERN politicians and judges wouldn't support Carswell. I think by nominating him Nixon hurt his 'Southern strategy'."

Miller staunchly defended the rulings made by the Supreme Court when Earl Warren was Chief Justice.

"The Warren Court has been subjected to tremendous public abuse, but all it really asked was that the states respect federal statutes," said Miller.

"One of the reasons the public reacted the way it has to these rulings is the tremendous mythology surrounding crime in our country. Our society has done very little to effectively deal with crime; the emphasis has been on 'getting' the criminal and punishing him."

MILLER OUTLINED some of the recent decisions by the Warren court, which the ACLU supported. These upheld, among other principals, the individual's right to legal counsel before being charged with a crime, his right to counsel before participating in a police lineup, and his right to a jury trial when charged with a petty offense.

"To attack the court as codding criminals for these decisions is nonsense," Miller declared.

"The court is trying to suggest to us that we have to do a better job of dealing with crime. We can't just try to pin the rap on someone."

The ACLU member told his young audience that "Most people are very afraid of crime, although they really have very few facts about it."

"WHITES IN THE cities are afraid of being harmed by the blacks. In fact, 90 per cent of black crime is committed against other blacks. And murders are generally committed by friends of the victim, not by strangers."

"Drug addiction should be treated as a medical problem, not as a crime, according to Miller.

"Making addiction a medical problem and not a crime may not cut down on the number of addicts, but it would get the syndicate out of it and cut the crime rate. Then addicts wouldn't have to steal to support their expensive habit."

The need for strong gun-control laws also was endorsed by the ACLU member.

"We're going in the wrong direction in this country by refusing to impose stringent gun control laws, yet some of the people most hysterical about the rising crime rate are opposing these laws."

Miller was one of several people scheduled to speak this spring at WHS under the social studies speakers program at the school.

Generator Stolen

A generator wolder, valued at $1,200, was stolen from a construction site in Schaumburg last week, Hoffman Estates police reported.

The generator was owned by Butler Construction Co. of Roselle. It was taken from a site at Irving Park and Wise roads. The generator had been covered with a tarp. There were indications that it had been wheeled onto a truck.

Delayed Report Cards In the Mail Today

Because of the snow storm on the day before Easter vacation, report cards and scheduling procedures in high school Dist. 211 have been delayed for about two weeks.

The parent-student selection letter which was also to have been mailed on April 8 will be delayed about a week in order to revise the material before mailing.

To the joy of all Dist. 211 students, report cards should be in the mail by today.

Local Board Members Attend Convention

James Humphrey, 964 Topanga, Palatine and Mrs. Carolyn Mullins, 506 Pleasant, Schaumburg, members of the board of education of high school Dist. 211, attended the National School Board Association Convention in San Francisco last weekend.

Among the 12 topics discussed during the three-day session were: negotiation legislation, program planning, budget systems and vocational technical education.

Also featured during the convention were various exhibits of new equipment and teaching materials currently on the market.

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELIMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at Northwestern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,144 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an Inverness housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 4,596 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied, 4,020. And board member Le Roi Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 3,738 votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,378 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not become official until the board canvasses the votes Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and William Mann, vice president for financial affairs, tipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts, primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings, who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Took, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard-fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

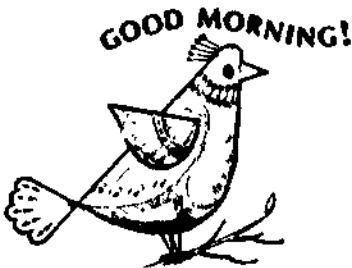

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature, a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and often witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight, a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

Ronald Cole

Edwin Smith

Rev. L. James Wylie

The three candidates backed by the Dist. 21 General Caucus, Ronald Cole, Edwin Smith and the Rev. L. James Wylie were easily elected to three-year terms on the school board Saturday.

Cole, the current president of the school board, received the highest number of votes in the election, with 489.

Smith was second with 456 votes and Wylie received 408 votes in the contest.

Independent candidate Turner Jones of Buffalo Grove finished fourth in the contest with 171 votes. Another independent, Chance Bahadur of Arlington Heights, finished fifth with 149 votes.

TOTAL NUMBER of votes cast in the election was 608, a "small turnout," according to Asst. Supt. John Barger. He said that he did not know the reason for the light vote.

Breakdown by precinct and candidate is as follows:

Cole — Precinct One, 110 votes; Precinct Two, 166 votes; Precinct Three, 110; Precinct Four, 60; Precinct Five, 43.

Smith — Precinct One, 93; Precinct Two, 166; Precinct Three, 106; Precinct Four, 54; Precinct Five, 37.

Wylie — Precinct One, 76; Precinct Two, 141; Precinct Three, 95; Precinct Four, 60; Precinct Five, 36.

Jones — Precinct One, 36; Precinct Two, 53; Precinct Three, 52; Precinct Four, 16; Precinct Five, 9.

Bahadur — Precinct One, 21; Precinct Two, 39; Precinct Three, 25; Precinct Four, 18; Precinct Five, 46.

COLE, WHO IS vice-president of the Bornquist Co. in Chicago, was elected to his second term on the board. He has been a resident of Wheeling for 14 years and has three children, two in the Dist. 21 school system.

Edwin Smith of Buffalo Grove, is a mathematics teacher at Maine South High School in Des Plaines. A resident of the district for 12 years, he is a former Wheeling trustee and currently has one child in the Dist. 21 school system.

Wylie has never served on a school board, but has been active in the PTA at Frost School in Prospect Heights. He is director of program administration and parish relations at Lutheran General Hospital in Des Plaines.

A Prospect Heights resident for three years, he has three children; two attend Frost School.

Bond Sale Tomorrow

With votes from the April 4 Wheeling Public Library District referendum just canvassed, the bonds for purchase and remodeling of a church for use as the district's library will be sold tomorrow to two banks.

The Library Board was surprised at the rapid sale of the $250,000 in general obligation bonds. They had expected difficulties in marketing the bonds because of a 6 per cent limit on the interest the district can pay.

Hero of the sale was the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank which will buy $75,000 worth of the bonds. Because the local bank agreed to purchase those bonds with the final three maturity dates the library district was able to sell the remainder of the bonds, those with earlier maturity dates, to the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago easier.

THE CHURCH that will be purchased is St. Mark's United Church of Christ on Jenkins Court near Elmhurst Road in Wheeling.

The bond issue was one of two propositions approved April 4. Voters also approved a tax hike of 8 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Library board members will sign contracts with the two banks for the bond purchases tomorrow.

The bond sale was arranged for the district by Frank Foster of Howard W. Voss Associates Inc., a consulting firm hired by the library district.

Roger Bjorvik, the district's attorney, said he thought the short term of the bond issue and the variation of the bonds' maturity dates were what made the sale possible. As a comparison, he noted that the River Trails Park District which has the same bond rating sold a $175,000 bond issue for its swimming pool Thursday at a rate of 6 1/2 per cent.

ALTHOUGH THE rapid sale of the bonds may enable the district to purchase the church and begin remodeling at an earlier date than was first expected, a number of preparations must be made before the renovation can begin.

The Wheeling Village Board Monday will probably refer a request for a special use permit (so the church can be used as a library) to the village's zoning board of appeals for a hearing.

Architect for the remodeling, G. L. Duke, said Friday the final remodeling plans and specifications for work on the church must be completed so bids on the work can be let.

Duke said he expects the remodeling work to begin in July. He said the library should be able to move into the church facility "by Christmas."

Food Store Zoning Is Recommended

Wheeling's plan commission voted Thursday to recommend approval to the village board of a subdivision for the Dominick's Fine Foods Shopping Center.

The new shopping center is proposed for property just west of the Soo Line R.R. tracks on the north side of Dundee Road.

The center includes a Dominick's food store, a drug store and a series of small stores on a 7 1/2 acre area.

Already the village's zoning board has recommended rezonings and variations in sideyard requirements be granted to the property owners, and the village board has directed its attorney to draft an ordinance to permit the zoning change.

ONE POTENTIAL problem, that of traffic flow in the area, apparently has been solved with a deceleration lane on the north side of Dundee Road, which will be provided by the developers.

Although state approval for the development's entrances and exits along Dundee Road is necessary, a letter from C. H. McLean, assistant district engineer of District 10 of the state Division of Highways, indicated the state would issue the permits if the deceleration lane was included.

Village officials were worried that accidents might result without such a lane because westbound cars crossing the railroad tracks would not be able to stop in time to avoid hitting cars waiting in their lane to turn into the store parking lot.

The deceleration lane would enable drivers to get out of the traffic lane and avoid such accidents, however.

Astrology Series Set

by SUE CARSON

A glimpse into the heavens and the secrets they might hold was given to local residents Thursday by astrology expert Homer Lathrop.

An interested audience, mostly housewives, came to the gymnasium at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove to hear Lathrop expound on the influences on the heavenly bodies on nature and mankind. His lecture was the last in the Inquiry into the Unknown series, sponsored by the Longfellow Community Education Project.

"Astrology has been condemned and exalted to great heights, but it has never been disproved," Lathrop declared. "It has been the foundation of all religions. The Christian church was influenced by astrology, although in many cases this influence was kept secret."

"FOR EXAMPLE, the calculation of the date of Easter each year was plotted from the heavens. Biblical patriarchs were well versed in astrology and all the prophets used astrology to make their prophecies. The 19th Psalm has many references to astrology."

"The major astronomers, like Sr. Isaac Newton, began as astrologers," he added.

The 27-year-old Lathrop has studied physics and astronomy at Northwestern University and now teaches a course in astronomy at the "free university" there.

He told the audience that astronomy "should not be considered a faith, but a guide."

Blackout Hits 4 Communities

The lights went out for an hour and a half in Arlington Heights, and parts of Wheeling, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights at 11:25 p.m. Thursday.

Commonwealth Edison officials reported that six main "feeder" lines along the Soo Line R.R. tracks fell from the towers which support them. Cause of the downed lines falling was unknown.

Greatly hampered by the blackout was Pal-Waukee Airport south of Wheeling. The airport staff was unable to communicate with aircraft by the radio. The landing lights were also inoperative.

Airport owner George Priester explained that normally the airport loses only half of its power at a time because it is serviced from two separate lines on Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue. Thursday night however "we were totally in the dark," Priester said.

"AN ECLIPSE at the time of birth will have a definite influence on an individual's life," according to astrology teacher Homer Lathrop. Lathrop, who spoke Thursday at

Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, said that astrology "can help us understand ourself and our relation to others."

Library Purchase Is Eyed

The Wheeling Public Library District Board celebrated national Library Week a week early on Tuesday by agreeing to purchase a new library.

After a canvass of the votes in last Saturday's election verified passage of the two-part referendum to purchase and remodel St. Mark's United Church of Christ as a new library and to increase the tax rate, the board notified church officials that the district would exercise the option agreement and buy the church.

A canvass of the votes Tuesday night indicated there were 649 "yes" votes, 472 "no" votes and 13 spoiled ballots on the part of the referendum to issue bonds to purchase the church and remodel it as a library.

On the tax rate increase part of the referendum there were 574 "yes" votes, 543 "no" votes and 15 spoiled ballots. In other library news an election for library board members will be held Tuesday with one polling place available to district voters at the library building, on South Milwaukee Avenue in Wheeling.

FIVE VACANT library posts will be filled in the election. On the ballot for library trustee are Wallace C. Olson who is running for reelection to the board, two appointed board members Frederick O. Schubert and Mrs. Joyce Finnegan.

Police Probe Burglary

Wheeling police are investigating a burglary which occurred last week, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bradley, 315 Anne Terrace, Wheeling.

Taken by burglars was a 4-track stereo tape recorder valued at approximately $300 and a portable television valued at $200, police said.

and a new candidate Mrs. Josephine Leonard of Buffalo Grove.

One write-in candidate post is also included on the ballot. The only announced write-in candidate for that post is Charles J. DuBois Jr., a current library

Inspection Schedule Is Set

A schedule for an inspection survey tomorrow of McDonald Creek by local, township, county and state officials has been announced, so that residents may meet with the team along the route.

Problem areas in the creek that have contributed to flooding conditions after heavy rains, will be pinpointed by the team.

The Illinois Division of Waterways (IDW) has offered equipment and manpower to dredge the creek and clean out major obstructions as an "emergency measure."

Emery Kilpatrick, chief of the bureau of operations for IDW, will accompany the team and direct dredging operations.

ACCORDING TO John E. Gilligan, chairman of the committee on McDonald Creek Improvement, "the schedule for this inspection allows for an in-depth look at the creek from the Soo Line near Euclid Avenue back to Windsor Drive in Arlington Heights. We hope residents will contact the inspection team along the way."

Gilligan said he also hopes residents will send him information concerning property, salary, repairs and other losses resulting from flooding. His address is 36 Lynbrook Dr., in Prospect Heights.

This information will be forwarded to IDW, which requires estimates of damages to prepare benefit reports. These reports are used to justify capital expenditures for improvement of the creek.

RESIDENTS INTERESTED in talking to the government officials may meet them at the following times and places:

10-10:15 a.m. Euclid-Wolf bridge; 10:30-10:45 a.m. Soo Line bridge; 11:15-11:25 a.m. Camp McDonald bridge near Wolf; 1:30-1:40 p.m. Wheeling Road bridge; 2:2-2:10 p.m. Maple Drive bridge; 2:20-2:30 p.m. Elmhurst Road bridge; 2:45-2:50 p.m. Palatine Road bridge near Schoenbeck; 3:15-3:20 p.m. Schoenbeck Road bridge near Hintz; 3:20-3:40 p.m. Cornell Road, Windy Lane and Windsor Drive bridges.

Some of the officials invited to the inspection are Mrs. Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor; Robert Gorski, county highway district engineer; Eugene Schlickman, state representative; Disch Schuld, Old Town Sanitary District, Wheeling village officials; and Country Gardens Sanitary District officials.

Costello Top Vote-Getter

by TOM WELLMAN

Jack Costello, Raymond Erickson and Joseph Schiffhauer Saturday night won three-year terms on the High School Dist. 214 board.

Costello of Mount Prospect, who has already served one year on the board, led the field with 4,583 votes. Erickson of Arlington Heights, who has just completed his first three-year term, tallied 3,785, and Schiffhauer, also of Arlington Heights, gained 2,948 votes to win his first term on the board.

However, until the final five precincts were reported, Schiffhauer was closely challenged by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, the first black man ever to seek a Dist. 214 seat.

Brooks finished fifth, but with 22 of the 27 precincts reporting, he was only 118 votes behind Schiffhauer. However, the five remaining precincts, mainly from Arlington Heights, gave Schiffhauer an easy victory.

FOURTH PLACE WENT to Joseph Connery of Arlington Heights, who tallied 2,428. Brooks totaled 2,310, Robert Le Forge of Prospect Heights had 2,018, Mrs. Sophie Basile of Elk Grove Village collected 1,342 and Don McGlothlin finished with 833.

The results as recorded in the Dist. 214 offices in Mount Prospect are unofficial and they will be canvassed at a later date. However, it was apparent from the beginning that Costello and Erickson would be easily reelected to three-year terms.

"I feel very honored at winning," Costello said after the victory. "I'm appreciative of the support of the people, and I hope and feel that the support indicates an endorsement of my efforts."

He stressed he was impressed by the field of candidates, and he emphasized that he would work to serve the best interests of the young people and the community.

Erickson also stressed that he was pleased with the community support, and praised the losing candidates, one by one. Schiffhauer, who had to wait until the final return to be sure of his victory, said simply, "It's wonderful." He praised the teamwork and the hard work of a "great group of workers."

COSTELLO, IN LEADING the ballot, scored heavily in the Mount Prospect-Des Plaines area, winning an overall total of 13 of the 27 precincts. Erickson could capture only three, but he scored large victories in Arlington Heights and was steady throughout Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships.

Schiffhauer was extremely strong in precinct 15, his home precinct, where he tallied 201 votes to 87 for Costello. But his heartstopping triumph came against Brooks' strength in Elk Grove Village, where Brooks consistently outscored Mrs. Basile, who finished seventh.

Connery, with strong backing from former Mount Prospect mayor Daniel Congrove, showed great strength in Arlington Heights and considerable power in Mount Prospect. Le Forge, former board president in Dist. 23, captured both of the Prospect Heights precincts.

The eight candidates and backers, crowded into the main meeting room in the district's offices, and watched as results were tallied on a large bulletin board. At the end, which came at 11 p.m., the winners and losers seemed relieved that it was over.

Costello, Connery and Brooks mounted especially strong campaigns, based on volunteer manpower, leaflets, boundless energy and a seemingly never-ending string of coffees. Erickson said that he did little campaigning, and McGlothlin, who also tried to gain a Dist. 214 seat last year, openly endorsed Costello at the end of the campaign.

The vote means that Schiffhauer, personnel manager at United Air Lines, will replace Frank Bergen of Mount Prospect, who decided not to seek another term on the board.

The election campaign was free of controversial issues, as most of the candidates most of the time praised the district's progress. And the issue of Brooks, as a black man, did not become an issue, as many feared it would.

Park Board Lacks Direction: Kiddle

Charging that the Buffalo Grove Park District's five commissioners have failed to work together, Commissioner William Kiddle failed in an attempt to continue Thursday's park board meeting through the date of the next regular meeting in May.

In his motion for the meeting continuance, he asked that a sergeant-at-arms be appointed, and that park commissioners submit a written reason for their absence whenever they failed to attend a sessions of the continued meeting.

Had his motion passed, the procedure for submitting written reasons for absences would have been in effect until May 7, the date of the next regular park board meeting.

KIDDLE'S MOTION drew a sharp response from Sherwood Zwirn, another commissioner, who termed the motion "absurd" and said he did not understand the purpose of the procedure.

At that point Kiddle answered: "There has been a lack of prior planning for our meetings. We got material for this meeting five minutes before it started. "The purpose of my motion is to wake this body up to the fact that we are not working together."

"I'm perfectly happy to set aside this 'trick' if we are ready to work together. I have seen a certain fragmentation (among commissioners) that did not exist last summer."

KIDDLE ENDED his lengthy and sometimes heated explanation of his motion by charging the entire board with "a lack of leadership."

Kiddle told Val Bettin, park district president, that he would agree to withdraw the motion "only if you will do all in your power to motivate this body to get it to do what it is supposed to do. I'm saying we are all at fault."

Kiddle did withdraw his motion after Bettin told the board: "I feel we are all distressed by the fact that we have seen so little activity. The problem is that five people pulled together (in last fall's election) who have to learn to work together."

Earlier in the meeting Kiddle made the motion, and it passed by a 4-to-1 vote. Zwirn was the lone dissenter. However, that motion and its passage was later ruled out of order.

After Kiddle withdrew his motion, the board members decided to double the number of their regular meetings. The board now will meet the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

Sanitary Sewer System Cost $300,000?

Beginning discussions on a proposed sanitary sewer system for northern Wheeling, expected to cost almost $300,000, were held Wednesday at a committee meeting of the entire Wheeling village board.

Board members present at the meeting agreed installation of sanitary sewer facilities in northern Wheeling should begin with an extension of the Wolf Road sewer to the northern limits of the village.

Discussions on installations of that sewer have been held for several years in the village, but an inability to get agreement from property owners for the sewer line have held up the work.

The board Wednesday discussed plans to install the sewer in a state right-of-way along Wolf road by getting permission from the state.

Estimated cost of the Wolf Road sewer extension part of the program alone would be approximately $45,000, a report from village engineer Thomas Moody indicated.

ROGER STRICKER, the trustee who heads the board's sewer, water and public health committee, explained Wednesday the village has been promised a $20,000 donation for that sewer extension from the builders of the Carriage Woods North planned development on the Denoyer property west of the Soo Lane R.R.

tracks and north of the Strong Street area.

The Wolf Road sewers, like the other two proposed extensions in the program would be designed to handle the maximum amount of drainage that might result from the development.

Although a number of new planned development multi-family complexes have been proposed in the village's northern area, the village board members have adamantly maintained that the village may not zone all the land in the northern area for such developments.

However, the board has decided to set up school park sites and sewer systems for the area to meet possible maximums of development.

The board decided earlier at its regular meeting Monday that it would direct Moody to take soil borings and prepare final plans for the extension of the Wolf Road sewer. The board will then seek permission from the state for the sewer installation in the state right-of-way.

TWO OTHER sewer extensions proposed by Moody in the overall plan for the northern section will be taken up at a later date, the trustees indicated.

One sewer in the north central area of what will be the village would extend in a "Y" shape through the area east of the Soo Lane R.R. tracks and west of Wolf Road. No cost estimates for that sewer are available yet, because Moody noted he expects the installation will be paid for primarily by developers in the area.

The board has decided to connect the Denoyer development which is within that tract to the Wolf Road sewer because it will be developed soon. Later developments in the area, especially those south of Carriage Woods North, would probably have to be connected to the north central sewer on Moody's plan.

A third sewer to be installed along Elmhurst Road from a Metropolitan Sanitary District sewer on Hintz Road to Dundee Road and then north of Dundee to Buffalo Creek and north of the creek to McHenry Road was recommended by Moody.

That sewer system was estimated to cost $225,000 by Moody, but the board has held up any plans for construction of that trunk line in the near future.

Board members said Monday two proposed planned developments in that area of the village, the Wheeling Royale Apartments Development at 1009 McHenry Road and the Tekton Corp. development across the street may install sewers along McHenry Road for their use.

ACLU Rips Carswell

The nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell to the U. S. Supreme Court "embarrassed" intelligent Southerners, according to Jay Miller, an executive of the local chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Miller discussed the Carswell nomination, gun control laws and the relationship between the court and the criminal Friday with Wheeling High School social studies students.

Miller called President Nixon's nomination of Carswell "shocking" and said that the judge was not qualified to sit on the court.

"I didn't understand it except that the nomination was part of Nixon's 'Southern strategy'." There are many Southern judges who would not agree with the ACLU but would nevertheless be brilliant on the Supreme Court.

"MANY SOUTHERN politicians and judges wouldn't support Carswell. I think by nominating him Nixon hurt his 'Southern strategy'," he said.

Miller staunchly defended the rulings made by the Supreme Court when Earl Warren was Chief Justice.

"The Warren Court has been subjected to tremendous public abuse, but all it really asked was that the states respect federal statutes," said Miller.

"One of the reasons the public reacted the way it has to these rulings is the tremendous mythology surrounding crime in our country. Our society has done very little to effectively deal with crime; the emphasis has been on 'getting' the criminal and punishing him."

MILLER OUTLINED some of the recent decisions by the Warren court, which the ACLU supported. These upheld, among other principals, the individual's right to legal counsel before being charged with a crime, his right to counsel before participating in a police lineup, and his right to a jury trial when charged with a petty offense.

"To attack the court as coddling criminal for these decisions is nonsense," Miller declared.

"The court is trying to suggest to us that we have to do a better job of dealing with crime. We can't just try to pin the rap on someone."

The ACLU member told his young audience that "Most people are very afraid of crime, although they really have very few facts about it."

"WHITES IN THE cities are afraid of being harmed by the blacks. In fact, 90 per cent of black crime is committed against other blacks. And murders are generally committed by friends of the victim, not by strangers."

Drug addiction should be treated as a medical problem, not as a crime, according to Miller.

"Making addiction a medical problem and not a crime may not cut down on the number of addicts, but it would get the syndicate out of it and cut the crime rate. Then addicts wouldn't have to steal to support their expensive habit."

The need for strong gun-control laws also was endorsed by the ACLU member.

"We're going in the wrong direction in this country by refusing to impose stringent gun control laws, yet some of the people most hysterical about the rising crime rate are opposing these laws."

Miller was one of several people scheduled to speak this spring at WHS under the social studies speakers program at the school.

Meetings Set in 'Shadow'

Area residents will have their single, yearly chance tomorrow to participate in democracy in its purest form.

Or at least take sides in the battle over the continuation of the township form of government in Cook County.

Cook County townships will hold their annual meetings tomorrow not knowing the result of their legal battle to restore excess commissions.

The townships' practice of keeping 2 per cent of the taxes they collected for themselves was ruled unconstitutional last month by the State Supreme Court.

Lawrence Gunnel, a Chicago attorney representing the Cook County Tax Collector's Association, said a request for a rehearing of the decision will be filed either Tuesday or Wednesday. He said it was "absurd" to expect the decision before the townships' annual meetings.

OF 16 NORTHWEST suburban townships, Polk, Schaumburg, Elk Grove

and Wheeling, are asking local residents to levy a township tax this week.

Gunnel claimed that when the Supreme Court made its decision to throw out the excess commissions it did not consider one of the key arguments in the defendants' case. That is, he said, where those who brought the suit live.

According to the brief, the plaintiffs cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission charged to taxes collected for exclusively suburban levying agencies.

"The vast bulk of taxes paid by suburban residents," the argument says, "are paid to levying agencies that are solely within the townships and have no connection or relation to the City of Chicago or to the plaintiffs as Chicago residents."

The plaintiffs, it continues, "clearly cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission that is retained on these taxes and spent in the townships for public purposes."

The suit was filed by William J. Harte and Kevin M. Forde, two Chicago attorneys.

IN THE STIPULATION of facts, Gunnel said, "Of the total property taxes paid by suburban township residents and received by the township collectors, 85 to 90 per cent of such taxes are collected for and remitted to such levying bodies," the bodies that are solely within the suburban townships.

"No Chicago resident is subject to any levy or assessment by these bodies; the plaintiffs as Chicago residents," it is argued, "are thus in no way taxwise involved or affected by these levies or collections."

A suburban resident would not be able to bring a suit against the practice of excess commissions, claiming discrimination, as in this case, Gunnel said, because all the suburban townships receive the same 2 per cent.

Land Or Money Is Question

Land or money. Which should Buffalo Grove officials accept in connection with residential developments that are approved?

The village's plan commission voiced opinion a few weeks ago in a unanimous recommendation. That recommendation said, "We recommend to the board of trustees that in the future any land to be annexed to the village of any kind be annexed to the village or any county, and upon which there is no construction or 10 per cent land donation already, that there be a donation of land for public use."

Monday the village board took up the plan commission's recommendation, but the discussion of the matter ended on a controversial note.

AMONG THE trustees' comments was one pointing out that to ask for a 10 per cent land donation in all cases would be unrealistic.

As an example, the 1.8 acres east of the 1.1 acre now being considered for an annexation was cited. A 10 per cent donation for that property would amount to about 9 acres.

Village Pres. Don Thompson said, "Several years ago the village and other groups agreed that 'mini-parks' would spread our facilities too thin. He suggested the board discuss the 'mini-park' idea with the Buffalo Grove Park District at the two groups' upcoming meeting."

Richard Raysa, village attorney, told the board that seeking the 10 per cent land donation would be legal only in cases where land was being annexed, and not in those instances where land, already in the village, was being considered.

PLAN COMMISSIONERS had already made their recommendation before taking up the 1.8-acre site a few weeks ago. When the attorney for the property owners made his presentation concerning the site at the plan commission's public hearing, commissioners queried him as to whether the owners would consider a land donation instead of the $100 per apartment unit donation that was suggested.

The attorney said he would have to talk with the owners before he could answer the question, but indicated that if the same number of apartment units could be built on the reduced amount of land (the reduction in land resulting from the donation), they might be agreeable to such a donation.

In the last several months, the village's parks situation has gained almost as much attention as the concern over the number of apartments in the village.

CURRENTLY NO PARKS exist in either the Lake County portion of the village or the Cambridge section.

Prospects are brighter for parks in Lake County Buffalo Grove than in Cambridge, however. A park is slated for part of the site on which the new Dist. 96 Willow Grove School is being constructed. The village board has indicated it would lease 5.6 acres of land on Arlington Heights Road just north of Checker road for use as a temporary park.

It is on that latter site as well as two Cook County park sites that the Strathmore Homeowners Association hopes to install a sandbox and wood chip children's recreation area as well as playground equipment.

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELLMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at Northwestern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,134 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an inquest housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 4,596 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied 4,020. And board member Le Roi Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 3,738 votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,376 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not become official until the board canvasses the votes Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and William Mann, vice president for financial affairs, flipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts, primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings, who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Toot, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard-fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature, a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and often witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight, a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

Two uncontested elections in Prospect Heights, for the Dist. 23 and 26 school boards, brought a small number to the polls Saturday.

The highest count came in Dist. 23 where Donald McKay, Prospect Heights, scored 354 and Mrs. Lori Sarnar, Prospect Heights scored 350.

In the Dist. 26 race 182 votes were cast for Thomas LeFebvre, Mount Prospect, and 172 for Clarke C. Robinson, Prospect Heights.

Dist. 23 school board member Mrs. Lori Sarnar has been directing the Prospect Heights extension of the Volunteer Bureau for the past few months. ## Sale of Bonds Set Tomorrow

With votes from the April 4 Wheeling Public Library District referendum just canvassed, the bonds for purchase and remodeling of a church for use as the district's library will be sold tomorrow to two banks.

The Library Board was surprised at the rapid sale of the $250,000 in general obligation bonds. They had expected difficulties in marketing the bonds because of a 6 per cent limit on the interest the district can pay.

Hero of the sale was the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank which will buy $75,000 worth of the bonds. Because the local bank agreed to purchase those bonds with the final three maturity dates, the library district was able to sell the remainder of the bonds, those with earlier maturity dates, to the Northern Trust Co. of Chicago easier.

THE CHURCH that will be purchased is St. Mark's United Church of Christ on Jenkins Court near Elmhurst Road in Wheeling.

The bond issue was one of two propositions approved April 4. Voters also approved a tax hike of 8 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

Library board members will sign contracts with the two banks for the bond purchases tomorrow.

The bond sale was arranged for the district by Frank Foster of Howard W. Voss Associates Inc., a consulting firm hired by the library district.

Roger Bjorvik, the district's attorney, said he thought the short term of the bond issue and the variation of the bonds' maturity dates were what made the sale possible. As a comparison, he noted that the River Trails Park District which has the same bond rating sold a $175,000 bond issue for its swimming pool Thursday at a rate of 6.1907 per cent.

ALTHOUGH THE rapid sale of the bonds may enable the district to purchase the church and begin remodeling at an earlier date than was first expected, a number of preparations must be made before the renovation can begin.

The Wheeling Village Board Monday will probably refer a request for a special use permit (so the church can be used as a library) to the village's zoning board of appeals for a hearing.

Architect for the remodeling, G. L. Duke, said Friday the final remodeling plans and specifications for work on the church must be completed so bids on the work can be let.

Duke said he expects the remodeling work to begin in July. He said the library should be able to move into the church facility "by Christmas."

Blackout Hits 4 Communities

The lights went out for an hour and a half in Arlington Heights, and parts of Wheeling, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights at 11:25 p.m. Thursday.

Commonwealth Edison officials reported that six main "feeder" lines along the Soo Line R.R. tracks fell from the towers which support them. Cause of the downed lines falling was unknown.

Greatly hampered by the blackout was Pal-Waukee Airport south of Wheeling. The airport staff was unable to communicate with aircraft by the radio. The landing lights were also inoperative.

Airport owner George Priester explained that normally the airport loses only half of its power at a time because it is serviced from two separate lines on Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue. Thursday night however "we were totally in the dark," Priester said.

Incumbents Win

The three candidates backed by the Dist. 21 General Caucus, Ronald Cole, Edwin Smith and the Rev. L. James Wylie were easily elected to three-year terms on the school board Saturday.

Cole, the current president of the school board, received the highest number of votes in the election, with 409.

Smith was second with 456 votes and Wylie received 408 votes in the contest.

Independent candidate Turner Jones of Buffalo Grove finished fourth in the contest with 171 votes. Another independent, Chance Bahadur of Arlington Heights, finished fifth with 149 votes.

TOTAL NUMBER of votes cast in the election was 608, a "small turnout," according to Asst. Supt. John Barger. He said that he did not know the reason for the light vote.

Breakdown by precinct and candidate is as follows:

Cole — Precinct One, 110 votes; Precinct Two, 166 votes; Precinct Three, 110, Precinct Four, 60; Precinct Five, 13.

Smith — Precinct One, 93; Precinct Two, 168, Precinct Three, 106; Precinct Four, 54, Precinct Five, 37.

Wylie — Precinct One, 78; Precinct Two, 141; Precinct Three, 95; Precinct Four, 60, Precinct Five, 38.

Bahadur — Precinct One, 21; Precinct Two, 39; Precinct Three, 25; Precinct Four, 18; Precinct Five, 46.

COLE, WHO IS vice-president of the Borgquist Co. in Chicago, was elected to his second term on the board. He has been a resident of Wheeling for 14 years and has three children, two in the Dist. 21 school system.

$475,000 Bond Sale Ends

The River Trails Park District completed a $475,000 bond sale Thursday with the sale of $175,000 in bonds to the low bidding First National Bank of Mount Prospect.

Funds from the bond sale will be used for construction of a swimming pool complex at Woodland Trails Park, at Euclid and Wolf roads in Prospect Heights, which is slated to open sometime this summer. District voters approved a $475,000 bond referendum for the project last summer.

SEVERAL MONTHS ago the district

Wylie has never served on a school board, but has been active in the PTA at Frost School in Prospect Heights. He is director of program administration and parish relations at Lutheran General Hospital in Des Plaines.

A Prospect Heights resident for three years, he has three children; two attend Frost School.

CLUMBIA SECURITIES, Inc., also bid at the bond sale this week, along with the Mount Prospect State Bank.

Pool plans call for a T-shaped pool with a diving well, a "kiddie" pool, and a winterized bath house.

It was also decided at the Thursday meeting to lease a concession stand, which will be included in the complex.

Library Purchase Is Eyed

The Wheeling Public Library District Board celebrated national Library Week a week early on Tuesday by agreeing to purchase a new library.

After a canvass of the votes in last Saturday's election verified passage of the two-part referendum to purchase and remodel St. Mark's United Church of Christ as a new library and to increase the tax rate, the board notified church officials that the district would exercise the option agreement and buy the church.

A canvass of the votes Tuesday night indicated there were 649 "yes" votes, 472 "no" votes and 13 spoiled ballots on the part of the referendum to issue bonds to purchase the church and remodel it as a library.

On the tax rate increase part of the referendum there were 574 "yes" votes, 315 "no" votes and 15 spoiled ballots.

In other library news an election for library board members will be held Tuesday with one polling place available to district voters at the library building, on South Milwaukee Avenue in Wheeling.

FIVE VACANT library posts will be filled in the election. On the ballot for library trustee are Wallace C. Olson who is running for reelection to the board, two appointed board members Frederick O. Schubert and Mrs. Joyce Finnegan.

Police Probe Burglary

Wheeling police are investigating a burglary which occurred last week, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William Bradley, 315 Anne Terrace, Wheeling.

Inspection Schedule Is Set

A schedule for an inspection survey tomorrow of McDonald Creek by local, township, county and state officials has been announced, so that residents may meet with the team along the route.

Problem areas in the creek that have contributed to flooding conditions after heavy rains, will be pinpointed by the team.

The Illinois Division of Waterways (IDW) has offered equipment and manpower to dredge the creek and clean out major obstructions as an "emergency measure."

Emery Kilpatrick, chief of the bureau of operations for IDW, will accompany the team and direct dredging operations.

ACCORDING TO John E. Gilligan, chairman of the committee on McDonald Creek Improvement, "the schedule for this inspection allows for an in-depth look at the creek from the Soo Line near Euclid Avenue back to Windsor Drive in Arlington Heights. We hope residents will contact the inspection team along the way."

Gilligan said he also hopes residents will send him information concerning property, salary, repairs and other losses resulting from flooding. His address is 36 Lynnbrook Dr. in Prospect Heights.

This information will be forwarded to IDW, which requires estimates of damages to prepare benefit reports. These reports are used to justify capital expenditures for improvement of the creek.

RESIDENTS INTERESTED in talking to the government officials may meet them at the following times and places: 10-10:15 a.m. Euclid-Wolf bridge; 10:30-10:45 a.m. Soo Line bridge; 11:15-11:25 a.m. Camp McDonald bridge near Wolf; 1:30-1:40 p.m. Wheeling Road bridge; 2:2-2:30 p.m. Maple Drive bridge; 2:20-2:30 p.m. Elmhurst Road bridge; 2:45-2:50 p.m. Palatine Road bridge near Schoenbeck; 3:15-3:20 p.m. Schoenbeck Road bridge near Hintz; 3:20-3:40 p.m. Cornell Road, Windy Lane and Windsor Drive bridges.

Some of the officials invited to the inspection are Mrs. Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor; Robert Gorski, county highway district engineer; Eugene Schlickman, state representative; Disch Schick, Old Town Sanitary District, Wheeling village officials; and Country Gardens Sanitary District officials.

Gilligan said he also hopes residents will send him information concerning property, salary, repairs and other losses resulting from flooding. His address is 36 Lynnbrook Dr. in Prospect Heights.

Costello Top Vote-Getter

by TOM WELLMAN

Jack Costello, Raymond Erickson and Joseph Schiffhauer Saturday night won three-year terms on the High School Dist. 214 board.

Costello of Mount Prospect, who has already served one year on the board, led the field with 4,583 votes. Erickson of Arlington Heights, who has just completed his first three-year term, tallied 3,785, and Schiffhauer, also of Arlington Heights, gained 2,948 votes to win his first term on the board.

However, until the final five precincts were reported, Schiffhauer was closely challenged by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, the first black man ever to seek a Dist. 214 seat.

Brooks finished fifth, but with 22 of the 27 precincts reporting, he was only 118 votes behind Schiffhauer. However, the five remaining precincts, mainly from Arlington Heights, gave Schiffhauer an easy victory.

FOURTH PLACE WENT to Joseph Connery of Arlington Heights, who tallied 2,428. Brooks totaled 2,310. Robert Le Forge of Prospect Heights had 2,018, Mrs. Sophie Basile of Elk Grove Village collected 1,342 and Don McGlothlin finished with 833.

The results as recorded in the Dist. 214 offices in Mount Prospect are unofficial and they will be canvassed at a later date. However, it was apparent from the beginning that Costello and Erickson would be easily reelected to three-year terms.

"I feel very honored at winning," Costello said after the victory. "I'm appreciative of the support of the people, and I hope and feel that the support indicates an endorsement of my efforts."

He stressed he was impressed by the field of candidates, and he emphasized that he would work to serve the best interests of the young people and the community.

Erickson also stressed that he was pleased with the community support, and praised the losing candidates, one by one. Schiffhauer, who had to wait until the final return to be sure of his victory, said simply, "It's wonderful." He praised the teamwork and the hard work of a "great group of workers."

COSTELLO, IN LEADING the ballot, scored heavily in the Mount Prospect-Des Plaines area, winning an overall total of 13 of the 27 precincts. Erickson could capture only three, but he scored large victories in Arlington Heights and was steady throughout Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships.

Schiffhauer was extremely strong in precinct 15, his home precinct, where he tallied 201 votes to 87 for Costello. But his heartstopping triumph came against Brooks' strength in Elk Grove Village, where Brooks consistently outscored Mrs. Basile, who finished seventh.

Connery, with strong backing from former Mount Prospect mayor Daniel Congreve, showed great strength in Arlington Heights and considerable power in Mount Prospect. Le Forge, former board president in Dist. 23, captured both of the Prospect Heights precincts.

The eight candidates and backers, crowded into the main meeting room in the district's offices, and watched as results were tallied on a large bulletin board. At the end, which came at 11 p.m., the winners and losers seemed relieved that it was over.

Costello, Connery and Brooks mounted especially strong campaigns, based on volunteer manpower, leaflets, boundless energy and a seemingly never-ending string of coffees. Erickson said that he did little campaigning, and McGlothlin, who also tried to gain a Dist. 214 seat last year, openly endorsed Costello at the end of the campaign.

The vote means that Schiffhauer, personnel manager at United Air Lines, will replace Frank Bergen of Mount Prospect, who decided not to seek another term on the board.

The election campaign was free of controversial issues, as most of the candidates most of the time praised the district's progress. And the issue of Brooks, as a black man, did not become an issue, as many feared it would.

Park Board Lacks Direction: Kiddle

Charging that the Buffalo Grove Park District's five commissioners have failed to work together, Commissioner William Kiddle failed in an attempt to continue Thursday's park board meeting through the date of the next regular meeting in May.

In his motion for the meeting continuance, he asked that a sergeant-at-arms be appointed, and that park commissioners submit a written reason for their absence whenever they failed to attend a sessions of the continued meeting.

Had his motion passed, the procedure for submitting written reasons for absences would have been in effect until May 7, the date of the next regular park board meeting.

KIDDLE'S MOTION drew a sharp response from Sherwood Zwirn, another commissioner, who termed the motion "absurd" and said he did not understand the purpose of the procedure.

At that point Kiddle answered: "There has been a lack of prior planning for our meetings. We got material for this meeting five minutes before it started. "The purpose of my motion is to wake this body up to the fact that we are not working together."

"I'm perfectly happy to set aside this 'trick' if we are ready to work together. I have seen a certain fragmentation (among commissioners) that did not exist last summer."

KIDDLE ENDED his lengthy and sometimes heated explanation of his motion by charging the entire board with "a lack of leadership."

Kiddle told Val Bettin, park district president, that he would agree to withdraw the motion "only if you will do all in your power to motivate this body to get it to do what it is supposed to do. I'm saying we are all at fault."

Kiddle did withdraw his motion after Bettin told the board: "I feel we are all distressed by the fact that we have seen so little activity. The problem is that five people pulled together (in last fall's election) who have to learn to work together."

Earlier in the meeting Kiddle made the motion, and it passed by a 4-to-1 vote. Zwirn was the lone dissenter. However, that motion and its passage was later ruled out of order.

After Kiddle withdrew his motion, the board members decided to double the number of their regular meetings. The board now will meet the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELLMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at Northwestern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,144 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an Inverness housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 4,796 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied 4,020. And board member Le Roi Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 3,738 votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,376 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not become official until the board canvasses the vote Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and William Mann, vice president for financial affairs, flipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts, primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings, who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Toot, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard-fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

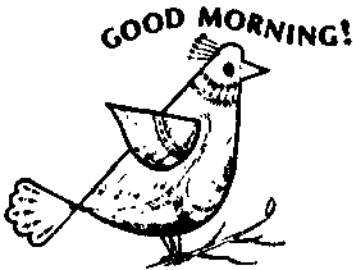

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature, a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and often witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight, a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

Incumbents Win Easily

Ronald Cole

Rev. L. James Wylie

'Mini' Vote Turnout

All caucus-backed candidates in Dist. 21 and all incumbents in Dist. 96 won posts on their respective school boards in elections Saturday.

In Dist. 21, incumbents Ronald Cole of Wheeling and Edwin Smith of Buffalo Grove and the Rev. L. James Wylie of Prospect Heights were elected to three-year terms on the board.

Cole was the highest vote getter, with 110 votes. Smith was second with 456 votes and Wylie was third with 408.

Finishing fourth in the contest was independent candidate Turner Jones of Buffalo Grove, who received 171 votes. Another independent candidate, Chance Bahadur of Arlington Heights, was fifth with 149 votes. A total of 608 votes were cast in the election.

ASST. SUPT. John Barger termed the voter turnout "small" and said he did not know the reason for the light vote.

A breakdown of the vote by precinct and candidate is as follows:

Cole — Precinct One, 110 votes; Precinct Two, 166 votes; Precinct Three 110; Precinct Four, 60; Precinct Five, 43.

Smith — Precinct One, 93; Precinct Two, 166; Precinct Three, 106; Precinct Four, 54; Precinct Five, 37.

Wylie — Precinct One, 76; Precinct Two, 141; Precinct Three, 95; Precinct Four, 60; Precinct Five, 36.

Jones — Precinct One, 36; Precinct Two, 58; Precinct Three, 52; Precinct Four, 16; Precinct Five, 9.

Bahadur — Precinct One, 21; Precinct Two, 39; Precinct Three, 25; Precinct Four 18; Precinct Five, 46.

IN DIST. 96, incumbents Tom Rusk, Anton Berg and Mrs. Dolores Richmond, all of Long Grove, were elected to three-year terms on the school board.

Incumbent Whitford Kuhn of Long Grove was elected to a one-year term on the board.

Rusk received the highest vote in the election, with 280. Mrs. Richmond was second with 265 and Berg finished third with 262. Kuhn was fourth with 226 votes.

In fifth place was James Duncan of Buffalo Grove, who received 200 votes. Sixth was Mrs. Mary Sundt of Buffalo Grove with 186 votes. Seventh was Thomas Begelow of Buffalo Grove with 169 votes. Total votes cast was 438.

Supt. William Hitzeman called the voter turnout in the election "excellent." He said that the total vote in last year's contest was 176.

"I THINK THE high voter turn-out this year was due to the fact that this was a contested election, which promoted interest. Last year's election was not contested," the superintendent said.

In High School Dist. 125, incumbents Fred French of Long Grove and Eugene Taylor of Deerfield were re-elected to the board. Taylor received 603 votes, and French, 588. Herbert Collier of Long Grove was third with 456 votes. Taylor and French will serve three-year terms on the board.

John Balmes of Deerfield won an uncontested one-year term on the board. He received 777 votes in the election.

A total of 962 people voted in the election, an "average" turnout according to Ed Ellis, business manager of Stevenson High School in Prairie View, the lone school in Dist. 125.

Parks Expecting $49,000

Buffalo Grove Park District commissioners heard some good financial news for a change at their meeting Thursday when they were told that the district can expect to receive as much as $49,000 in tax revenues next year.

The estimate, made by Commissioner Sherwood Zwirn, was based on the approximate assessed valuation totals for the Lake and Cook County parts of the district. The estimate is also based on a tax rate of 17.5 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

The estimated total of assessed valuation in Cook County stands at $24,805,106. The Lake County total is much lower, $334,460.

By law, the district can levy a maximum of 10 cents per $100 assessed valuation for a corporate tax, and 7.5 cents for a recreation tax.

BASED ON THOSE figures the district could expect a maximum of $43,904 in Cook County revenues and $5,093 from Lake County revenues.

The district has not yet passed a tax levy ordinance setting the tax rate at 17.5 per $100 assessed valuation but has until late this summer to do so.

Zwirn, in presenting the figures asked the commissioners to prepare a budget for that part of the district's operations under each of their jurisdictions. He set a deadline for those budgets of June 1.

"AN ECLIPSE at the time of birth will have a definite influence on an individual's life," according to astrology teacher Homer Lathrop. Lathrop, who spoke Thursday at

Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, said that astrology "can help us understand ourselves and our relation to others."

Series Peeks At Astrology

by SUE CARSON

A glimpse into the heavens and the secrets they might hold was given to local residents Thursday by astrology expert Homer Lathrop.

An interested audience, mostly housewives, came to the gymnasium at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove to hear Lathrop expound on the influences on the heavenly bodies on nature and mankind. His lecture was the last in the Inquiry into the Unknown series, sponsored by the Longfellow Community Education Project.

"Astrology has been condemned and exalted to great heights, but it has never been disproved," Lathrop declared. "It has been the foundation of all religions. The Christian church was influenced by astrology, although in many cases this influence was kept secret."

"FOR EXAMPLE, the calculation of the date of Easter each year was plotted from the heavens. Biblical patriarchs were well versed in astrology and all the prophets used astrology to make their prophecies. The 18th Psalm has many references to astrology."

"The major astronomers, like Sr. Isaac Newton, began as astrologers," he added.

The 27-year-old Lathrop has studied physics and astronomy at Northwestern University and now teaches a course in astronomy at the "free university" there.

He told the audience that astronomy "should not be considered a faith, but a guide."

"WILL POWER IS ONE thing that can't be taken into consideration when calculating a horoscope. The person highly developed spiritually usually goes beyond the influence of the zodiac."

Lathrop admitted that he has gone against his own horoscope, but said "it's very difficult to do. Obstacles are thrown up to prevent a person from acting contrary to his horoscope, and they must be overcome."

Lathrop said that while horoscopes printed in newspapers and magazines may be helpful in giving insight into coming events, a detailed horoscope would take many hours to develop and would take up 15 or 20 pages.

istics are associated with each sign.

"Those born under Cancer are protective, maternal types, while those born under Libra are well-adjusted. A Taurus is aggressive and a Virgo, analytical."

"All signs are ruled by a planet and each planet affects the sign," he said.

"Some planets rule more than one sign, as Venus which rules Taurus and Libra. Venus is the planet of love and honor, but Librans are more altruistic than those born under Taurus. Many judges are Librans."

The moon also influences man and his activities, according to Lathrop.

"It's better to be born under a new moon than a waning one. Persons born under a new moon have more vitality."

"More crime occurs under a full moon than at any other time."

ages to prepare benefit reports. These reports are used to justify capital expenditures for improvement of the creek.

Costello Top Vote-Getter

by TOM WELLMAN

Jack Costello, Raymond Erickson and Joseph Schiffhauer Saturday night won three-year terms on the High School Dist. 214 board.

Costello of Mount Prospect, who has already served one year on the board, led the field with 4,381 votes. Erickson of Arlington Heights, who has just completed his first three-year term, tallied 3,785, and Schiffhauer, also of Arlington Heights, gained 2,948 votes to win his first term on the board.

However, until the final five precincts were reported, Schiffhauer was closely challenged by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, the first black man ever to seek a Dist. 214 seat.

Brooks finished fifth, but with 22 of the 27 precincts reporting, he was only 118 votes behind Schiffhauer. However, the five remaining precincts, mainly from Arlington Heights, gave Schiffhauer an easy victory.

FOURTH PLACE WENT to Joseph Connery of Arlington Heights, who tallied 2,428. Brooks totaled 2,310, Robert Le Forge of Prospect Heights had 2,018, Mrs. Sophie Basile of Elk Grove Village collected 1,342 and Don McGlothlin finished with 833.

The results as recorded in the Dist. 214 offices in Mount Prospect are unofficial and they will be canvassed at a later date. However, it was apparent from the beginning that Costello and Erickson would be easily reelected to three-year terms.

"I feel very honored at winning," Costello said after the victory. "I'm appreciative of the support of the people, and I hope and feel that the support indicates an endorsement of my efforts."

He stressed he was impressed by the field of candidates, and he emphasized that he would work to serve the best interests of the young people and the community.

Erickson also stressed that he was pleased with the community support, and praised the losing candidates, one by one. Schiffhauer, who had to wait until the final return to be sure of his victory, said simply, "It's wonderful." He praised the teamwork and the hard work of a "great group of workers."

COSTELLO, IN LEADING the ballot, scored heavily in the Mount Prospect Des Plaines area, winning an overall total of 11 of the 27 precincts. Erickson could capture only three, but he scored large victories in Arlington Heights and was steady throughout Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships.

Schiffhauer was extremely strong in precinct 15, his home precinct, where he tallied 201 votes to 87 for Costello. But his heartstopping triumph came against Brooks' strength in Elk Grove Village, where Brooks consistently outscored Mrs. Basile, who finished seventh.

Connery, with strong backing from former Mount Prospect mayor Daniel Conner, showed great strength in Arlington Heights and considerable power in Mount Prospect. Le Forge, former board president in Dist. 23, captured both of the Prospect Heights precincts.

The eight candidates and backers, crowded into the main meeting room in the district's offices, and watched as results were tallied on a large bulletin board. At the end, which came at 11 p.m., the winners and losers seemed relieved that it was over.

Costello, Connery and Brooks mounted especially strong campaigns, based on volunteer manpower, leaflets, boundless energy and a seemingly never-ending string of coffees. Erickson said that he did little campaigning, and McGlothlin, who also tried to gain a Dist. 214 seat last year, openly endorsed Costello at the end of the campaign.

The vote means that Schiffhauer, personnel manager at United Air Lines, will replace Frank Bergen of Mount Prospect, who decided not to seek another term on the board.

The election campaign was free of controversial issues, as most of the candidates most of the time praised the district's progress. And the issue of Brooks, as a black man, did not become an issue, as many feared it would.

Park Board Lacks Direction: Kiddle

Charging that the Buffalo Grove Park District's five commissioners have failed to work together, Commissioner William Kiddle failed in an attempt to continue Thursday's park board meeting through the date of the next regular meeting in May.

In his motion for the meeting to continue, he asked that a sergeant-at-arms be appointed, and that park commissioners submit a written reason for their absence whenever they failed to attend a session of the continued meeting.

Had his motion passed, the procedure for submitting written reasons for absences would have been in effect until May 7, the date of the next regular park board meeting.

KIDDLE'S MOTION drew a sharp response from Sherwood Zwirn, another commissioner, who termed the motion "absurd" and said he did not understand the purpose of the procedure.

At that point Kiddle answered, "There has been a lack of prior planning for our meetings. We got material for this meeting five minutes before it started. "The purpose of my motion is to wake this body up to the fact that we are not working together."

"I'm perfectly happy to set aside this 'trick' if we are ready to work together. I have seen a certain fragmentation (among commissioners) that did not exist last summer."

KIDDLE ENDED his lengthy and sometimes heated explanation of his motion by charging the entire board with "a lack of leadership."

Kiddle told Val Bettin, park district president, that he would agree to withdraw the motion "only if you will do all in your power to motivate this body to get it to do what it is supposed to do. I'm saying we are all at fault."

Kiddle did withdraw his motion after Bettin told the board, "I feel we are all distressed by the fact that we have seen so little activity. The problem is that five people pulled together (in last fall's election) who have to learn to work together."

Earlier in the meeting Kiddle made the motion, and it passed by a 4-0-1 vote. Zwirn was the lone dissenter. However, that motion and its passage was later ruled out of order.

After Kiddle withdrew his motion, the board members decided to double the number of their regular meetings. The board now will meet the second and fourth Tuesdays of each month.

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELLMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at Northwestern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,144 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an Inverness housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 4,596 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied 4,020. And board member Le Roi Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 3,738.

votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,376 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not become official until the board canvasses the votes Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and William Mann, vice president for financial affairs, flipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts, primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings, who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Toot, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard-fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature, a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and often witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight, a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

Hanson Led Dist. 57 Voting

STUDENTS FROM St. Paul's Lutheran School in Mount Prospect attended the science department's annual science fair held Friday afternoon in the school gym, 18 S. School St. About 150 science projects, designed and presented by students, were on display. The exhibit was also opened to the public. Awards were presented to students whose projects were judged on the basis of creativity and design.

Despite cold weather and rain, voters from School Dist. 57 went to the polls Saturday to elect Harrison Hanson, George Foster and Peter Dudrow to serve three-year terms on the board of education.

Hanson, the only incumbent in the race and president of the board, chalked up a total of 1,076 votes while Foster and Dudrow followed with 805 and 762 votes respectively.

Mrs. Bernice McCarthy, of 612 S. George Street, received 694 votes in Saturday's election, while Harold Predovich, of 910 Country Lane, finished fifth in the field with 473 votes.

All of the candidates were endorsed by the Dist. 57 General Caucus. The terms of Hanson, Ralph Walberg and Charles Houchins expired this month, leaving three vacancies on the board, each for a three-year term.

THE VOTING turnout was light, as just barely 1,270 voters cast ballots in the election Saturday. J. C. Busenhardt, Dist. 57 business manager, said the voting turnout was considerably lighter than the turnout last fall, when voters were asked to approve about a $1 million referendum to expand Lincoln Junior High School.

The polls were open at four locations from noon to 7 p.m. Saturday, and the results were in by 10 p.m. The unofficial count will be validated by School Dist. 57 later this month.

The campaign ended as quietly as it began in February, when the nominating committee of the general caucus had trouble finding enough candidates to bid for the three vacancies on the board. School officials think the lack of community interest in the election is linked to the fact Dist. 57 has no "pressing problems" today. And traditionally, most school board campaigns are predicated on one or two controversial issues.

DIST. 57 today has its share of problems to solve, just like any school district, but they are not critical problems as yet. The terms of the candidates elected Saturday will be devoted to ironing out teachers' salaries, improving and expanding the curriculum and phasing out Central School as Lincoln School becomes the only junior high school in the district this fall.

Hanson and the two new members of the board are all residents of Mount Prospect. Hanson, who is a three-year veteran on the Dist. 57 board, lives at 500 S. William Street with his wife and three children. He is director of systems and data processing for Hart, Schaffner and Marx, a Chicago clothing company.

Foster, who lives at 605 E. Prospect Avenue with his wife and eight-year-old son, is director of field services for the Institute of Food Technologists. Dudrow, a management consultant for A. T. Kearney Co., lives with his wife and five children at 4108 W. Busse.

Neuhauser Top Vote-Getter in Dist. 59

It's as easy as one, two, but three was the hitch in the Dist. 59 board of education race for three three-year terms.

Mrs. Sharrille Hildebrandt and Mrs. Judith Zanca, first and second on the ballot, captured two seats. Zanca with a 115 vote lead. Dr. Erwin Poklaci, third on the ballot, however, lost his place in the lineup to incumbent Harry Peterson, who edged his way into the third seat by three votes out of a total 8,361 for the 10 candidates.

Incumbent Paul Neuhauser soundly defeated his only opponent, Gerald Smiley by 1,453 votes for the two-year seat.

A minimum of 2,787 voters turned out in the race to select from the 12 candidates.

"WITHOUT A doubt, it surely must be some kind of record for Dist. 59," Al Waltman, acting superintendent, said. Precinct eight, Salt Creek School, was the last of the 10 precincts to register its county, totaling the highest vote, and determining what had been until then a tossup between Poklaci, Peterson and Hildebrandt for two of the three three-year seats.

Mrs. Zanca came in on top when the first precinct reported, and carried her lead throughout the evening.

Commenting on her lead position near the end of the tally, Mrs. Zanca said, "I don't know how I feel yet. No, I'm happy. I'll do a good job."

Although eight of the 10 precincts had reported by 9:30 Saturday night, tension ran high for almost two hours until the Salt Creek vote came in at 11:20 p.m., determining the winners.

Those still in the race for the last two seats at the end of the eight-precinct total were all from Elk Grove Village and had campaigned hard in the Salt Creek territory.

MRS. HILDEBRANDT would not definitely claim it as her precinct before the tally came in, but she sighed with relief and exclaimed, "My people," when Salt Creek provided her with 336 votes, 67 above the next contender.

When Poklaci heard of his three-vote defeat he said he would wait until the votes were canvassed before commenting.

Canvassing of the votes and the official count will be held at the next board meeting, scheduled for April 20.

Vote totals for the three-year seats are:

Judith Zanca, 1,500; Sharrille Hildebrandt, 1,185; Harry Peterson, 1,130; Erwin Poklaci, 1,127; Richard Pettinato, 913; Phillip Lawson, 842; John Roesser, 750; Edwin Kudalis, 413; Nickolas Kostos, 280; Robert Winkle, 212; write-ins, 9; total, 8,361.

Vote totals for the two-year seat are: Paul Neuhauser, 1,956; Gerald Smiley, 503; write-ins, 6; total, 2,465.

Blackout Hits 4 Communities

The lights went out for an hour and a half in Arlington Heights, and parts of Wheeling, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights at 11:25 p.m. Thursday.

Commonwealth Edison officials reported that six main "feeder" lines along the Soo Line R.R. tracks fell from the towers which support them. Cause of the downed lines falling was unknown.

Greatly hampered by the blackout was

Pal-Waukee Airport south of Wheeling. The airport staff was unable to communicate with aircraft by the radio. The landing lights were also inoperative.

Airport owner George Priester explained that normally the airport loses only half of its power at a time because it is serviced from two separate lines on Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue. Thursday night however "we were totally in the dark," Priester said.

Costello High Scorer in Dist. 214 Vote

By TOM WELLMAN

Jack Costello, Raymond Erickson and Joseph Schiffhauer Saturday night won three-year terms on the High School Dist. 214 board.

Costello of Mount Prospect, who has already served one year on the board, led the field with 4,583 votes. Erickson of Arlington Heights, who has just completed his first three-year term, tallied 3,785 and Schiffhauer, also of Arlington Heights, gained 2,948 votes to win his first term on the board.

However, until the final five precincts were reported, Schiffhauer was closely challenged by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, the first black man ever to seek a Dist. 214 seat.

Brooks finished fifth, but with 22 of the 27 precincts reporting, he was only 118 votes behind Schiffhauer. However, the five remaining precincts, mainly from Arlington Heights, gave Schiffhauer an easy victory.

FOURTH PLACE WENT to Joseph Connery of Arlington Heights, who tallied 2,171. Brooks totaled 2,310, Robert Le Forge of Prospect Heights had 2,018, Mrs. Sophie Basile of Elk Grove Village collected 1,132 and Don McGlothlin finished with 833.

The results as recorded in the Dist. 214 offices in Mount Prospect are unofficial and they will be canvassed at a later date. However, it was apparent from the beginning that Costello and Erickson would be easily reelected to three-year terms.

"I feel very honored at winning," Costello said after the victory. "I'm appreciative of the support of the people, and I hope and feel that the support indicates an endorsement of my efforts."

He stressed he was impressed by the field of candidates, and he emphasized that he would work to serve the best interests of the young people and the community.

Erickson also stressed that he was pleased with the community support, and praised the losing candidates, one by one. Schiffhauer, who had to wait until the final return to be sure of his victory, said simply, "It's wonderful." He praised the teamwork and the hard work of a "great group of workers."

COSTELLO, IN LEADING the ballot, scored heavily in the Mount Prospect-Dos Plaines area, winning an overall total of 13 of the 27 precincts. Erickson could capture only three, but he scored large victories in Arlington Heights and was steady throughout Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships.

Schiffhauer was extremely strong in precinct 15, his home precinct, where he tallied 201 votes to 87 for Costello. But his heartstopping triumph came against Brooks' strength in Elk Grove Village, where Brooks consistently outscored Mrs. Basile, who finished seventh.

Connery, with strong backing from former Mount Prospect mayor Daniel Congrove, showed great strength in Arlington Heights and considerable power in Mount Prospect. Le Forge, former board president in Dist. 23, captured both of the Prospect Heights precincts.

The eight candidates and backers, crowded into the main meeting room in the district's offices, and watched as results were tallied on a large bulletin board. At the end, which came at 11 p.m., the winners and losers seemed relieved that it was over.

Costello, Connery and Brooks mounted especially strong campaigns, based on volunteer manpower, leaflets, boundless energy and a seemingly never-ending string of coffees. Erickson said that he did little campaigning, and McGlothlin, who also tried to gain a Dist. 214 seat last year, openly endorsed Costello at the end of the campaign.

The vote means that Schiffhauer, personnel manager at United Air Lines, will replace Frank Bergen of Mount Prospect, who decided not to seek another term on the board.

The election campaign was free of controversial issues, as most of the candidates most of the time praised the district's progress. And the issue of Brooks, as a black man, did not become an issue, as many feared it would.

Rips Meeting Time

A candidate for the State Senate has demanded that the time of Tuesday's annual town budget hearing in Elk Grove Township be changed from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. to allow more voters to attend.

Paul Shanyfelt of Elk Grove Village, Democratic candidate from the Third District, said the earlier starting time will "insure a low turnout."

"Many interested groups will not be able to attend due to work or having to stay at home because of their children attending school," he said.

SHANYFELT SAID this year's town meeting will be important in the light of a recent Illinois Supreme Court decision preventing townships from keeping a 2 per cent commission fee for collecting taxes.

"How will this be handled without costing the local residents more in an already hard hit tax year?" asked Shanyfelt.

The township, in an attempt to make up for the loss in excess fees (amounting to $10,000 last year), will ask voters at Tuesday's meeting to approve a tax levy.

Frank Hines, township attorney, explained why this year's meeting will be held at 2 instead of 8 p.m.

He said the time of this year's town meeting was determined by state statute.

HINES EXPLAINED that when the town meeting was adjourned in 1969 there was no provision for the hour this year's meeting would begin other than that it be held the second Tuesday in April.

State statute calls for town meetings to be held at 2 p.m. if not specifically stated at the previous town meeting, he said.

Last year's town meeting began at 8 p.m. because the hour of the meeting was included in the motion to adjourn in the previous year, 1968.

Shanyfelt suggested the township follow a practice that Congress uses, calling the meeting to order at 2 p.m. and adjourning to 8 p.m.

Hines said a state statute allows the town meeting to adjourn only to move to larger quarters to accommodate a crowd, and when it is unable to finish its business.

SHANYFELT ALSO fired a blast at the township form of government which may be placed in jeopardy if a tax levy is not approved.

"If this form of government is so badly needed," he said, "the elected officials must show that they are responsive to the needs of the residents."

"It's the local resident's tax dollar that is being used to keep this duplicity of government in operation," he said. "At least give the taxpayers a chance to discuss openly what the elected officials are going to do with their money."

Library Gets Teen Donation

Thursday night three members of the Mount Prospect Youth Commission presented the library board a check for $125.54 to be used for financing the prospective listening center.

The students, Diane Ackerman, Bob Bittler and Ken Holmes, president of the Prospect High School Student Council, made the presentation.

The money was raised from a dance at the youth commission sponsored Dec. 28 at the Randhurst Shopping Center mall.

Mary Jo Hutchings, director of the library, said the listening center would probably cost "more in the area of $800," but she added that the donation from the youths will be the "nucleus" for the project.

"We could not do it without the gift fund," she said. "The library board wouldn't have the funds."

Mrs. Hutchings said she will begin work on planning the listening center this week.

The center will consist of tapes, recorders and record players.

She added that the center "is the kind of thing young people want."

$300 Clothing Theft

A Palatine man told Mount Prospect police Thursday about $300 worth of personal clothing was stolen from his auto while it was parked at Randhurst Shopping Center.

Julius Pryor, 49 Elizabeth St., told police a man's suit, two pairs of pants and a pair of sunglasses were missing from his auto, which was locked at the time the theft occurred. Police said entrance to the locked auto was gained by forcing the vent window open.

Pryor lives at 49 Elizabeth Street.

Aid for Maryville Kids?

Chances of River Trails School Dist. 26 receiving capital funding from the state for construction of additional classrooms, has been given a boost by State Rep. Eugene Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights.

The additional classrooms are needed to accommodate students living at Maryville Academy, a home for dependent children south of Foundry Road. The district has been educating the dependent children since 1968 when Catholic Charities decided it could no longer afford to operate a school.

During the first week of the spring session of the Illinois General Assembly, Schlickman and co-sponsor State Rep. Eugenia Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, introduced House Bill 3445 which, if passed, will permit the Illinois School Building Commission (ISBC) to finance construction of additional classrooms for wards of the state on a priority basis.

THE STATE HAS extended the time in which the district must secure facilities that meet the Life Safety Code for the Maryville students. But it has made no provision for classroom space for these students up to this time.

However, the state does subsidize the district for tuition costs of the Maryville students.

Ideally, the district would like to see a new school built with classroom space equivalent to the need created by the influx of Maryville students. But the new school would not be attended just by Maryville students.

"We believe it would be a better contribution if the Maryville children could associate with children throughout the whole district," said Harwood.

In this way, the children who now live at Maryville and who need individualized attention could be isolated in a classroom, yet still be in contact with other district children during recess and other extracurricular periods.

THE CHILDREN WHO are performing at the grade level appropriate to their age are now integrated into outside district classrooms. The same arrangement could be continued after a new facility is built.

The financial arrangement between the district and ISBC is not completely clear. Schlickman said the building rental costs (or paying back of state construction funds) would be covered by the tuition subsidy the district already receives from the state.

The bill is an amendment to the School Code, which currently requires a school district to meet certain debt and enrollment requirements to determine when ISBC will allot construction funds.

"Under the current law, Dist. 26 would have to stand at the end of the line and possibly wait several years to receive funds from ISBC," explained district Supt. Winston Harwood.

HB 3445 states districts in Dist. 26's situation will have priority in the use of funds available through the commission. The privilege is applicable only to districts educating children who are housed in a residential care facility, and which contract with the state for the care of orphans dependent, abandoned or maladjusted children and admit such children from the state in general.

IN ACTUALITY, the bill most likely applies only to Dist. 26, at this time. "I received a letter from the state finance director saying we are the only district in the state in this situation," said Harwood.

The district has been able to accommodate half of the more than 300 Maryville students in its regular district schools. However, the other half are still attending school in Maryville facilities which do not meet state Life Safety Code requirements.

However district officials are not certain the subsidy would completely cover rental costs. And it is also not certain if the district should be obligated to pay for facilities used by state wards.

Harwood pointed out that the bill may be refined as it passes through various stages of legislation. He said he plans to attend and speak at the hearing on the bill in Springfield.

"If we can come up with anywhere near a fair and equitable plan, we will be happy," said Harwood. "We aren't going to quibble over details."

Joint Housing Effort A 'Must'

Only a joint effort by communities, townships, and the county will solve the housing shortage for low-income families, said a member of a housing task force in Elk Grove Village.

"We cannot solve the problem on a village by village basis," said Edward Kenna who spoke Friday night at a panel discussion in an Arlington Heights church. "It must be a joint venture," he said.

ALONG WITH solving the housing problem, Kenna said, a social problem that accompanies persons new to the suburbs must be solved at the same time.

They must be taught how to get along in an area which is different than from where they came, he explained.

Kenna was one of four panel members who spoke before a group of about 80 persons in the basement of the Congregational United Church of Christ, 1001 W. Kitchell Road.

Kenna has served 2 1/2 months on a housing task force assigned the job of planning 17 Mexican American families in permanent housing. The families had been living in substandard dwellings.

deemed unsafe in recent months following the death of three children last November in Elk Grove Township.

"WE STILL haven't housed the 17 families," he said. "There is no housing of a permanent nature for them, he asserted."

One of the 17 families Kenna referred to is living in the basement of the church only a few feet away from where he spoke.

A mother and her three children have been living there since mid-March when friends moved her from a dilapidated trailer near Higgins Road and Oakton Street.

Mrs. William Trevor, of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the housing shortage is no longer a problem but a disaster.

"Half the population is priced out of the housing market in the United States," she said.

CHARLES CATLIN, an Arlington Heights architect who has worked with public housing projects, used slides to illustrate attractive low-income housing for families and senior citizens.

CONSTRUCTION COSTS for such housing would be about $15,000 if included in a 50-unit project, he said afterward.

The federal government buys the land, builds the homes, charges nominal rent, and finances the homes through tax free bonds.

Rudolph Hazucha, of the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition, said his organization wants to set up housing committees in each community and survey the communities to find who the needy families are.

He said the coalition has also proposed that each resident give $1 a month for an emergency housing fund. Though only $250 has been collected, he indicated he was optimistic.

Surveying Tools Taken from Truck

An Arlington Heights man told Mount Prospect police Wednesday several tools used for surveying were missing from his truck, which was parked overnight at 1100 E. Northwest Highway.

Robert Frederick, 412 Beverly Lane, told police he locked the truck before he left work Tuesday night. He estimated the value of the missing property at about $50.

It Was Son, Not Mom

The Herald apologizes to Mrs. Chester Sipora, 290 N. Prospect Manor, Mount Prospect, for an error in a story which appeared in Friday's paper.

It was reported that Mrs. Sipora was promoted to 2nd lieutenant after completing officers' candidate school (OCS) at Ft. Sill, Okla., March 20.

It was her son, Chester Craig Sipora, 27, who received the promotion. He is now assigned to an artillery unit at Fort Riley, Kan.

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELLMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at Northwestern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,144 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an Inverness housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 4,586 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied, 4,020. And board member Le Roi Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 3,738 votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,378 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not become official until the board canvasses the votes Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and William Mann, vice president for financial affairs, flipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts, primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings, who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Toot, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard-fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature, a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and of ten witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight, a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

Hanson Led Dist. 57 Voting

STUDENTS FROM St. Paul's Lutheran School in Mount Prospect attended the science department's annual science fair held Friday afternoon in the school gym, 18 S. School St. About 150 science projects, designed and presented by students, were on display. The exhibit was also opened to the public. Awards were presented to students whose projects were judged on the basis of creativity and design.

Despite cold weather and rain, voters from School Dist. 57 went to the polls Saturday to elect Harrison Hanson, George Foster and Peter Dudrow to serve three-year terms on the board of education.

Hanson, the only incumbent in the race and president of the board, chalked up a total of 1,076 votes while Foster and Dudrow followed with 805 and 762 votes respectively.

Mrs. Bernice McCarthy, of 612 S. George Street, received 694 votes in Saturday's election, while Harold Predovich, of 910 Country Lane, finished fifth in the field with 473 votes.

All of the candidates were endorsed by the Dist. 57 General Caucus. The terms of Hanson, Ralph Walberg and Charles Houchins expired this month, leaving three vacancies on the board, each for a three-year term.

THE VOTING turnout was light, as just barely 1,270 voters cast ballots in the election Saturday. J. C. Busenhardt, Dist. 57 business manager, said the voting turnout was considerably lighter than the turnout last fall, when voters were asked to approve about a $1 million referendum to expand Lincoln Junior High School.

The polls were open at four locations from noon to 7 p.m. Saturday, and the results were in by 10 p.m. The unofficial count will be validated by School Dist. 57 later this month.

The campaign ended as quietly as it began in February, when the nominating committee of the general caucus had trouble finding enough candidates to bid for the three vacancies on the board. School officials think the lack of community interest in the election is linked to the fact Dist. 57 has no "pressing problems" today. And traditionally, most school board campaigns are predicated on one or two controversial issues.

DIST. 57 today has its share of problems to solve, just like any school district, but they are not critical problems as yet. The terms of the candidates elected Saturday will be devoted to ironing out teachers' salaries, improving and expanding the curriculum and phasing out Central School as Lincoln School becomes the only junior high school in the district this fall.

Hanson and the two new members of the board are all residents of Mount Prospect. Hanson, who is a three-year veteran on the Dist. 57 board, lives at 500 S. William Street with his wife and three children. He is director of systems and data processing for Hart, Schaffner and Marx, a Chicago clothing company.

Foster, who lives at 605 E. Prospect Avenue with his wife and eight-year-old son, is director of field services for the Institute of Food Technologists. Dudrow, a management consultant for A. T. Kearney Co., lives with his wife and five children at 4108 W. Busse.

Neuhauser Top Vote-Getter in Dist. 59

It's as easy as one, two, but three was the hitch in the Dist. 59 board of education race for three three-year terms.

Mrs. Sharrie Hildebrandt and Mrs. Judith Zanca, first and second on the ballot captured two seats, Zanca with a 315 vote lead. Dr. Erwin Poklacki, third on the ballot, however, lost his place in the lineup to incumbent Harry Peterson, who edged his way into the third seat by three votes out of a total 8,361 for the 10 candidates.

Incumbent Paul Neuhauser soundly defeated his only opponent, Gerald Smiley by 1,453 votes for the two-year seat.

A minimum of 2,787 voters turned out in the rain to select from the 12 candidates.

"WITHOUT A doubt, it surely must be some kind of record for Dist. 59," Al Wallman, acting superintendent, said.

Precinct eight, Salt Creek School, was the last of the 10 precincts to register its county, totaling the highest vote, and determining what had been until then a tossup between Poklacki, Peterson and Hildebrandt for two of the three three-year seats.

Mrs. Zanca came in on top when the first precinct reported, and carried her lead throughout the evening.

Commenting on her lead position near the end of the tally, Mrs. Zanca said, "I don't know how I feel yet. No, I'm happy. I'll do a good job."

Although eight of the 10 precincts had reported by 9:30 Saturday night tension ran high for almost two hours until the Salt Creek vote came in at 11:20 p.m., determining the winners.

Those still in the race for the last two seats at the end of the eight-precinct total were all from Elk Grove Village and had campaigned hard in the Salt Creek territory.

MRS. HILDEBRANDT would not definitely claim it as her precinct before the tally came in, but she sighed with relief and exclaimed, "My people," when Salt Creek provided her with 336 votes, 67 above the next contender.

When Poklacki heard of his three-vote defeat he said he would wait until the votes were canvassed before commenting.

Canvassing of the votes and the official count will be held at the next board meeting, scheduled for April 20.

Vote totals for the three-year seats are:

Judith Zanca, 1,500; Sharrie Hildebrandt, 1,105; Harry Peterson, 1,130; Erwin Poklacki, 1,127; Richard Pettinato, 913; Phillip Lawson, 842; John Roesser, 750; Edwin Kudalis, 413; Nicholas Kostos, 280; Robert Winkle, 212; write-ins, 9; total, 8,361.

Vote totals for the two-year seat are: Paul Neuhauser, 1,956; Gerald Smiley, 583; write-ins, 6; total, 2,445.

Blackout Hits 4 Communities

The lights went out for an hour and a half in Arlington Heights, and parts of Wheeling, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights at 11:25 p.m. Thursday.

Commonwealth Edison officials reported that six main "feeder" lines along the Soo Line R.R. tracks fell from the towers which support them. Cause of the downed lines falling was unknown.

Greatly hampered by the blackout was

Pal-Waukee Airport south of Wheeling. The airport staff was unable to communicate with aircraft by the radio. The landing lights were also inoperative.

Airport owner George Priester explained that normally the airport loses only half of its power at a time because it is serviced from two separate lines on Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue. Thursday night however "we were totally in the dark," Priester said.

Costello High Scorer in Dist. 214 Vote

by TOM WELLMAN

Jack Costello, Raymond Erickson and Joseph Schiffhauer Saturday night won three-year terms on the High School Dist. 214 board.

Costello of Mount Prospect, who has already served one year on the board, led the field with 4,583 votes. Erickson of Arlington Heights, who has just completed his first three-year term, tallied 3,785, and Schiffhauer, also of Arlington Heights, gained 2,948 votes to win his first term on the board.

However, until the final five precincts were reported, Schiffhauer was closely challenged by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, the first black man ever to seek a Dist. 214 seat.

Brooks finished fifth, but with 22 of the 27 precincts reporting, he was only 118 votes behind Schiffhauer. However, the five remaining precincts, mainly from Arlington Heights, gave Schiffhauer an easy victory.

FOURTH PLACE WENT to Joseph Connery of Arlington Heights, who tallied 2,428. Brooks totaled 2,310, Robert Le Forge of Prospect Heights had 2,018, Mrs. Sophie Basile of Elk Grove Village collected 1,342 and Don McGlothlin finished with 833.

The results as recorded in the Dist. 214 offices in Mount Prospect are unofficial and they will be canvassed at a later date. However, it was apparent from the beginning that Costello and Erickson would be easily reelected to three-year terms.

"I feel very honored at winning," Costello said after the victory. "I'm appreciative of the support of the people, and I hope and feel that the support indicates an endorsement of my efforts."

He stressed he was impressed by the field of candidates, and he emphasized that he would work to serve the best interests of the young people and the community.

Erickson also stressed that he was pleased with the community support, and praised the losing candidates, one by one. Schiffhauer, who had to wait until the final return to be sure of his victory, said simply, "It's wonderful." He praised the teamwork and the hard work of a "great group of workers."

COSTELLO, IN LEADING the ballot, scored heavily in the Mount Prospect-Des Plaines area, winning an overall total of 13 of the 27 precincts. Erickson could capture only three, but he scored large victories in Arlington Heights and was steady throughout Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships.

Schiffhauer was extremely strong in precinct 15, his home precinct, where he tallied 261 votes to 87 for Costello. But his heartstopping triumph came against Brooks' strength in Elk Grove Village, where Brooks consistently outscored Mrs. Basile, who finished seventh.

Connery, with strong backing from former Mount Prospect mayor Daniel Congreve, showed great strength in Arlington Heights and considerable power in Mount Prospect. Le Forge, former board president in Dist. 23, captured both of the Prospect Heights precincts.

The eight candidates and backers, crowded into the main meeting room in the district's offices, and watched as results were tallied on a large bulletin board. At the end, which came at 11 p.m., the winners and losers seemed relieved that it was over.

Costello, Connery and Brooks mounted especially strong campaigns, based on volunteer manpower, leaflets, boundless energy and a seemingly never-ending string of coffees. Erickson said that he did little campaigning, and McGlothlin, who also tried to gain a Dist. 214 seat last year, openly endorsed Costello at the end of the campaign.

The vote means that Schiffhauer, personnel manager at United Air Lines, will replace Frank Bergen of Mount Prospect, who decided not to seek another term on the board.

The election campaign was free of controversial issues, as most of the candidates most of the time praised the district's progress. And the issue of Brooks, as a black man, did not become an issue, as many feared it would.

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELLMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at North-eastern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,144 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an Inverness housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 4,506 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied 4,020. And board member Le Roy Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 3,738.

votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,376 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not become official until the board canvasses the votes Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and Wilham Mann, vice president for financial affairs, flipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts, primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings, who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Toot, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

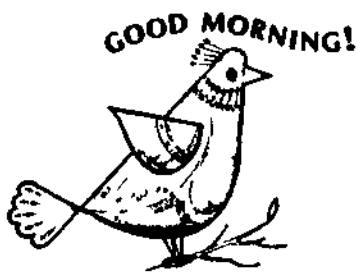

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature, a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and of ten witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

Here's Dist. 214 Choice

by TOM WELLMAN

Jack Costello, Raymond Erickson and Joseph Schiffhauer Saturday night won three-year terms on the High School Dist. 214 board.

Costello of Mount Prospect, who has already served one year on the board, led the field with 4,583 votes. Erickson of Arlington Heights, who has just completed his first three-year term, tallied 3,785. And Schiffhauer, also of Arlington Heights, gained 2,948 votes to win his first term on the board.

However, until the final five precincts were reported, Schiffhauer was closely challenged by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, the first black man ever to seek a Dist. 214 seat.

Brooks finished fifth, but with 22 of the 27 precincts reporting, he was only 118 votes behind Schiffhauer. However, the five remaining precincts, mainly from Arlington Heights, gave Schiffhauer an easy victory.

FOURTH PLACE WENT to Joseph Connery of Arlington Heights, who tallied 2,428. Brooks totaled 2,310. Robert Le Forge of Prospect Heights had 2,018. Mrs. Sophie Basile of Elk Grove Village collected 1,742. And Don McGlothlin finished with 831.

The results as recorded in the Dist. 214 offices in Mount Prospect are unofficial and they will be canvassed at a later date. However, it was apparent from the beginning that Costello and Erickson would be easily reelected to three-year terms.

"I feel very honored at winning," Costello said after the victory. "I'm appreciative of the support of the people, and I hope and feel that the support indicates an endorsement of my efforts."

Raymond Erickson

Jack Costello

Joseph Schiffhauer

He stressed he was impressed by the field of candidates and he emphasized that he would work to serve the best interests of the young people and the community.

Erickson also stressed that he was pleased with the community support, and praised the losing candidates, one by one. Schiffhauer, who had to wait until the final return to be sure of his victory, said simply, "It's wonderful." He praised the teamwork and the hard work of a great group of workers.

CONNERY, IN LEADING the balloting, scored heavily in the Mount Prospect-Des Plaines area, winning an overall total of 13 of the 27 precincts. Erickson could capture three, but he scored large victories in Arlington Heights and was steady throughout Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships.

Schiffhauer was extremely strong in precinct 15, his home precinct, where he tallied 201 votes to 87 for Costello. But his heartstopping triumph came against Brooks' strength in Elk Grove Village, where Brooks consistently outscored Mrs. Basile, who finished seventh.

Connery, with strong backing from former Mount Prospect mayor Daniel Congreve, showed great strength in Arlington Heights and considerable power in Mount Prospect. Le Forge, former board president in Dist. 23, captured both of the Prospect Heights precincts.

The eight candidates and backers, crowded into the main meeting room in the district's offices, and watched as results were tallied on a large bulletin board. At the end, which came at 11 p.m., the winners and losers seemed relieved that it was over.

Costello, Connery and Brooks mounted especially strong campaigns, based on volunteer manpower, leaflets, boundless energy and a seemingly never-ending string of coffees. Erickson said that he did little campaigning, and McGlothlin, who also tried to gain a Dist. 214 seat last year, openly endorsed Costello at the end of the campaign.

The vote means that Schiffhauer, personnel manager at United Air Lines, will replace Frank Bergen of Mount Prospect, who decided not to seek another term on the board.

The election campaign was free of controversial issues, as most of the candidates most of the time praised the district's progress. And the issue of Brooks, as a black man, did not become an issue, as many feared it would.

Neuhauser Is Top Dist. 59 Vote-Getter

It was as easy as one, two, but three was the hitch in the Dist. 59 board of education race for three three-year terms.

Mrs. Sharrie Hildebrandt and Mrs. Judith Zanca first and second on the ballot captured two seats. Zanca with a 315 vote led Dr. Erwin Poklaski, third on the ballot, however, lost his place in the lineup to incumbent Harry Peterson, who edged his way into the third seat by three votes out of a total 3,361 for the 10 candidates.

Incumbent Paul Neuhauser soundly defeated his only opponent, Gerald Smiley, by 1,453 votes for the two-year seat.

A minimum of 2,787 voters turned out in the run to select from the 12 candidates.

"WITHOUT A doubt, it surely must be some kind of record for Dist. 59," Al Waltham, acting superintendent, said.

Precinct eight, Salt Creek School, was the last of the 10 precincts to register its county, totaling the highest vote, and determining what had been until then a tossup between Poklaski, Peterson and Hildebrandt for two of the three three-year seats.

Mrs. Zanca came in on top when the first precinct reported, and carried her lead throughout the evening.

Commenting on her lead position near the end of the tally, Mrs. Zanca said, "I don't know how I feel yet. No, I'm happy. I'll do a good job."

Although eight of the 10 precincts had reported by 9:30 Saturday night, tension ran high for almost two hours until the Salt Creek vote came in at 11:20 p.m., determining the winners.

Those still in the race for the last two seats at the end of the eight-precinct total were all from Elk Grove Village and had campaigned hard in the Salt Creek territory.

MRS. HILDEBRANDT would not definitely claim it as her precinct before the tally came in, but she sighed with relief and exclaimed, "My people," when Salt Creek provided her with 336 votes, 67 above the next contender.

When Poklaski heard of his three-vote defeat he said he would wait until the votes were canvassed before commenting.

Canvassing of the votes and the official count will be held at the next board meeting, scheduled for April 20.

Vote totals for the three-year seats are:

Judith Zanca, 1,500; Sharrie Hildebrandt, 1,185; Harry Peterson, 1,130; Erwin Poklaski, 1,127; Richard Pettinato, 913; Philip Lawson, 842; John Roesser, 750; Edwin Kudalis, 413; Nickolas Kostos, 280; Robert Winkle, 212; write-ins, 9, total, 8,361.

Vote totals for the two-year seat are: Paul Neuhauser, 1,956; Gerald Smiley, 503; write-ins, 6, total, 2,465.

Powell Tops Dist. 25 Vote

H. Robert Powell, incumbent member of the Dist. 25 board of education, led the list of three unopposed candidates who joined the board for three-year terms Saturday.

Powell received 1,437 votes, candidate William Beck gathered 1,434 votes and R. J. Schlott received 1,390 votes.

The votes were taken at the District's four elementary schools during Saturday's votes for local elementary, high school and junior college district board members.

Precinct breakdown showed the following vote totals: Powell, 157 at Thomas Junior High, 579, Miner, 517, South, 182, Rand.

William Beck, 197, Thomas, 585, Miner, 511, South, 181, Rand.

Schlott, 158, Thomas, 575, Miner, 481, South, 178, Rand.

The three candidates were all endorsed by the Dist. 25 caucus and ran unopposed for their board seats.

Meeting Time Is Attacked

A candidate for the State Senate has demanded that the time of Tuesday's annual town budget hearing in Elk Grove Township be changed from 2 p.m. to 8 p.m. to allow more voters to attend.

Paul Shanyfelt of Elk Grove Village, Democratic candidate from the Third District, said the earlier starting time will "insure a low turnout."

"Many interested groups will not be able to attend due to work or having to stay at home because of their children attending school," he said.

SHANYFELT SAID this year's town meeting will be important in the light of a recent Illinois Supreme Court decision preventing townships from keeping a 1 per cent commission fee for collecting taxes.

"How will this be handled without costing the local residents more in an already hard hit tax year?" asked Shanyfelt.

The township, in an attempt to make up for the loss in excess fees (amounting to $140,000 last year), will ask voters at Tuesday's meeting to approve a tax levy.

Frank Hines, township attorney, explained why this year's meeting will be held at 2 instead of 8 p.m.

He said the time of this year's town meeting was determined by state statute.

HINES EXPLAINED that when the town meeting was adjourned in 1969 there was no provision for the hour this year's meeting would begin other than that it be held the second Tuesday in April.

State statute calls for town meetings to be held at 2 p.m. if not specifically stated at the previous town meeting, he said.

Last year's town meeting began at 8 p.m. because the hour of the meeting was included in the motion to adjourn in the previous year, 1968.

Shanyfelt suggested the township follow a practice that Congress uses, calling the meeting to order at 2 p.m. and adjourning to 8 p.m.

Hines said a state statute allows the town meeting to adjourn only to move to larger quarters to accommodate a crowd, and when it is unable to finish its business.

SHANYFELT ALSO fired a blast at the township form of government, which may be placed in jeopardy if a tax levy is not approved.

"If this form of government is so badly needed," he said, "the elected officials must show that they are responsive to the needs of the residents."

"It's the local resident's tax dollar that is being used to keep this duplicity of government in operation," he said. "At least give the taxpayers a chance to discuss openly what the elected officials are going to do with their money."

Park Pool Has Stormy Background

by DANDRA BROWNING

When youngsters are splashing around in the indoor swimming pool at Olympic Park this summer, they probably won't even think about the years of work behind the construction of the building.

They probably won't realize that the pool represents an innovative cooperation between School Dist. 214 and the Arlington Heights Park District. Together, the two districts accomplished something that separately they probably couldn't.

All the kids will think about is how much fun they're having.

A PEEK into the past will show that there is a long history behind the building of an indoor pool for use by Dist. 214 physical education classes and swimming teams.

Dist. 214 failed in two separate referendum bids to build indoor swimming facilities on its own. In 1965, a referendum to build two swimming pools, one at Wheeling High School and one at Elk Grove High School, was rejected by voters.

A referendum turned down three years earlier asked voters to approve the building of five indoor pools, one at each of the high schools in Dist. 214 at that time.

AFTER THE defeats, Dist. 214 sought another way to provide swimming as part of its physical education program and a place for its swim teams to practice and compete.

Discussions concerning a jointly financed and jointly used indoor pool began in earnest between the school and park in 1967.

The park district hadn't had much luck with referenda in previous years, but the one in the summer of 1968 was passed.

This referendum included the construction of three new outdoor swimming pools, plus the indoor pool presently under construction across the street from Arlington High School at Euclid and Ridge.

A COMPLICATED and detailed joint-use agreement was prepared and signed by the boards of both districts in April, 1969. Construction on the site began shortly thereafter, and is expected to be completed in time for this summer's park district swimming programs and for school physical education classes in the fall.

The one acre of land on which the building is being constructed was owned by the school. After approval of the joint-use agreement, the land's title was transferred to the park district.

The school district will pay a certain portion of the costs of construction, operation, maintenance and repairs of the indoor pool. However, since Olympic Park's building includes more than an indoor pool, a complicated formula was determined to designate the financial responsibilities of the school and park districts.

The park district will bear the entire cost of other facilities in the building. These facilities include the outdoor wading pool, the teen center in the basement and the park district administration offices.

CONTRARY TO some opinions, the teen center is not designed for use by students only of Arlington High School. It is not affiliated with the school, but with the park district. Thus, it will be open to all residents of the park district, not just students at one high school.

According to the agreement, the school will have exclusive use of the indoor pool at the following times:

—From Nov. 1 to March 15, 6:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

—During the rest of the regular school year, not including the summer session, from 7:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

—On Saturdays from Nov. 1 to March 15 from 1 to 5 p.m., on school-scheduled competitive swimming meet days and at such other times Saturdays as may be agreed upon by both parties.

THE PARK district will have exclusive use, control and operation of the following:

—At all times, that area of Olympic Park's building not included in the indoor pool.

—The indoor swimming facility when not used by the school.

—All of Olympic Park's building when school is not in regular session.

The agreement also states that the park district will hire a pool manager and all custodial help. Each party will be responsible for lifeguards, supervisory and other personnel for the areas and times assigned to each district.

The 20-year agreement, prepared and studied by the board of both districts, includes a sharing of the costs of operating the indoor pool, based on the amount of time the facility is used by each district.

THE INDOOR pool not only will allow the high school district to include swimming in its regular physical education program, but will also provide the park district with a year-round pool and an "ideal" place to teach lessons. An indoor pool is not subject to weather changes that can hamper lessons at outdoor pools.

Also, with the park district having evening and some weekend use of the facility during the winter, the park district will be able to offer classes in lifesaving and thus build up its supply of lifeguards for the summer, when the district has six pools in operation.

With the ideal conditions for swimming instruction, the pool will be used by the park district during this summer more heavily for lessons than the outdoor pools. Open swimming at Olympic is scheduled for 3 to 6:30 p.m. while open swimming at the outdoor pools will begin at 1 p.m. The evening open swimming times will be about the same.

The agreement between the two districts marks a milestone in local government. By sharing resources, Dist. 214 and the park district have found a way to build the indoor pool, a feat which alone they might have been able to do.

Also, the taxpayers can be assured that rather than having to pay taxes for an indoor pool that might sit idle for part of the day, it will be used almost constantly from early morning through the night for the entire year.

THE LASEKE DISPOSAL Company will continue its Spring rubbish pick-up today. The northeast quadrant of the village is encouraged to have their rubbish ready for today's pick-up.

Film on McLuhan Now at Library

"This is Marshall McLuhan" is now at the Arlington Heights Library.

More than 800 16-mm. educational and recreational films are currently available for group use by adults registered at the library.

Besides the McLuhan film, some of the others available are: "Kon-Tiki," "Tropical Africa," "Skyscraper," "The Universe," "Appalachian Spring," "Riding the Big Surf," "Shoplifters," "Italian Cooking," "Ski the Outer Limits," "The Day Man Flew," "Toronto Jazz," "The Red Balloon," "Dance-New York City Ballet," "Drug Abuse-The Chemical Tomb" and "Bulldozed America."

Harold Ard, executive librarian, anticipated heavy use of these films by local organizations. This new service is provided to the library by the North Suburban Library System.

Nonresidents of Arlington Heights may use the films upon payment of the annual nonresident fee of $20. The films are not available for school use or for programs for which an attendance charge is made.

K-Mart to Planners Again

You wonder if it will ever be over.

Everyone involved is getting tired of it. Mrs. May Fyle, secretary to the Arlington Heights plan commission, has been recording the minutes of it for months.

Atty. Howard Borde has appeared before so many plan commission meetings and committee sessions on the subject that he wants to be named an honorary plan commission member.

Bob Melroy, president of the Surrey Ridge West Civic Association, has forgotten what his daughters look like. And the plan commission and its 12 members would like to decide once and for all on what their recommendation to the village board will be.

THE COMMISSION'S Achilles Heel has been the K-Mart shopping center located in the Surrey Ridge Subdivision in the southern end of the village. And the pain that has caused the heel to ache is the question of an entrance to the shopping complex from Kennicott Avenue.

Wednesday the commission, Borde and a standing room only crowd from Surrey Ridge heard the plat and subdivision-committee give its recommendations on the matter.

Victor Beisler, committee chairman, read the report. It called for:

An emergency entrance for police and fire equipment to the shopping center from Kennicott as well as a pedestrian walkway. No vehicular traffic would be allowed at this entrance.

The Village attorney's opinion on the legality of a Tire, Battery and Accessory store on the site.

Borde said he had no plans to submit to the commission since this had been the first time he had heard the committee's recommendations. He added that he did not agree wholly with the committee's report.

Borde seemed to want the entire matter discussed at the trustee level but the commission said it wouldn't approve any planned development until it had seen the actual plans and resolved lighting, parking, landscaping, drainage, and traffic questions.

Borde agreed and the matter will be reviewed again April 22.

Meetings Set in 'Shadow'

Area residents will have their single, yearly chance tomorrow to participate in democracy in its purest form.

Or at least take sides in the battle over the continuation of the township form of government in Cook County.

Cook County townships will hold their annual meetings tomorrow not knowing the result of their legal battle to restore "excess commissions."

The townships' practice of keeping 2 per cent of the taxes they collected for themselves was ruled unconstitutional last month by the State Supreme Court.

Lawrence Gunnels, a Chicago attorney representing the Cook County Tax Collector's Association, said a request for a rehearing of the decision will be filed either Tuesday or Wednesday. He said it was "absurd" to expect the decision before the township's annual meetings.

FOUR NORTHWEST suburban townships, Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling, are asking local residents to levy a township tax this week.

Gunnels claimed that when the Supreme Court made its decision to throw out the excess commissions it did not consider one of the key arguments in the defendants' case. That is, he said, where those who brought the suit live.

According to the brief, the plaintiffs cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission charged to taxes collected for exclusively suburban levying agencies.

"The vast bulk of taxes paid by suburban residents," the argument says, "are paid to levying agencies that are solely within the townships and have no connection or relation to the City of Chicago or to the plaintiffs as Chicago residents."

The plaintiffs, it continues, "clearly cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission that is retained on these taxes and spent in the townships for public purposes."

The suit was filed by William J. Harte and Kevin M. Forde, two Chicago attorneys.

IN THE STIPULATION of facts, Gunnels said, "Of the total property taxes paid by suburban township residents and received by the township collectors, 85 to 90 per cent of such taxes are collected for and remitted to such levying bodies," the bodies that are solely within the suburban townships.

"No Chicago resident is subject to any levy or assessment by these bodies; the plaintiffs as Chicago residents," it is argued, "are thus in no way taxwise involved or affected by these levies or collections."

A suburban resident would not be able to bring a suit against the practice of excess commissions, claiming discrimination, as in this case, Gunnels said, because all the suburban townships receive the same 2 per cent.

ACLU Rips Carswell

The nomination of Judge G. Harrold Carswell to the U. S. Supreme Court "embarrassed" intelligent Southerners, according to Jay Miller, an executive of the local chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Miller discussed the Carswell nomination, gun control laws and the relationship between the court and the criminal Friday with Wheeling High School social studies students.

Miller called President Nixon's nomination of Carswell "shocking," and said that the judge was not qualified to sit on the court.

"I didn't understand it, except that the nomination was part of Nixon's 'Southern strategy'." There are many Southern judges who would not agree with the ACLU but would nevertheless be brilliant on the Supreme Court.

"MANY SOUTHERN politicians and judges wouldn't support Carswell. I think by nominating him Nixon hurt his 'Southern strategy,'" he said.

Miller staunchly defended the rulings made by the Supreme Court when Earl Warren was Chief Justice.

"The Warren Court has been subjected to tremendous public abuse, but all it really asked was that the states respect federal statutes," said Miller.

"One of the reasons the public reacted the way it has to these rulings is the tremendous mythology surrounding crime in our country. Our society has done very little to effectively deal with crime, the emphasis has been on 'getting' the criminal and punishing him."

MILLER OUTLINED some of the recent decisions by the Warren court, which the ACLU supported. These upheld, among other principals, the individual's right to legal counsel before being charged with a crime, his right to counsel before participating in a police lineup, and his right to a jury trial when charged with a petty offense.

"To attack the court as coddling criminals for these decisions is nonsense," Miller declared.

"The court is trying to suggest to us that we have to do a better job of dealing with crime. We can't just try to pin the rap on someone."

The ACLU member told his young audience that "Most people are very afraid of crime, although they really have very few facts about it."

"WHITES IN THE cities are afraid of being harmed by the blacks. In fact, 90 per cent of black crime is committed against other blacks. And murders are generally committed by friends of the victim, not by strangers."

Drug addiction should be treated as a medical problem, not as a crime, according to Miller.

"Making addiction a medical problem and not a crime may not cut down on the number of addicts, but it would get the syndicate out of it and cut the crime rate. Then addicts wouldn't have to steal to support their expensive habit."

The need for strong gun-control laws also was endorsed by the ACLU member.

"We're going in the wrong direction in this country by refusing to impose stringent gun control laws, yet some of the people most hysterical about the rising crime rate are opposing these laws."

Miller was one of several people scheduled to speak this spring at WHS under the social studies speakers program at the school.

Cole, the current president of the school board, received the highest number of votes in the election, with 489.

Smith was second with 456 votes and Wylie received 408 votes in the contest.

Independent candidate Turner Jones of Buffalo Grove finished fourth in the contest with 171 votes. Another independent, Chance Bahadur of Arlington Heights, finished fifth with 149 votes.

TOTAL NUMBER of votes cast in the election was 608, a "small turn-out," according to Asst. Supt. John Barger. He said that he did not know the reason for the high vote.

Breakdown by precinct and candidate is as follows:

Cole — Precinct One, 110 votes; Precinct Two, 106 votes; Precinct Three, 110; Precinct Four, 60; Precinct Five, 11.

Smith — Precinct One, 93; Precinct Two, 106; Precinct Three, 106; Precinct Four, 51; Precinct Five, 37.

Inspection Schedule Is Set

A schedule for an inspection survey tomorrow of McDonald Creek by local, township, county and state officials has been announced, so that residents may meet with the team along the route.

Problem areas in the creek that have contributed to flooding conditions after heavy rains, will be pinpointed by the team.

The Illinois Division of Waterways (IDW) has offered equipment and manpower to dredge the creek and clean out major obstructions as an "emergency measure."

Emory Kilpatrick, chief of the bureau of operations for IDW, will accompany the team and direct dredging operations.

ACCORDING TO John E. Gilligan, chairman of the committee on McDonald Creek Improvement, "the schedule for this inspection allows for an in-depth look at the creek from the Soo Line near Euclid Avenue back to Windsor Drive in Arlington Heights. We hope residents will contact the inspection team along the way."

Gilligan said he also hopes residents will send him information concerning property, salary, repairs and other losses resulting from flooding. His address is 36 Lynnbrook Dr., in Prospect Heights.

This information will be forwarded to IDW, which requires estimates of damages to prepare benefit reports. These reports are used to justify capital expenditures for improvement of the creek.

RESIDENTS INTERESTED in talking to the government officials may meet them at the following times and places:

10-10:15 a.m. Euclid-Wolf bridge; 10:30-10:45 a.m. Soo Line bridge; 11:15-11:25 a.m. Camp McDonald bridge near Wolf; 1:30-1:40 p.m. Wheeling Road bridge; 2:2-10 p.m. Maple Drive bridge; 2:20-2:30 p.m. Elmhurst Road bridge; 2:45-2:50 p.m. Palatine Road bridge near Schoenbeck; 3:15-3:20 p.m. Schoenbeck Road bridge near Hintz; 3:20-3:40 p.m. Cornell Road, Windy Lane and Windsor Drive bridges.

Some of the officials invited to the inspection are Mrs. Ethel Kolerus, Wheeling Township supervisor; Robert Gorski, county highway district engineer; Eugene Schlickman, state representative; Disch Schuld, Old Town Sanitary District, Wheeling village officials; and Country Gardens Sanitary District officials.

Firemen Extinguish Fire In Car Engine

A fire in a car owned by Peter Wolff, 11 S. Highland, Arlington Heights, early Sunday morning, resulted in minor damage to the engine.

When the Arlington Heights firemen arrived they found the engine was smoldering and smoking, but no flames. They instructed Wolff to start the car and, when he did, the entire right side of the engine burst into flames. The firemen quickly extinguished the fire.

Firemen determined that there was a gasoline leak in the engine and the gas was ignited on the hot manifold of the engine.

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELLMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at Northwestern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,144 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an Inverness housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 4,506 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied 4,020. And board member Le Roi Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 3,738 votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,376 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not become official until the board canvasses the votes Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and William Mann, vice president for financial affairs, flipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts, primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings, who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Toot, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard-fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature, a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and often witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight, a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

Policemen, Board To Meet

Palatine policemen and the village board will meet Thursday at 7:30 p.m. to discuss the policemen's grievances.

The board sent a letter last week inviting the Palatine Police Association to meet with it in an "informal executive session."

Asked if the association would attend the meeting, a spokesman for the policemen replied, "Of course. This is what we were asking for."

The meeting will be closed to the public.

Police Chief Robert Centner said as far as he knew he would be attending the meeting. "I would like to hear what they have to say," Centner said.

At last week's village board meeting, representatives of the police association, made up entirely of patrolmen, asked that Village Mgr. Berton G. Braun and Centner be excluded from a meeting with the board.

BRAUN INSISTED that he and Centner be allowed to attend such a meeting.

If Braun were allowed to attend the meeting, police representatives said, they wanted to bring counsel with them.

Braun said Friday the board wanted to meet only with village employees. He said he did not know what would happen if the police showed up with an attorney.

A spokesman for the patrolmen said the group would have to decide whether it wants to be represented by someone else or if the patrolmen would speak for themselves.

The policemen have previously complained about what they called a lack of communication in the department. They have said that efforts to communicate with the chief through the chain of command have failed.

THE MEN HAVE also complained about vacation scheduling, uniform allowances, paid insurance, overtime pay, court appearance pay and cost of living increases. They also want an "advisory group" which could talk directly with the chief.

At Monday night's meeting, Patrolmen Michael McDonald, president of the police association, said there are more things in the department to which the men object which constitute "a conglomerate of basic issues..."

On Jan. 16, five patrolmen pulled their cars off the road and drove to headquarters to meet with Centner. It was the only way, the men claimed, to get the chief to meet with them.

The chief has denied this.

The men have filed a suit in Circuit Court seeking to be reimbursed for the time they were docked for their actions by the Palatine Fire and Police Commission.

211 Incumbents Win

Saturday's school elections appeared to be a vote of confidence for Palatine-Schaumburg Township High School Dist. 211 incumbent board members.

Challenged by four newcomers, incumbents Lyle Johnson of Hoffman Estates; Robert Creek of Inverness, and Alexander Langsdorf of Schaumburg, regained the seats on the Dist. 211 board.

Defeated were Robert Seger, William Odahowski, Gerard Meyer and Peter Murphy.

Of approximately 2,500 total votes cast, Johnson received 1,589, Creek, 1,131 and Langsdorf 889. The breakdown by precincts was as follows:

- No. 1 — Schaumburg Elementary School: Johnson, 35; Creek, 17; Langsdorf 28.
- No. 2 — Twinbrook School: Johnson 116; Creek, 55; Langsdorf, 69.
- No. 3 — Hillcrest School: Johnson, 178; Creek, 74; Langsdorf, 99.
- No. 4 — Hoffman School: Johnson, 186; Creek, 74; Langsdorf, 91.
- No. 5 — Campanelli School: Johnson, 61; Creek, 25; Langsdorf, 41.
- No. 6 — Hanover Highland School: Johnson, 39; Creek, 13; Langsdorf, 27.
- No. 7 — MacArthur School: Johnson, 142; Creek, 64; Langsdorf, 75.
- No. 8 — Dooley School: Johnson, 138;

- Creek, 58; Langsdorf, 84.
- No. 9 — Stuart R. Paddock School: Johnson, 200; Creek, 173; Langsdorf, 114.
- No. 10 — Inverness Community House: Johnson, 164; Creek, 232; Langsdorf, 62.
- No. 11 — Sanborn School: Johnson, 100; Creek, 106; Langsdorf, 54.
- And No. 12 — Winston Park School: Johnson, 230; Creek, 208; Langsdorf, 141.

Sundling In, Gibbs Ousted

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary Dist. 15 school Board President Walter Sundling was easily reelected Saturday but voters ousted another incumbent in favor of Russell E. Thome of Palatine.

In the four-way race for two positions Sundling finished on top, with an unofficial total of 817 votes. Thome finished second with 717 votes, while Leland "Bud" Gibbs, a board member since 1967, finished third with 668 votes. Richard Grau finished last with a total of 437 votes. The posts carry three-year terms.

A total of 1,476 votes were cast under cloudy and sometimes rain-filled skies.

Thome was elected to the board by edging Gibbs by only 49 votes. He gained the largest vote count of any candidate in any one of the six precincts by racking up 223 votes in the fifth precinct which voted at the Inverness Fieldhouse. In that precinct Sundling recorded 178 votes while Gibbs had 117. Grau recorded 51 votes.

THOME WAS ALSO high vote getter in the sixth precinct which voted at the Winston Park School. There he chalked up 196 votes to 184 by Sundling, 171 for Grau and 139 for Gibbs.

Sundling was the top vote-getter in the other four precincts.

Thome, who lives at 823 E. Morris Drive, Palatine, is sales manager for the Acan X-Ray Company in Chicago.

In a telephone interview Saturday night, Thome said he got interested in the school board reading about it in the newspaper and decided to make a run for the board.

He listed the construction of two story schools for the district, continuation of the district's strong educational program and a watchfulness on the grade school streets" and involved, Thome said.

He also said meeting space should be made available for groups if the groups are willing to share expenses.

Sundling, who has been a school board member for 20 years, before the election said he was seeking another term "to continue the good educational program in Dist. 15." The major asset of the district, he said, was a dedicated, qualified administrative and teaching staff.

The district's two biggest problems, he said, were its increasing enrollment and the financial limitation imposed by the laws of the state.

Local Board Members Attend Convention

James Humphrey, 961 Topanga, Palatine and Mrs. Carolyn Mullins, 506 Plymouth, Schaumburg, members of the board of education of high school Dist. 211, attended the National School Board Association Convention in San Francisco last weekend.

Among the 52 topics discussed during the three-day session were negotiation legislation, program planning budget systems and vocational technical education.

Also featured during the convention were various exhibits of new equipment and teaching materials currently on the market.

Teen Fashion Show Slated

While some people's fancy turns to love in the spring, girls of the Horizon Club in Palatine and Rolling Meadows are thinking about clothes.

The club, a high school branch of the Camp Fire Girls, is staging a fashion show the evening of April 16 at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows.

"It's a show by teens for teens," smiled Mrs. David Sundling, adviser of the group.

"We think the fashions are really 'with it,'" she added.

The 7:30 p.m. show is open to the public. Cost of tickets is 75 cents for students and $1 for adults.

Money raised from the event will help pay expenses for the girls' attendance at the Horizon Club's Mini Conference to be held in Chicago this weekend.

Thanks For (Ka-Whump) Just Facts

by TOM ROBB

The facts, nothing but the facts. Lately, this is what a reporter is likely to get at a high school Dist. 211 board meeting, and that's saying a lot. Prior to Thursday night's regular meeting, reporters only received a one or two-sheet agenda outline, which made it very difficult to follow what transpired during a board meeting in any detail. At the last meeting, however, this reporter was presented with a 80 page-plus, detailed agenda book thanks to efforts of the board, the administration and the secretarial staff. The bound, covered, indexed and thumbnailed tabbed book was the result of more than the district official's hard work, and it represents more than a convenience for a reporter.

IT IS ALSO THE result of an understanding by Dist. 211, an understanding that such a book is vital to thorough press coverage and getting the district's message across to the public.

It represents the district's acknowledgment of a two-way, mutual working relationship between themselves and the public press.

For this, Dist. 211 is to be congratulated.

This information packet also is important to residents of the district inasmuch as without it, they would possibly not get all the facts they deserve to have.

The need for this type of arrangement was emphasized by Lyle Johnson at a candidate forum last week at Fremd High School. Johnson said "more things and more meetings have" taken place during the last year in Dist. 211 than ever before.

To prove his point Johnson held up a one-half inch thick stack consisting of last year's total agenda sheets and compared this finger-thick stack to a three or four-inch thick book which represented the agenda for only one meeting this year.

WHAT JOHNSON DID not say, however, was that many of these "things" the district is now involved in, such as vocational education programs, are also more complicated than ever before.

In a way, Dist. 211 has a tiger by the tail, and that tiger is growth, which cannot help usher in program, budget and many other forms of innovations which are designed to meet the needs spawned by a mushrooming population and enrollment.

In order to keep abreast of these changes, and in order to untangle the quagmire of complicated details for all to understand, an agenda book like the one district officials recently prepared is absolutely necessary.

Dist. 211 has recognized and met this need. By doing so, they are doing themselves, the press and the public a favor. They are to be lauded for this and for realizing that the only way for everyone involved in the district's challenging future to stay on top of things is to keep a steady outpour of one thing:

The facts, nothing but the facts.

Kindergarten Registration Begins Today

Registration for kindergarten-age children in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary School Dist. 15 for the next school year begins today.

Both today and Wednesday have been set aside as registration days in 15 of the district's 17 schools.

A child must be five years old on or before Dec. 1, 1970 and have a valid birth certificate as proof for registration. Hospital and baptismal records are not considered valid certificates.

A $10 fee must be paid at the time of registration. If the child does not enter Dist. 15 schools in the fall, the $10 will be refunded.

Registration will be open today from 8:30 to 11 a.m. and 12:30 to 3 p.m. at Cardinal Drive, Central Road, Kimball Hill, Pleasant Hill, Plum Grove, Jonas Salk and Carl Sandburg Schools.

The hours will be the same on Wednesday for Jane Addams, Winston Churchill, Marion Jordan, Hunting Ridge, Lake Louise, Stuart R. Paddock, Gray M. Sanborn and Virginia Lake Schools.

Outlook Bleak for Anti-war Bill

Proposed Illinois legislation that would question the constitutionality of the Vietnam War doesn't appear to have much chance of support from Third District legislators, nor do the local legislators give it much chance of passing out of the Illinois House of Representatives.

The proposed bill, which will be introduced in the House of Representatives tomorrow by State Rep.

Robert Mann, D-Chicago, would give Illinois men a legal way out of serving in Vietnam.

Similar to a law signed last week by Massachusetts Gov. Francis Sargent, the bill would state that "no inhabitant of the state of Illinois inducted or serving in the military forces shall be required to serve outside the territorial limits of the United States in an undeclared war and in one which has not been initially authorized or subsequently ratified by congressional declaration of war."

THE VIETNAM WAR would fit that category since it was initiated by Presidential action and has never been formally declared as a war by Congress.

Two of the three Third District representatives said they would vote against the bill and the third said she has not yet decided how to vote.

State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, called the bill a "meaningless thing."

"I don't see how the state can pass legislation that would overrule federal legislation," he said. "Congress has not declared a war but I would assume the federal government has the right to draft men and to determine how they will be used."

Regner said the bill "expressed the sentiments of some people" but predicted that it would have a "rough time getting through, regardless of which party sponsored it."

REP. EUGENE F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, also considers the bill meaningless but for a different reason.

"I think the bill passed in Massachusetts has already accomplished what this bill would accomplish, namely a challenge to the war," Schlickman said. "One such law is sufficient to bring a court ruling on it."

Schlickman said he did not view the bill proposed by Mann as a challenge to President Nixon.

"I think there will be bi-partisan support and bi-partisan opposition to it. But I don't think it has a chance in the house and I doubt if it will get out of committee."

REP. EUGENIA Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, reserved her woman's prerogative and said she has not made up her mind on the bill yet.

"I don't have any instant opinion on it," Mrs. Chapman said. "I haven't had enough time to study it and I don't really know what all the constitutional ramifications would be."

Another state representative well-known to Northwest suburban residents has said he may support the bill.

State Rep. Edward Warman, D-Skokie, is a candidate for Congress in the 13th Congressional District and is running as an anti-Vietnam candidate. He said he does not think Illinois needs a test case, since Massachusetts already has one, but added that he thinks Congress has been in error in allowing an undeclared war to continue.

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, agrees with Schlickman that the bill won't get out of committee in the house and said he is disturbed by the bill.

"If a state is going to start running its own show, then we will destroy the union," Graham said. "I think our greatness is attributed to the fact that we are a union of states."

Meetings Set In 'Shadow' Of Tax Battle

Area residents will have their single, yearly chance tomorrow to participate in democracy in its purest form.

Or at least take sides in the battle over the continuation of the township form of government in Cook County.

Cook County townships will hold their annual meetings tomorrow not knowing the result of their legal battle to restore "excess commissions."

The townships' practice of keeping 2 per cent of the taxes they collected for themselves was ruled unconstitutional last month by the State Supreme Court.

Lawrence Gunnels, a Chicago attorney representing the Cook County Tax Collector's Association, said a request for a rehearing of the decision will be filed either Tuesday or Wednesday. He said it was "absurd" to expect the decision before the township's annual meetings.

FOUR NORTHWEST suburban townships, Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling, are asking local residents to levy a township tax this week.

Gunnels claimed that when the Supreme Court made its decision to throw out the excess commissions it did not consider one of the key arguments in the defendants' case. That is, he said, where those who brought the suit live.

According to the brief, the plaintiffs cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission charged to taxes collected for exclusively suburban levying agencies.

"The vast bulk of taxes paid by suburban residents," the argument says, "are paid to levying agencies that are solely within the townships and have no connection or relation to the City of Chicago or to the plaintiffs as Chicago residents."

The plaintiffs, it continues, "clearly cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission that is retained on these taxes and spent in the townships for public purposes."

The suit was filed by William J. Harte and Kevin M. Forde, two Chicago attorneys.

IN THE STIPULATION of facts, Gunnels said, "Of the total property taxes paid by suburban township residents and received by the township collectors, 85 to 90 per cent of such taxes are collected for and remitted to such levying bodies," the bodies that are solely within the suburban townships.

"No Chicago resident is subject to any levy or assessment by these bodies; the plaintiffs as Chicago residents," it is argued, "are thus in no way taxwise involved or affected by these levies or collections."

A suburban resident would not be able to bring a suit against the practice of excess commissions, claiming discrimination, as in this case, Gunnels said, because all the suburban townships receive the same 2 per cent.

Rev. Olson To Speak

Rev. Armon Olson will talk about "King and Queen of the Home," Tuesday at the Parent Teacher League meeting of St. Peter Lutheran School on Schaumburg Road, at 8 p.m.

Rev. Olson's talk will focus on the changing culture. A slate of PTL officers for the coming year will also be presented.

Delay Building Again

Foiled by a lack of time, High School Dist. 211 board members Thursday agreed to postpone the preliminary screening of architects for their upcoming building program until a later date.

This was the second delay board members experienced in trying to get the first screening of some 25 prospective candidates for the June referendum building program underway.

Last month, this first screening was originally scheduled to take place. Because of ambiguity in the open meeting law, there was some confusion as to whether or not the screenings should be done in open or closed session, and therefore the task was rescheduled for last Thursday night.

What board members were faced with last week was the job of whittling down 25 out of 32 architects, who had replied to questionnaires Dist. 211 sent out, to a group small enough for oral interviews at a later date this month.

THE PROCEDURE for the preliminary screenings was derived from retiring superintendent G. A. McElroy, acting superintendent Richard Kolze and Martin Plate, the district's new director of research and information.

The committee divided the 25 hopefuls into four groups: prime candidates, giants in the architectural business responsible for jobs like the John Hancock Building; those with a lack of experience, size or with an out-of-state or undesirable company location, and former district employees, according to Kolze.

On this basis the board was to review the four groups and hopefully eliminate firms until a semi-final group of architects was chosen, McElroy said.

Setting out to accomplish this process of elimination, the board, already hampered by the lateness of the hour, decided to select a third plan to complete the first screenings.

BOARD MEMBER Robert Creek said he felt it was too late in the night to be "making intellectual decisions" on such an important matter and recommended the following plan, which the board approved:

Incumbents in 211 Ward Off Challenges

Odahowski, Johnson, former board president, ran unopposed in Saturday's election since he was the only candidate to file for a one year, instead of three year term like the others.

"I'm very grateful," he said. "And I'm truly hoping that this will be the best year ever in Dist. 211." Johnson commented that he thought the voter turnout was low.

Langsdorf, who was appointed to the board last January, to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Eugene Baker, said, "I didn't get into this for fun, because it's not. Some people might think it is, but it involves an awful lot of work. I'll do my best and hope that's good enough."

Creek, who was appointed to the board last June when George Ledford resigned.

The Dist. 211 board has scheduled a meeting for April 16 at which time election results will be canvassed and new board officers will be elected.

Kolze and McElroy will each, separately, select seven candidates, compare notes, decide on a final seven and present these to the board who will then eliminate three on April 23 leaving four to be interviewed in person at a later time.

The criteria for this first screening consist of the firm's size, experience, quality of work, work load, location in regard to prompt service and supervision.

The preliminary screening is in connection with a referendum Dist. 211 will call June 6, 1970 for the money necessary to build a school to accommodate 2,500 students in the south part of the district, a school of the same size in the north part of the district, and an approximately 8,000 square foot addition to the present administrative center on Roselle Road.

New High School By September?

"Only a major negative possibility could prevent occupancy of Schaumburg High as scheduled," Eric Jones, a member of the architectural firm Dist. 211 hired for the Schaumburg High School project, said at Thursday night's board meeting.

Scheduled to open in September, Jones assured the board the new high school on Schaumburg Road will be ready for students and faculty on time.

In a progress report to the board, Jones said the new facility is more than 60 per cent complete, "with four full months, the best months, of construction left."

Jones said another positive factor in completing the building on time is the fact that any teamsters walkout "would not seriously affect the project" since most of the material is now on the site.

IN ANOTHER report, which Jones updated somewhat, progress as of April 7 on Schaumburg was as follows:

In the academic area the interior masonry work is 70 per cent complete with only a small amount left on the lower level, ceiling framework is nearly completed on the lower level. More than 30 per cent of the light fixtures have been installed on the first and second levels, levels two and three have been almost completely primed and finished with paint. Good progress has been made on the installation of window frames on the north and east sides of the building and brick work has started on the south outside wall. The east penthouse (a maintenance facility on the roof) has been enclosed, only the kitchen area floors remain to be poured, and progress is well underway on the installation of the elevator.

In the gym area, which comprises most of the unfinished work, the upper deck floors have been poured, the south wall is nearly completed, the west wall has been started, and the shower and washroom plumbing is in place.

SCHAUMBURG HIGH SCHOOL is being built by Tonyan Brothers Construction Co. and has been designed by Fitch, Larocca, Carington and Jones. It is the first high school in the state to be built by interest free loans from the state building commission.

David Hanner, who is responsible for the local group's participation in the program, said the club is seeking children to sponsor at either of the two, three week camp sessions. The club, he said, will pay part or the entire $90 cost for children who go to the camp.

The sessions, he said, run from June 28 to July 24 for seven to 10-year-olds, and July 26 to Aug. 21 for 11 to 14-year-olds.

The Palatine Kiwanis Club has invited parents of orthopedically crippled children to a meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. to learn about a Kiwanis camp for crippled children in Plymouth, Ind.

The meeting will be held at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace restaurant at Route 14 and Quentin Road.

The professionally run camp programs, he said, include swimming, arts and crafts and playground activities. Parents are invited to visit their child on the second weekend their child is at the camp.

Camp president Wesley D. Hunnell, will present a film about the camp at tomorrow's meeting, Hanner said.

The meeting is open to all parents in the elementary suburban area. The nurses from Elementary School Dist. 15, along with representatives from the Elk Grove and Wheeling Kiwanis clubs have also been invited.

Hanner said anyone who desires further information can contact him at 894-7070.

Search Has Happy Ending

Reports of missing children frequently appear on police blotters in the spring. The weather turns warm and children have a way of wandering from home before mother realizes they are gone.

Such was the case with young Brian Glauber of Hoffman Estates Thursday.

Brian, who had his fifth birthday two weeks ago, was playing at his home at 205 Dennison Road late Thursday afternoon. About 5 p.m. his mother couldn't find him.

Mrs. Jeffrey Glauber said she checked with neighbors and looked around the usual places, but couldn't locate her son. Her neighbors joined in the search with no success.

She called the Hoffman Estates police department "and within 15 minutes, Brian was home. I was so thankful to see him, I burst into tears," Mrs. Glauber said.

POLICEMAN William Boaz spotted Brian on Cambridge street several blocks from Dennison. He was brought home by 6 p.m.

The boy was told never to ride with strangers and he wasn't too cooperative when Boaz gave him a ride home.

In the excitement, Mrs. Glauber didn't remember Boaz's name. "I thanked him then, but I think the community should know what fine policemen we have," Mrs. Glauber said.

Word to Wise: Pay Your Tax

Non-payment of village vehicle tax is getting stickier and stickier in Hoffman Estates.

According to Daniel Larson, administrative assistant to Mayor Frederick E. Downey, a total of 180 citations for displaying invalid vehicle stickers were issued during March.

Larson said that police officers are continuing to search for vehicles that either do not display a sticker or carry an expired tax decal.

He indicated that this procedure will be a continuing activity within the village and also said that he hopes to initiate a program of mailing reminders to residents next year.

Slate Church History Class

The Medinah Baptist Church will offer a new course in the "history of Christianity in America" starting at 9:45 a.m. Sunday. Rev. James Weir, minister of Christian Education, announced.

"Come to this class and find out what Christian people did in early America and across the years as the nation developed. Every Christian should know what the Half-Way Covenant is, when it happened and what brought it about," Rev. Weir said.

The course will run for 13 weeks and will be taught by John Rowan, a Hoffman Estates resident and member of the congregation. Rowan is also a free lance writer specializing in researching and writing historical radio dramas for station WMBI, Moody Bible Institute, Chicago.

Rowan has written such historical series as "Land for the Brave, Full Grown Men" and is currently researching and writing "Old Yankee." He is a graduate of Northern Baptist Theological Seminary.

Rev. Weir said, "This 13 week session will end with a view of the Christian church in America today. This perspective will show that God is still in control of things and the Gospel of Jesus Christ is ageless."

All area residents may attend the free class. To enroll, call the church office at 891-921. Medinah Baptist Church is located on Foster Avenue at Sycamore Street in unincorporated Medinah.

"AN ECLIPSE at the time of birth will have a definite influence on an individual's life," according to astrology teacher Homer Lathrop. Lathrop, who spoke Thursday at

Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, said that astrology "can help us understand ourself and our relation to others."

Astrology Series Set

by SUE CARSON

A glimpse into the heavens and the secrets they might hold was given to local residents Thursday by astrology expert Homer Lathrop.

An interested audience, mostly housewives, came to the gymnasium at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove to hear Lathrop expound on the influences on the heavenly bodies on nature and mankind. His lecture was the last in the Inquiry into the Unknown series, sponsored by the Longfellow Community Education Project.

"Astrology has been condemned and exalted to great heights, but it has never been disproved," Lathrop declared. "It has been the foundation of all religions. The Christian church was influenced by astrology, although in many cases this influence was kept secret."

"FOR EXAMPLE, the calculation of the date of Easter each year was plotted from the heavens. Biblical patriarchs were well versed in astrology and all the prophets used astrology to make their prophecies. The 19th Psalm has many references to astrology."

"The major astronomers, like St. Isaac Newton, began as astrologers," he added.

The 27-year-old Lathrop has studied physics and astronomy at Northwestern University and now teaches a course in astronomy at the "free university" there.

He told the audience that astronomy "should not be considered a faith, but a guide."

"WILL POWER IS ONE thing that can't be taken into consideration when calculating a horoscope. The person highly developed spiritually usually goes beyond the influence of the zodiac."

Lathrop admitted that he has gone against his own horoscope, but said "it's very difficult to do. Obstacles are thrown up to prevent a person from acting contrary to his horoscope, and they must be overcome."

Lathrop said that while horoscopes printed in newspapers and magazines may be helpful in giving insight into coming events, a detailed horoscope would take many hours to develop and would take up 15 or 20 pages.

HE EXPLAINED THAT each person has a certain zodiac sign according to his birth date. Certain general characteristics are associated with each sign.

"Those born under Cancer are protective, maternal types, while those born under Libra are well-adjusted. A Taurus is aggressive and a Virgo, analytical."

"All signs are ruled by a planet and each planet affects the sign," he said.

"Some planets rule more than one sign, as Venus which rules Taurus and Libra. Venus is the planet of love and honor, but Librans are more altruistic than those born under Taurus. Many judges are Librans."

The moon also influences man and his activities, according to Lathrop.

"It's better to be born under a new moon than a waning one. Persons born under a new moon have more vitality."

"More crime occurs under a full moon than at any other time."

'Mini' Vote Turnout

All caucus-backed candidates in Dist. 21 and all incumbents in Dist. 96 won posts on their respective school boards in elections Saturday.

In Dist. 21, incumbents Ronald Cole of Wheeling and Edwin Smith of Buffalo Grove and the Rev. L. James Wylie of Prospect Heights were elected to three-year terms on the board.

Cole was the highest vote getter, with 489 votes. Smith was second with 456 votes and Wylie was third with 408.

Finishing fourth in the contest was independent candidate Turner Jones of Buffalo Grove, who received 171 votes. Another independent candidate, Chance Bahadur of Arlington Heights, was fifth with 149 votes. A total of 608 votes were cast in the election.

ASST. SUPT. John Barger termed the voter turnout "small" and said he did not know the reason for the light vote.

A break-down of the vote by precinct and candidate is as follows:

Cole — Precinct One, 110 votes; Precinct Two, 166 votes; Precinct Three 110; Precinct Four, 60; Precinct Five, 43.

Smith — Precinct One, 93; Precinct Two, 166; Precinct Three, 106; Precinct Four, 54; Precinct Five, 37.

Wylie — Precinct One, 76; Precinct Two, 141; Precinct Three, 95; Precinct Four, 60; Precinct Five, 36.

Jones — Precinct One, 36; Precinct Two, 58; Precinct Three, 52; Precinct Four, 16; Precinct Five, 9.

Bahadur — Precinct One, 21; Precinct Two, 39; Precinct Three, 25; Precinct Four 18; Precinct Five, 46.

IN DIST. 96, incumbents Tom Rusk, Anton Berg and Mrs. Dolores Richmond, all of Long Grove, were elected to three-year terms on the school board.

Incumbent Whitford Kuhn of Long Grove was elected to a one-year term on the board.

Rusk received the highest vote in the election, with 280. Mrs. Richmond was second with 265 and Berg finished third with 262. Kuhn was fourth with 226 votes.

In fifth place was James Duncan of Buffalo Grove, who received 200 votes. Sixth was Mrs. Mary Sundt of Buffalo Grove with 186 votes. Seventh was Thomas Begelow of Buffalo Grove with 169 votes. Total votes cast was 438.

Supt. William Hitzeman called the voter turnout in the election "excellent." He said that the total vote in last year's contest was 176.

"I THINK THE high voter turnout this year was due to the fact that this was a contested election, which promoted interest. Last year's election was not contested," the superintendent said.

In High School Dist. 125, incumbents Fred French of Long Grove and Eugene Taylor of Deerfield were re-elected to the board. Taylor received 603 votes, and French, 588. Herbert Collier of Long Grove was third with 456 votes. Taylor and French will serve three-year terms on the board.

John Baines of Deerfield won an uncontested one-year term on the board. He received 777 votes in the election.

A total of 962 people voted in the election, an "average" turnout according to Ed Ellis, business manager of Stevenson High School in Prairie View, the lone school in Dist. 125.

Delayed Report Cards In the Mail Today

Because of the snow storm on the day before Easter vacation, report cards and scheduling procedures in high school Dist. 211 have been delayed for about two weeks.

The parent-student selection letter which was also to have been mailed on April 8 will be delayed about a week in order to revise the material before mailing.

To the joy of all Dist. 211 students, report cards should be in the mail by today.

Voters Pick Morton, Nicklas for Harper

by TOM WELLMAN

Newcomer Dr. Joseph Morton and veteran board member Mrs. Jessalyn Nicklas were elected Saturday night to serve three-year terms on the Harper College board.

Morton, a history professor at Northwestern Illinois State College, led the balloting with 5,144 votes. Mrs. Nicklas, an Inverness housewife who has served on the board for five years, was second with 4,596 votes.

Third was Mrs. Hannah K. Wilson of Mount Prospect, who ran on the same platform with Morton. She tallied 4,029. And board member Le Roi Hutchings failed to gain reelection, totaling 3,738 votes. Mrs. Jane Toot of Arlington Heights gained 3,376 votes and Richard Durava finished last with 1,940 votes.

The voters' decision, which will not become official until the board canvasses the votes Tuesday night, was marred by a total of 1,267 spoiled or damaged ballots. A total of 11,407 votes actually cast one or two votes for the six candidates.

THE SPOILED and damaged votes occurred when voters either failed to vote for any candidates, selected more than two or mismarked the ballots in some way.

Morton may have gained some of his strength by a simple flip of a coin over a month ago. He and Hutchings were the first persons to appear to file for the board seats, and William Mann, vice president for financial affairs, flipped a coin.

Morton won the toss and thus ran first on the ballot. That position may have helped him gain votes in a race overshadowed by elementary and high school balloting.

He and Mrs. Wilson, however, had mounted a long campaign throughout the entire five-township area covered by Harper. And Morton captured 16 precincts, primarily in Elk Grove Village, Barrington, Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and Arlington Heights.

Mrs. Nicklas, however, swamped all other candidates in Palatine and Inverness, her home town. She also scored heavily in Barrington, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg.

LIKE THE MORTON-WILSON campaign, her workers distributed campaign literature all day Friday, and she gained backing from Hutchings, who offered her some help.

Hutchings swept five of six precincts in Mount Prospect, his home town. Mrs. Wilson countered with triumphs in Des Plaines and solid voting strength in Mount Prospect.

Toot, with strong organizational backing in Arlington Heights, captured two Arlington Heights precincts. Durava, who did not campaign, won only one precinct.

Several of the candidates called into Mann's office at Harper on Saturday night, as Harper administrators tallied the votes. Clogged telephone lines several times prevented word of totals to go out to the public.

The vote followed an unusually hard-fought campaign, in which Mrs. Wilson and Morton criticized some of the policies and practices of the present board and administration.

THE FINAL WEEK of campaigning was marked by a dispute over the right of students to distribute campaign literature, a charge by board member James Hamill that Morton and Mrs. Wilson were soliciting campaign funds from faculty members, and the revelation that no polling places were open in Rolling Meadows.

And the election was held in the shadow of a 2-1 defeat of a building and education fund referendum in March, as well as the festering problem of an unresolved grievance procedure (which was virtually approved last Monday).

However, the mood was serene and often witty Saturday night as the administrators waited tiredly for the final Elk Grove Village precincts to report. At midnight, a write-in vote was reported for Tom Mix, former cowboy star. "He always does well," someone remarked.

Finally, at 12:30 a.m. the final precincts were reported in and everyone went home. The results, however, may take a while to evaluate.

High School Contract OK'd

Construction work on High School Dist. 214's seventh high school located in Rolling Meadows will begin as soon as possible, as the result of Thursday night's school board meeting.

The board agreed Thursday to let the general contract for $4.1 million to Wilfreds Inc. of Naperville, one of 10 firms to bid on the general contract.

However, the $4.1 million figure is not final, according to Dr. Robert Weber, assistant superintendent for business affairs and serious cuts will have to be made because the Wilfreds bid is about $300,000 over the anticipated cost.

He explained that construction will follow the contract signing and completion of drawings on the new high school, to be located on Central Road in Rolling Meadows.

WEBER SAID that he was still hoping that the building can be occupied by July 31, 1971, about a month before school is scheduled to open. A critical concern is that Wilfreds must order and obtain structural steel as soon as possible for the building.

The $4.1 million general contract, however, was cut so heavily by the board already that no alternates, such as a surfaced track or a roofed bus area, were included.

Omitted, too, were grandstands for the football field. Weber said that the school may have to use other district facilities for football games, such as the Forest View field in Arlington Heights.

"It was a tough decision to make, but a proper one to make," sighed Weber, who has been in constant consultation with representatives from Orput & Orput, the school's architects.

HE ADDED that a major problem will be to cut out as much superfluous educational material as possible without hampering the school's educational program.

The board also accepted a bid of $329,490 from Hufschmidt Engineering of Sussex, Wisc., for pre-cast concrete paneling which will be used on the exterior of the building. The various electrical, plumbing and heating contracts will be acted on at a later date.

The board's decision Thursday required a number of conferences with the district's attorneys and contractors. All that remains now is the signing of the contract and the start of work.

Sundling In, Gibbs Ousted

Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary Dist. 15 school Board President Walter Sundling was easily reelected Saturday but voters ousted another incumbent in favor of Russell E. Thome of Palatine.

In the four-way race for two positions Sundling finished on top, with an unofficial total of 817 votes. Thome finished second with 717 votes, while Leland "Bud" Gibbs, a board member since 1967, finished third with 668 votes. Richard Grau finished last with a total of 437 votes. The posts carry three-year terms.

A total of 1,476 votes were cast under cloudy and sometimes rain-filled skies.

Thome was elected to the board by edging Gibbs by only 49 votes. He gained the largest vote count of any candidate in any one of the six precincts by racking up 223 votes in the fifth precinct which voted at the Inverness Fieldhouse. In that precinct Sundling recorded 178 votes while Gibbs had 117. Grau recorded 51 votes.

THOME WAS ALSO high vote getter in the sixth precinct which voted at the Winston Park School. There he chalked up 196 votes to 184 by Sundling, 171 for Grau and 139 for Gibbs.

Walter Sundling

Sundling was the top vote-getter in the other four precincts.

Thome, who lives at 823 E. Morris Drive, Palatine, is sales manager for the Acan X-Ray Company in Chicago.

In a telephone interview Saturday night, Thome said he got interested in the school board reading about it in the newspaper and decided to make a run for the board.

He listed the construction of two story schools for the district, continuation of the district's strong educational program and a watchfulness on the grade school level for drug involvement as his goals as a board member.

Thome said that the district has had "a high caliber of teachers" in the district, adding that he hoped by screening applicants the district would continue to have good teachers.

HE ALSO SUGGESTED that school facilities be open more in the summer for recreational programs and sports and also be open in the evenings all year for youngsters who "can't make the teams."

"At least it would keep them off the streets" and involved, Thome said.

He also said meeting space should be made available for groups if the groups are willing to share expenses.

Sundling, who has been a school board member for 20 years, before the election said he was seeking another term "to continue the good educational program in Dist. 15." The major asset of the district, he said, was a dedicated, qualified administrative and teaching staff.

The district's two biggest problems, he said, were its increasing enrollment and the financial limitation imposed by the laws of the state.

Costello Heads 214 Vote

by TOM WELLMAN

Jack Costello, Raymond Erickson and Joseph Schiffhauer Saturday night won three-year terms on the High School Dist. 214 board.

Costello of Mount Prospect, who has already served one year on the board, led the field with 4,583 votes. Erickson of Arlington Heights, who has just completed his first three-year term, tallied 3,785, and Schiffhauer, also of Arlington Heights, gained 2,948 votes to win his first term on the board.

However, until the final five precincts were reported, Schiffhauer was closely challenged by Clyde Brooks of Elk Grove Village, the first black man ever to seek a Dist. 214 seat.

Brooks finished fifth, but with 22 of the 27 precincts reporting, he was only 118 votes behind Schiffhauer. However, the five remaining precincts, mainly from Arlington Heights, gave Schiffhauer an easy victory.

FOURTH PLACE WENT to Joseph Connery of Arlington Heights, who tallied 2,423. Brooks totaled 2,310, Robert Le Forge of Prospect Heights had 2,018, Mrs. Sophie Basile of Elk Grove Village collected 1,342 and Don McGlothlin finished with 833.

The results as recorded in the Dist. 214 offices in Mount Prospect are unofficial and they will be canvassed at a later date. However, it was apparent from the beginning that Costello and Erickson would be easily reelected to three-year terms.

"I feel very honored at winning," Costello said after the victory. "I'm appreciative of the support of the people, and I hope and feel that the support indicates an endorsement of my efforts."

He stressed he was impressed by the field of candidates, and he emphasized that he would work to serve the best interests of the young people and the community.

Erickson also stressed that he was pleased with the community support, and praised the losing candidates, one by one. Schiffhauer, who had to wait until the final return to be sure of his victory, said simply, "It's wonderful." He praised the teamwork and the hard work of a "great group of workers."

COSTELLO, IN LEADING the ballot, scored heavily in the Mount Prospect-Des Plaines area, winning an overall total of 13 of the 27 precincts. Erickson could capture only three, but he scored large victories in Arlington Heights and was steady throughout Elk Grove and Wheeling Townships.

Schiffhauer was extremely strong in precinct 15, his home precinct, where he tallied 201 votes to 87 for Costello. But his heartstopping triumph came against Brooks' strength in Elk Grove Village, where Brooks consistently outscored Mrs. Basile, who finished seventh.

Connery, with strong backing from former Mount Prospect mayor Daniel Connery, showed great strength in Arlington Heights and considerable power in Mount Prospect. Le Forge, former board president in Dist. 23, captured both of the Prospect Heights precincts.

The eight candidates and backers, crowded into the main meeting room in the district's offices, and watched as results were tallied on a large bulletin board. At the end, which came at 11 p.m., the winners and losers seemed relieved that it was over.

Costello, Connery and Brooks mounted especially strong campaigns, based on volunteer manpower, leaflets, boundless energy and a seemingly never-ending string of coffees. Erickson said that he did little campaigning, and McGlothlin, who also tried to gain a Dist. 214 seat last year, openly endorsed Costello at the end of the campaign.

The vote means that Schiffhauer, personnel manager at United Air Lines, will replace Frank Bergen of Mount Prospect, who decided not to seek another term on the board.

The election campaign was free of controversial issues, as most of the candidates most of the time praised the district's progress. And the issue of Brooks, as a black man, did not become an issue, as many feared it would.

APPROPRIATELY, STUDENTS at Jones Salk School in Rolling Meadows commemorated a special event Friday when they staged an assembly to recognize the 15th anniversary of the discovery of the Salk polio vaccine. Telling the group about the important event is student council president, Tony Orozco and fourth-grader Gary Kuithe, who demonstrates what thousands of children have been saved from since the vaccine was discovered.

Teen Fashion Show Slated

While some people's fancy turns to love in the spring, girls of the Horizon Club in Palatine and Rolling Meadows are thinking about clothes.

The club, a high school branch of the Camp Fire Girls, is staging a fashion show the evening of April 16 at Carl Sandburg School in Rolling Meadows.

"It's a show by teens for teens,"

smiled Mrs. David Sundling, adviser of the group.

"We think the fashions are really 'with it,'" she added.

The 7:30 p.m. show is open to the public. Cost of tickets is 75 cents for students and $1 for adults.

Money raised from the event will help pay expenses for the girls' attendance at the Horizon Club's Mini Conference to be held in Chicago this weekend.

Thanks For (Ka-Whump) Just Facts

by TOM ROBB

The facts, nothing but the facts. Lately, this is what a reporter is likely to get at a high school Dist. 211 board meeting, and that's saying a lot. Prior to Thursday night's regular meeting, reporters only received a one or two-sheet agenda outline, which made it very difficult to follow what transpired during a board meeting in any detail. At the last meeting, however, this reporter was presented with a 60 page-plus, detailed agenda book thanks to efforts of the board, the administration and the secretarial staff. The board, covered, indexed and thumb-nail-labeled book was the result of more than the district official's hard work, and it represents more than a convenience for a reporter.

IT IS ALSO THE result of an understanding by Dist. 211, an understanding that such a book is vital to thorough press coverage and getting the district's message across to the public. It represents the district's acknowledgment of a two-way, mutual working relationship between themselves and the public press.

For this, Dist. 211 is to be congratulated.

This information packet also is important to residents of the district inasmuch as without it, they would possibly not get all the facts they deserve to have.

The need for this type of arrangement was emphasized by Lyle Johnson at a candidate forum last week at Fremd High School. Johnson said "more things and more meetings have" taken place during the last year in Dist. 211 than ever before.

To prove his point Johnson held up a one-half inch thick stack consisting of last year's total agenda sheets and compared this finger-thick stack to a three or four-inch thick book which represented the agenda for only one meeting this year.

WHAT JOHNSON DID not say, however, was that many of these "things" the district is now involved in, such as vocational education programs, are also more complicated than ever before.

In a way, Dist. 211 has a tiger by the tail, and that tiger is growth, which cannot help usher in program, budget and many other forms of innovations which are designed to meet the needs spawned by a mushrooming population and enrollment.

In order to keep abreast of these changes, and in order to untangle the quagmire of complicated details for all to understand, an agenda book like the one district officials recently prepared is absolutely necessary.

Dist. 211 has recognized and met this need. By doing so, they are doing themselves, the press and the public a favor. They are to be lauded for this and for realizing that the only way for everyone involved in the district's challenging future to stay on top of things is to keep a steady outpour of one thing:

The facts, nothing but the facts.

Kindergarten Registration Begins Today

Registration for kindergarten-age children in Palatine-Rolling Meadows Elementary School Dist. 15 for the next school year begins today.

Both today and Wednesday have been set aside as registration days in 15 of the district's 17 schools.

A child must be five years old on or before Dec. 1, 1970 and have a valid birth certificate as proof for registration. Hospital and baptismal records are not considered valid certificates.

A $10 fee must be paid at the time of registration. If the child does not enter Dist. 15 schools in the fall, the $10 will be refunded.

Registration will be open today from 9:30 to 11 a.m. and 12:30 to 3 p.m. at Cardinal Drive, Central Road, Kimball Hill, Pleasant Hill, Plum Grove, Jonas Salk and Carl Sandburg Schools.

The hours will be the same on Wednesday for Jane Addams, Winston Churchill, Marion Jordan, Hunting Ridge, Lake Louise, Stuart H. Paddock, Gray M. Sandborn and Virginia Lake Schools.

Outlook Bleak for Anti-war Bill

Proposed Illinois legislation that would question the constitutionality of the Vietnam War doesn't appear to have much chance of support from Third District legislators, nor do the local legislators give it much chance of passing out of the Illinois House of Representatives. The proposed bill, which will be introduced in the House of Representatives tomorrow by State Rep.

Robert Mann, D-Chicago, would give Illinois men a legal way out of serving in Vietnam.

Similar to a law signed last week by Massachusetts Gov. Francis Sargent, the bill would state that "no inhabitant of the state of Illinois inducted or serving in the military forces shall be required to serve outside the territorial limits of the United States in an undeclared war and in one which has not been initially authorized or subsequently ratified by congressional declaration of war."

THE VIETNAM WAR would fit that category since it was initiated by Presidential action and has never been formally declared as a war by Congress.

Two of the three Third District representatives said they would vote against the bill and the third said she has not yet decided how to vote.

State Rep. David J. Regner, R-Mount Prospect, called the bill a "meaningless

"I don't see how the state can pass legislation that would overrule federal legislation," he said. "Congress has not declared a war but I would assume the federal government has the right to draft men and to determine how they will be used."

Regner said the bill "expressed the sentiments of some people" but predicted that it would have a "rough time getting through, regardless of which party sponsored it."

R.E.P. EUGENE F. Schlickman, R-Arlington Heights, also considers the bill meaningless but for a different reason.

"I think the bill passed in Massachusetts has already accomplished what this bill would accomplish, namely a challenge to the war," Schlickman said. "One such law is sufficient to bring a court ruling on it."

Schlickman said he did not view the bill proposed by Mann as a challenge to President Nixon.

"I think there will be bi-partisan support and bi-partisan opposition to it. But I don't think it has a chance in the house and I doubt if it will get out of committee."

R.E.P. EUGENIA Chapman, D-Arlington Heights, reserved her woman's prerogative and said she has not made up her mind on the bill yet.

"I don't have any instant opinion on it," Mrs. Chapman said. "I haven't had enough time to study it and I don't really know what all the constitutional ramifications would be."

Another state representative well-known to Northwest suburban residents has said he may support the bill.

State Rep. Edward Warman, D-Skokie, is a candidate for Congress in the 13th Congressional District and is running as an anti-Vietnam candidate. He said he does not think Illinois needs a test case, since Massachusetts already has one, but added that he thinks Congress has been in error in allowing an undeclared war to continue.

Sen. John A. Graham, R-Barrington, agrees with Schlickman that the bill won't get out of committee in the house and said he is disturbed by the bill.

"If a state is going to start running its own show, then we will destroy the union," Graham said. "I think our greatness is attributed to the fact that we are a union of states."

Meetings Set In 'Shadow' Of Tax Battle

Area residents will have their single, yearly chance tomorrow to participate in democracy in its purest form.

Or at least take sides in the battle over the continuation of the township form of government in Cook County.

Cook County townships will hold their annual meetings tomorrow not knowing the result of their legal battle to restore "excess commissions."

The townships' practice of keeping 2 per cent of the taxes they collected for themselves was ruled unconstitutional last month by the State Supreme Court.

Lawrence Gunnels, a Chicago attorney representing the Cook County Tax Collector's Association, said a request for a rehearing of the decision will be filed either Tuesday or Wednesday. He said it was "absurd" to expect the decision before the township's annual meetings.

FOUR NORTHWEST suburban townships, Palatine, Schaumburg, Elk Grove and Wheeling, are asking local residents to levy a township tax this week.

Gunnels claimed that when the Supreme Court made its decision to throw out the excess commissions it did not consider one of the key arguments in the defendants' case. That is, he said, where those who brought the suit live.

According to the brief, the plaintiffs cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission charged to taxes collected for exclusively suburban levying agencies.

"The vast bulk of taxes paid by suburban residents," the argument says, "are paid to levying agencies that are solely within the townships and have no connection or relation to the City of Chicago or to the plaintiffs as Chicago residents."

The plaintiffs, it continues, "clearly cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission that is retained on these taxes and spent in the townships for public purposes."

The suit was filed by William J. Harte and Kevin M. Forde, two Chicago attorneys.

IN THE STIPULATION of facts, Gunnels said, "Of the total property taxes paid by suburban township residents and received by the township collectors, 85 to 90 per cent of such taxes are collected for and remitted to such levying bodies," the bodies that are solely within the suburban townships.

"No Chicago resident is subject to any levy or assessment by these bodies; the plaintiffs as Chicago residents," it is argued, "are thus in no way taxwise involved or affected by these levies or collections."

A suburban resident would not be able to bring a suit against the practice of excess commissions, claiming discrimination, as in this case, Gunnels said, because all the suburban townships receive the same 2 per cent.

Rev. Olson To Speak

Rev. Armon Olson will talk about "King and Queen of the Home," Tuesday at the Parent Teacher League meeting of St. Peter Lutheran School on Schaumburg Road, at 8 p.m.

Rev. Olson's talk will focus on the changing culture. A slate of PTL officers for the coming year will also be presented.

Delay Building Again

Foiled by a lack of time, High School Dist. 211 board members Thursday agreed to postpone the preliminary screening of architects for their upcoming building program until a later date.

This was the second delay board members experienced in trying to get the first screening of some 25 prospective candidates for the June referendum building program underway.

Last month, this first screening was originally scheduled to take place. Because of ambiguity in the open meeting law, there was some confusion as to whether or not the screenings should be done in open or closed session, and therefore the task was rescheduled for last Thursday night.

What board members were faced with last week was the job of whittling down 25 out of 32 architects, who had replied to questionnaires Dist. 211 sent out, to a group small enough for oral interviews at a later date this month.

THE PROCEDURE for the preliminary screenings was derived from retiring superintendent G. A. McElroy, acting superintendent Richard Kolze and Martin Plate, the district's new director of research and information.

The committee divided the 25 hopefuls into four groups: prime candidates, giants in the architectural business responsible for jobs like the John Hancock Building; those with a lack of experience, size or with an out-of-state or undesirable company location; and former district employees, according to Kolze.

On this basis the board was to review the four groups and hopefully eliminate firms until a semi-final group of architects was chosen, McElroy said.

Setting out to accomplish this process of elimination, the board, already hampered by the lateness of the hour, decided to select a third plan to complete the first screenings.

BOARD MEMBER Robert Creek said he felt it was too late in the night to be "making intellectual decisions" on such an important matter and recommended the following plan, which the board approved:

Incumbents in 211 Ward Off Challenges

Odabowski. Johnson, former board president, ran unopposed in Saturday's election since he was the only candidate to file for a one year, instead of three year term like the others.

"I'm very grateful," he said. "And I'm truly hoping that this will be the best year ever in Dist. 211." Johnson commented that he thought the voter turnout was low.

Langsdorf, who was appointed to the board last January, to fill the vacancy left by the resignation of Eugene Baker, said, "I didn't get into this for fun, because it's not. Some people might think it is, but it involves an awful lot of work. I'll do my best and hope that's good enough."

Creek, was appointed to the board last June when George Ledford resigned.

The Dist. 211 board has scheduled a meeting for April 16 at which time election results will be canvassed and new board officers will be elected.

Kolze and McElroy will each, separately, select seven candidates, compare notes, decide on a final seven and present these to the board who will then eliminate three on April 23 leaving four to be interviewed in person at a later time.

The criteria for this first screening consist of the firm's size, experience, quality of work, work load, location in regard to prompt service and supervision.

The preliminary screening is in connection with a referendum Dist. 211 will call June 6, 1970 for the money necessary to build a school to accommodate 2,500 students in the south part of the district, a school of the same size in the north part of the district, and an approximately 8,000 square foot addition to the present administrative center on Roselle Road.

New High School By September?

"Only a major negative possibility could prevent occupancy of Schaumburg High as scheduled," Eric Jones, a member of the architectural firm Dist. 211 hired for the Schaumburg High School project, said at Thursday night's board meeting.

Scheduled to open in September, Jones assured the board the new high school on Schaumburg Road will be ready for students and faculty on time.

In a progress report to the board, Jones said the new facility is more than 60 per cent complete, "with four full months, the best months, of construction left."

Jones said another positive factor in completing the building on time is the fact that any teamsters walkout "would not seriously affect the project" since most of the material is now on the site.

IN ANOTHER report, which Jones updated somewhat, progress as of April 7 on Schaumburg was as follows:

In the academic area the interior masonry work is 70 per cent complete with only a small amount left on the lower level, ceiling framework is nearly completed on the lower level. More than 30 per cent of the light fixtures have been installed on the first and second levels, levels two and three have been almost completely primed and finished with paint. Good progress has been made on the installation of window frames on the north and east sides of the building and brick work has started on the south outside wall. The east penthouse (a maintenance facility on the roof) has been enclosed, only the kitchen area floors remain to be poured, and progress is well underway on the installation of the elevator.

In the gym area, which comprises most of the unfinished work, the upper deck floors have been poured, the south wall is nearly completed, the west wall has been started, and the shower and washroom plumbing is in place.

Man 31, Dies From Injuries

Raymond Held, 31, of 255 N. Brockway, Palatine who was injured when his car hit a signal light Feb. 6, died Thursday in Northwest Community Hospital where he had since the accident.

Police said Held was traveling west on Northwest Highway when his car crashed head-on into the cement base of a stop light at Rohlfing Road and Northwest Highway. He suffered severe cuts of the face, head and chest and two broken legs.

POLICE SAID THE speedometer of his car was stopped at 62 miles per hour when checked after the crash.

Visitation is today from 2 to 9:30 p.m. in Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home, 201 N. Northwest Highway, Palatine and tomorrow until the time of the funeral service at 1:30 p.m. in the chapel of the funeral home. Burial will be in Memory Gardens Cemetery, Arlington Heights.

He is survived by his father, Carl W. Held of Palatine and two brothers, Leonard of Carpentersville and Norman of Palatine.

Phosphorous' Many Uses

Phosphorus, the nonmetallic element of phosphate, helps soften water, preserve food, polish metal, refine sugar and dye clothes.

Camp Orientation Slated

The Palatine Kiwanis Club has invited parents of orthopedically crippled children to a meeting tomorrow at 7:30 p.m. to learn about a Kiwanis camp for crippled children in Plymouth, Ind.

The meeting will be held at Uncle Andy's Cow Palace restaurant at Route 14 and Quentin Road.

David Hamner, who is responsible for the local group's participation in the program, said the club is seeking children to sponsor at either of the two, three week camp sessions. The club, he said, will pay part or the entire $90 cost for children who go to the camp.

The sessions, he said, run from June 28 to July 24 for seven to 10-year-olds, and July 28 to Aug. 21 for 11 to 14-year-olds.

The professionally run camp programs, he said, include swimming, arts and crafts and playground activities. Parents are invited to visit their child on the second weekend their child is at the camp.

Camp president Wesley D. Hunnell, will present a film about the camp at tomorrow's meeting, Hamner said.

The meeting is open to all parents in the northwest suburban area. The nurses from Elementary School Dist. 15, along with representatives from the Elk Grove and Wheeling Kiwanis clubs have also been invited.

Hamner said anyone who desires further information can contact him at 894-7070.

Series Peeks At Astrology

by SUE CARSON

A glimpse into the heavens and the secrets they might hold was given to local residents Thursday by astrology expert Homer Lathrop.

An interested audience, mostly housewives, came to the gymnasium at Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove to hear Lathrop expound on the influences on the heavenly bodies on nature and mankind. His lecture was the last in the Inquiry into the Unknown series, sponsored by the Longfellow Community Education Project.

"Astrology has been condemned and exalted to great heights, but it has never been disproved," Lathrop declared. "It has been the foundation of all religions. The Christian church was influenced by astrology, although in many cases this influence was kept secret."

"FOR EXAMPLE, the calculation of the date of Easter each year was plotted from the heavens. Biblical patriarchs were well versed in astrology and all the prophets used astrology to make their prophecies. The 19th Psalm has many references to astrology."

"The major astronomers, like Sr. Isaac Newton, began as astrologers," he added.

The 27-year-old Lathrop has studied physics and astronomy at Northwestern University and now teaches a course in astronomy at the "free university" there.

He told the audience that astronomy "should not be considered a faith, but a guide."

"WILL POWER IS ONE thing that can't be taken into consideration when calculating a horoscope. The person highly developed spiritually usually goes beyond the influence of the zodiac."

Lathrop admitted that he has gone against his own horoscope, but said "it's very difficult to do. Obstacles are thrown up to prevent a person from acting contrary to his horoscope, and they must be overcome."

Lathrop said that while horoscopes printed in newspapers and magazines may be helpful in giving insight into coming events, a detailed horoscope would take many hours to develop and would take up 15 or 20 pages.

HE EXPLAINED THAT each person has a certain zodiac sign according to his birth date. Certain general characteristics are associated with each sign.

"Those born under Cancer are protective, maternal types, while those born under Libra are well-adjusted. A Taurus is aggressive and a Virgo, analytical."

"All signs are ruled by a planet and each planet affects the sign," he said.

"Some planets rule more than one sign, as Venus which rules Taurus and Libra. Venus is the planet of love and honor, but Librans are more altruistic than those born under Taurus. Many judges are Librans."

The moon also influences man and his activities, according to Lathrop.

"It's better to be born under a new moon than a waning one. Persons born under a new moon have more vitality."

"More crime occurs under a full moon than at any other time."

2 Charged In Tollway Death

Two Hoffman Estates residents, 17 and 24, were charged with involuntary manslaughter Thursday in the death of Mrs. Barbara A. Snyder who was killed last September when an 18 pound rock was dropped through the windshield of the car she was riding in on the Northwest Tollway.

Warrants charging involuntary manslaughter were issued for James Arnold, 17, 257 Highland Blvd., and David Akerson, 24, 134 Evergreen.

Detective Gerald Smith of the Illinois State Police, Tollway District 15, said the two are scheduled to appear in Niles Court April 29. Bond was set at $10,000 each.

Smith and Sgt. Donald Jobe, also with District 15, have been working on the case since the Sept. 20 fatality. The arrests were made with the cooperation of the Hoffman Estates police department.

CHIEF JOHN O'Connell said the arrests resulted from information given Hoffman Estates Sgt. James Dutton from an undisclosed source. Hoffman Estates police forwarded the information to Smith and Jobe.

Aiding in the arrests last week were Hoffman Estates Det. Ronald Sperandio and Officer William Mulcahy.

"This was an excellent example of good police work on the part of Sgt. Dutton and the other officers," Chief O'Connell said.

Smith said Akerson is presently in the Kane County jail, charged with armed robbery and aggravated assault from an incident in West Dundee on March 28.

The rock that killed Mrs. Snyder, a 27-year-old Batavia resident, was thrown onto the Tollway from the Higgins Road overpass in Hoffman Estates at 1:30 a.m. Sept. 20.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Harold Dennon of Aurora.

Library Gets Teen Donation

Thursday night three members of the Mount Prospect Youth Commission presented the library board a check for $425.54 to be used for financing the prospective listening center.

The students, Diane Ackerman, Bob Bittler and Ken Holmes, president of the Prospect High School Student Council, made the presentation.

The money was raised from a dance the youth commission sponsored Dec. 28 at the Randhurst Shopping Center mall.

Mary Jo Hutchings, director of the library, said the listening center would probably cost "more in the area of $800," but she added that the donation from the youths will be the "nucleus" for the project.

"We could not do it without the gift fund," she said. "The library board wouldn't have the funds."

Mrs. Hutchings said she will begin work on planning the listening center this week.

The center will consist of tapes, recorders and record players.

She added that the center "is the kind of thing young people want."

GI Who Lost Limbs Improves

A Wheeling serviceman who lost a leg and an arm due to combat in Vietnam is recovering at a hospital at Fort Fitzsimmons, Colo.

Army Spec. 4 Gerald Robert Locy, 26, son of Mrs. Wanda J. Locy of 277 W. Wayne, Wheeling, was injured in Long Binh, Vietnam, when a vehicle in which he was riding ran over a land mine.

Locy, a graduate of Prospect High School, received a Purple Heart and a Bronze Star for his Army service.

Locy and his family are staying at 1465 Kingston, Aurora, Colo.

$300 Clothing Theft

A Palatine man told Mount Prospect police Thursday about $300 worth of personal clothing was stolen from his auto while it was parked at Randhurst Shopping Center.

Julius Pryor, 49 Elizabeth St., told police a man's suit, two pairs of pants and a pair of sunglasses were missing from his auto, which was locked at the time the theft occurred. Police said entrance to the locked auto was gained by forcing the vent window open.

Pryor lives at 49 Elizabeth Street.

Lock Is Changed In Nick of Time

Burglars apparently used stolen keys in an effort to break into the Northwest Standard Service Station, 200 East North-west Highway Saturday night.

When employee Fred Morrison arrived at work Sunday, he found the lock on the front door had been tampered with. The door handle had been pried loose in an attempt to gain entry.

Owner of the station Jerry Sublette told police that a set of keys had been stolen recently and that he had changed the lock on the front door.

Kindergarten Events Set at North School

Mothers of youngsters who will enter kindergarten at North School, Arlington Heights, in the fall have been invited to attend an orientation meeting April 23.

The meeting will begin at 2:45 p.m. in the school's multipurpose room at 410 N. Arlington Heights Road.

Kindergarten teachers and John Bennett, North's principal, will present an illustrated program on kindergarten aims and activities.

For more information regarding kindergarten registration, contact Mrs. B. Nylen at 392-5864.

Vandals Damage Trees

Vandals chopped the branches off 10 small trees on Mount Prospect Park District property on We-Go Trail in Mount Prospect.

Richard P. Beyerau, 126 We-Go Trail, noticed the damage Saturday morning and notified police.

Police said that the branches were cut off with some kind of an ax. They are investigating the incident.

Blackout Hits 4 Communities

The lights went out for an hour and a half in Arlington Heights, and parts of Wheeling, Mount Prospect and Prospect Heights at 11:25 p.m. Thursday.

Commonwealth Edison officials reported that six main "feeder" lines along the Soo Line R.R. tracks fell from the towers which support them. Cause of the downed lines falling was unknown.

Greatly hampered by the blackout was Pat-Waukee Airport south of Wheeling. The airport staff was unable to communicate with aircraft by the radio. The landing lights were also inoperative.

Airport owner George Priester explained that normally the airport loses only half of its power at a time because it is serviced from two separate lines on Wolf Road and Milwaukee Avenue. Thursday night however "we were totally in the dark," Priester said.

Once in a Lifetime

Local student Rick Dunlop, 1115 Mayfair Road in Arlington Heights, was one of the 150 Explorer Scouts who were to witness the launch of Apollo 13 at Cape Kennedy Saturday afternoon.

Dunlop was selected by the Explorer division of the Boy Scouts to be a guest at the launch site.

"AN ECLIPSE at the time of birth will have a definite influence on an individual's life," according to astrology teacher Homer Lathrop. Lathrop, who spoke Thursday at

Longfellow School in Buffalo Grove, said that astrology "can help us understand ourselves and our relation to others."

Need Joint Venture

Only a joint effort by communities, townships, and the county will solve the housing shortage for low-income families, said a member of a housing task force in Elk Grove Village.

"We cannot solve the problem on a village by village basis," said Edward Kenna who spoke Friday night at a panel discussion in an Arlington Heights church. "It must be a joint venture," he said.

ALONG WITH solving the housing problem, Kenna said, a social problem that accompanies persons new to the suburbs must be solved at the same time.

They must be taught how to get along in an area which is different than from where they came, he explained.

Kenna was one of four panel members who spoke before a group of about 80 persons in the basement of the Congregational United Church of Christ, 1001 W. Kirchoff Road.

Kenna has served 2½ months on a housing task force assigned the job of placing 17 Mexican-American families in permanent housing. The families had been living in substandard dwellings deemed unsafe in recent months following the death of three children last November in Elk Grove Township.

"WE STILL haven't housed the 17 families," he said. There is no housing of a permanent nature for them, he asserted.

One of the 17 families Kenna referred to is living in the basement of the church only a few feet away from where he spoke.

A mother and her three children have been living there since mid-March when friends moved her from a dilapidated trailer near Higgins Road and Oakton Street.

Mrs. William Trevor, of the Northwest Opportunity Center, said the housing shortage is no longer a problem but a disaster.

"Half the population is priced out of the housing market in the United States," she said.

CHARLES CATLIN, an Arlington Heights architect who has worked with public housing projects, used slides to illustrate attractive low-income housing for families and senior citizens.

CONSTRUCTION COSTS for such housing would be about $15,000 if included in a 50-unit project, he said afterward.

The federal government buys the land, builds the homes, charges nominal rent, and finances the homes through tax free bonds.

Rudolph Hazucha, of the Northwest Suburban Housing Coalition, said his organization wants to set up housing committees in each community and survey the communities to find who the needy families are.

He said the coalition has also proposed that each resident give $1 a month for an emergency housing fund. Though only $250 has been collected, he indicated he was optimistic.

Meeting Set in 'Shadow'

Area residents will have their single, yearly chance tomorrow to participate in democracy in its purest form.

Or at least take sides in the battle over the continuation of the township form of government in Cook County.

Cook County townships will hold their annual meetings tomorrow not knowing the result of their legal battle to restore "excess commissions."

The townships' practice of keeping 2 per cent of the taxes they collected for themselves was ruled unconstitutional last month by the State Supreme Court.

Lawrence Gunnels, a Chicago attorney representing the Cook County Tax Collector's Association, said a request for a rehearing of the decision will be filed either Tuesday or Wednesday. He said it was "absurd" to expect the decision before the township's annual meetings.

Extensioneers Are Watched

Interest in the Mount Prospect Extensioneers, an organization of senior citizens in the community, is not confined to the village limits.

The divisional committee on regional planning and recreation, a subcommittee of the Council of Governments of Cook County (COG), is interested in the Extensioneers as an example of one of the first programs organized for senior citizens and endorsed by the village in the Northwest suburban area.

Roger Bjorvik, chairman of the COG committee and secretary of the Palatine Park District, told the Herald the committee is watching the Mount Prospect program with interest.

"We're looking to the development of this program for an impetus in establishing a regional committee to study the need for senior citizen organizations within this area. I think there is a need to coordinate the efforts of various senior citizens' programs throughout the area," Bjorvik said.

He said the Extensioneers have done more than any one senior citizens group in trying to organize themselves effectively, and it will be interesting to see what kind of response they receive from the community.

THE MOUNT PROSPECT Extensioneers have requested financial assistance from the Village board to provide a recreational center for senior citizens in the community. The request was made by Joseph Grittani, former village trustee and a supporter of Mayor Robert Teichert's campaign promise to help senior citizens in the village.

The finance committee, a subcommittee of the Mount Prospect Village Board, will review the request April 20. The committee is presently reviewing the budget for the new fiscal year which begins May 1.

Bjorvik said the COG committee is looking to Mount Prospect and the senior citizens program as a pilot project as well as an example to other villages in the Northwest suburban area which are interested in establishing programs for their senior citizens.

"The experience which the Extensioneers have in establishing an organization endorsed by the village could be of great benefit to other senior citizens who wish to organize a group. I think there is need for a committee at this level to coordinate all the efforts of senior citizen groups throughout the area," Bjorvik explained.

"What happens in Mount Prospect could well be the impetus in forming such a committee and spearheading other projects and programs designed especially for senior citizens."

2 Charged In Tollway Death

Two Hoffman Estates residents, 17 and 24, were charged with involuntary manslaughter Thursday in the death of Mrs. Barbara A. Snyder who was killed last September when an 18 pound rock was dropped through the windshield of the car she was riding in on the Northwest Tollway.

Warrants charging involuntary manslaughter were issued for James Arnold, 17, 257 Highland Blvd., and David Akerson, 24, 134 Evergreen.

Detective Gerald Smith of the Illinois State Police, Tollway District 15, said the two are scheduled to appear in Niles Court April 28. Bond was set at $10,000 each.

Smith and Sgt. Donald Jobe, also with District 15, have been working on the case since the Sept. 20 fatality. The arrests were made with the cooperation of the Hoffman Estates police department.

CHIEF JOHN O'Connell said the arrests resulted from information given Hoffman Estates Sgt. James Dutton from an undisclosed source. Hoffman Estates police forwarded the information to Smith and Jobe.

Aiding in the arrests last week were Hoffman Estates Det. Ronald Sperandio and Officer William Muteahy.

"This was an excellent example of good police work on the part of Sgt. Dutton and the other officers," Chief O'Connell said.

Smith said Akerson is presently in the Kane County jail, charged with armed robbery and aggravated assault from an incident in West Dundee on March 28.

The rock that killed Mrs. Snyder, a 27-year-old Batavia resident, was thrown onto the Tollway from the Higgins Road overpass in Hoffman Estates at 1:30 a.m. Sept. 20.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Harold Dennon of Aurora.

and Wheeling, are asking local residents to levy a township tax this week.

Gunnels claimed that when the Supreme Court made its decision to throw out the excess commissions it did not consider one of the key arguments in the defendants' case. That is, he said, where those who brought the suit live.

According to the brief, the plaintiffs cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission charged to taxes collected for exclusively suburban levying agencies.

"The vast bulk of taxes paid by suburban residents," the argument says, "are paid to levying agencies that are solely within the townships and have no connection or relation to the City of Chicago or to the plaintiffs as Chicago residents."

The plaintiffs, it continues, "clearly cannot complain of the 2 per cent commission that is retained on these taxes and spent in the townships for public purposes."

The suit was filed by William J. Harte and Kevin M. Forde, two Chicago attorneys.

IN THE STIPULATION of facts, Gunnels said, "Of the total property taxes paid by suburban township residents and received by the township collectors, 85 to 90 per cent of such taxes are collected for and remitted to such levying bodies," the bodies that are solely within the suburban townships.

"No Chicago resident is subject to any levy or assessment by these bodies; the plaintiffs as Chicago residents," it is argued, "are thus in no way taxwise involved or affected by these levies or collections."

A suburban resident would not be able to bring a suit against the practice of excess commissions, claiming discrimination, as in this case, Gunnels said, because all the suburban townships receive the same 2 per cent.

Area ACLU Rips Judge Carswell

The nomination of Judge G. Harold Carswell to the U. S. Supreme Court "embarrassed" intelligent Southerners, according to Jay Miller, an executive of the local chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union (ACLU).

Miller discussed the Carswell nomination, gun control laws and the relationship between the court and the criminal Friday with Wheeling High School social studies students.

Miller called President Nixon's nomination of Carswell "shocking," and said that the judge was not qualified to sit on the court.

"I didn't understand it, except that the nomination was part of Nixon's 'Southern strategy'." There are many Southern judges who would not agree with the ACLU but would nevertheless be brilliant on the Supreme Court.

"MANY SOUTHERN politicians and judges wouldn't support Carswell. I think by nominating him Nixon hurt his 'Southern strategy,'" he said.

Miller staunchly defended the rulings made by the Supreme Court when Earl Warren was Chief Justice.

"The Warren Court has been subjected to tremendous public abuse, but all it really asked was that the states respect federal statutes," said Miller.

"One of the reasons the public reacted the way it has to these rulings is the tremendous mythology surrounding crime in our country. Our society has done very little to effectively deal with crime; the emphasis has been on 'getting' the criminal and punishing him."

MILLER OUTLINED some of the recent decisions by the Warren court, which the ACLU supported. These upheld, among other principals, the individual's right to legal counsel before being charged with a crime, his right to counsel before participating in a police lineup, and his right to a jury trial when charged with a petty offense.

"To attack the court as coddling criminals for these decisions is nonsense," Miller declared.

"The court is trying to suggest to us that we have to do a better job of dealing with crime. We can't just try to pin the rap on someone."

The ACLU member told his young audience that "Most people are very afraid of crime, although they really have very few facts about it."

"WHITES IN THE cities are afraid of being harmed by the blacks. In fact, 90 per cent of black crime is committed against other blacks. And murders are generally committed by friends of the victim, not by strangers."

Drug addiction should be treated as a medical problem, not as a crime, according to Miller.

"Making addiction a medical problem and not a crime may not cut down on the number of addicts, but it would get the syndicate out of it and cut the crime rate. Then addicts wouldn't have to steal to support their expensive habit."

The need for strong gun-control laws also was endorsed by the ACLU member. "We're going in the wrong direction in this country by refusing to impose stringent gun control laws, yet some of the people most hysterical about the rising crime rate are opposing these laws."

Miller was one of several people scheduled to speak this spring at WHS under the social studies speakers program at the school.

Bauer, Burn Victim, Dies

Burton C. Bauer Jr., 202 W. Hawthorne St., who was badly burned and run over by an ambulance in a "freak" accident on April 6, died Saturday afternoon in Cook County Hospital Burn Center in Chicago.

Bauer, 32, part owner of Haire Funeral Home, was apparently working on a clogged gas line in an automobile parked near an ambulance in a garage near the funeral home when it suddenly burst into flames.

The victim's clothing caught fire and he fell to the ground after running out of the garage. An unidentified person ran to the garage to move the ambulance away from the fire and when the vehicle was driven from the garage, Bauer allegedly rolled in front of it.

Bauer suffered burns over 70 per cent of his body.
